Gomez Consents to Their Guarding the Property of Americans.

AID TO HIS OWN TROOPS

Leaves Them Free to Pursue the Rebels and Wage Active Campaign.

SITUATION SAFE, HE SAYS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, May 31.—American marines were landed at Daiguiri at 10:30 o'clock this morning for the protection of property there, owned by citizens of the United States.

This was revealed in almoset the concluding paragraph of a long message, which President Gomez sent to Congress to-day, in which he transmitted copies of the dispatches which had passed between the Cuban and American Governments with reference to the reports of intervention. He also showed that he had previously sent word to Gen. Monteagudo, commanding the Cuban forces in Oriente Province, that he might permit the landing of American marines to protect property owned by foreigners.

In his message to Congress, he said:

"The nature of the occurrences within the national territory on account of the seditious movement carried out by some elements of the colored race, and which has been reduced until now it is confined to one part of Oriente, makes it necessary for your President to inform Congress of the state of affairs of the country in its international aspect, and especially from the viewpoint of the relations of this Government to the United States.

"It was the decided purpose of the Cuban Government, after having totally destroyed the seditious bands in Pinar del Rio, Havana, and Santa Clara Provinces, where perfect public tranquillity has been restored and where agricultural pursuits have been resumed, to concentrate sufficient troops where the greater number of rebels were still found, and begin effectual and decisive operations.

"Nevertheless, because of the repeated and continual requests for protection for foreign properties, and especially those of American citizens, reinforced by their respective legations, in the region threatened by the rebels, the Government was obliged to concede preferred attention to this service for the purpose of avoiding as far as possible future claims for damages and the direct participation of American forces with the same object within Cuban territory.

"The members of Congress are not ignorant, because they have read in the daily press, of the efforts which this Government has made to inform the United States of what this nation was doing in order to assure it of the nation's determination to prevent all damage to foreign properties, as far as the Cuban forces permitted.

"On May 25 the Minister of the United States sent a note to the Secretary of State, the text of which was as follows:

> I have the honor to notify your Excellency that I have a telegram from my Government informing me that as a precautionary measure it has decided to send a gunboat to Nipe Bay and concentrate a naval force at Key West in anticipation of possible contingencies.
> I am ordered to communicate to your Excellency that in the event that the Government of your Excellency cannot or does not protect the lives and properties of American citizens, my Government, following the procedure it always does in such cases, will disembark troops to give the necessary protection.
> My Government adds explicitly that this should not be considered as an intervention.

President Gomez then tells how he sent a message of protest to President Taft, and gives the text of this, President Taft's reply, and his second cablegram to Taft.

President Gomez then continues:

"On May 29 I received the United States Minister in audience, as he had requested. He delivered to me a memorandum, which I send herewith.

"Associated with the note, and during an interview with the Minister, I told him that notwithstanding the fact that the Cuban Government had done and proposed to continue doing everything possible for the protection of the lives and properties of foreigners for the purpose of avoiding the landing of troops of the United States, and despite the fact that we had a firm conviction that we would quell the armed uprising in a relatively short time without the generously offered co-operation of the American Government, because the time had not arrived when such co-operation would be useful or necessary, (and I did not believe the time would come in the future,) yet, taking into consideration the end in view and the extremely limited authority of the President of the United States, Cuba would not oppose such measures as would guarantee still more to the satisfaction of both Governments protection of the lives and prop-

SHOOTS 14-YEAR-OLD GIRL.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., May 31.—After getting her to leave the parochial school she was attending by sending word that her mother was critically ill and wanted her at home, Frank Brown, 24 years old of Easton, Penn., shot and killed Annie Lynch, 14 years old of this place, on the public highway this morning.

The dead girl was one of the prettiest girls in the city, and had a host of friends. Brown had met her, became infatuated with her, and had asked her to marry him. She had accompanied him to moving picture shows and had received presents from him, but when her father, Michael Lynch, requested his daughter to have nothing further to do with Brown, she had refused to meet him.

When Brown met the girl this morning he insisted that she promise to marry him without delay. She replied that she could not talk about marriage when her mother was ill and started to go home. Brown then drew a large revolver and shot the girl in the chest. She fell but managed to get on her feet again. A small boy, unmindful of the threats made by the murderer, went to the girl's assistance, and helped her to her father's house, but she dropped dead as she was about to enter the door.

Brown, after he saw Miss Lynch leave him, turned the revolver on himself and sent a bullet into his own breast. He was taken to the hospital, and, although in a serious condition, may recover. He has made a statement telling that he killed the girl because he was jealous of her. He had seen her with another man at a circus last evening.

A letter found in Brown's pocket after he reached the hospital reads:

"Dear Annie: You promised to be mine for all, but you now have different thoughts. My heart is broken, and you will leave this world with me. Amen. God bless us together."

In another letter Brown complained that the girl's parents did not want her to marry him because they did not want to lose her assistance at home. Brown is a silk worker.

COL. VANDERBILT NOW.

Cornelius, with Major Ward, Promoted in the National Guard.

Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, commanding the National Guard, has appointed Major Franklin W. Ward, Coast Artillery Corps, an Adjutant General of Division, and Capt. Cornelius Vanderbilt an Inspector General. Both officers will have the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

Major Ward has served in every rank from private to Major. He enlisted in the Pennsylvania National Guard in 1888. During the Spanish war he received the commission of Second Lieutenant in the One Hundred and Ninth New York Infantry, and was later transferred to the Ninth Infantry, where he has served as First Lieutenant, Captain, and Major.

He is the co-author of "The Service of Coast Artillery," a well-known text book, which is authorized by the War Department for use in the regular coast artillery as well as the coast artillery reserves.

Cornelius Vanderbilt has been an officer in the Guard since 1901. In that year he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Twelfth Infantry. He was aide de camp to the Governor in 1903. In 1907 he was made Captain, and later was assigned an aid to the Major General, commanding the National Guard. He has held that position until his present promotion.

FLIES HIGH ACROSS CITY.

Harlem Glimpses an Airman Journeying from Long Island to New Jersey.

Residents of Harlem, gazing skyward last night, saw a biplane skimming above them a mile high, traveling at the rate of fifty miles an hour. The biplane came into view in a cloudless, well-lighted sky from the direction of Long Island and passed out of view over the Palisades.

Oliver Sherwood, the aviator who guided the biplane, was too high to hear the shouts which greeted his flight from crowds on 125th Street and intersecting avenues and on Riverside Drive. He kept his course slightly north of 125th Street and passed almost above Grant's Tomb.

Sherwood started at 6:51 from Mineola and arrived at Kuehnert Park, Hackensack, thirty miles away, at 7:34 P. M. The biplane in which he traveled was a headless 50-horse power Church aeroplane, with a Kirkham motor. It carried no extra fuel for its long trip.

Last night's trip was a part of Sherwood's journey to New Jersey to keep an engagement to fly. He was to have flown in an exhibition meet on Memorial Day at Weehawken, but the rain prevented. He will give an exhibition there on a postponed date.

BAN ON HINDU STUDENTS.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 31.—The drawing the color line at the University of Michigan against Hindus, who are treated by the students as negroes, has caused widespread complaint among the officers of the university.

The Hindus, who are of the highest caste, have been excluded from hotels and restaurants both in Ann Arbor and in Detroit. President Emeritus James B. Angell believes the East Indian students are victims of the color line through ignorance, and fears that the university will lose these students to Harvard and Yale, where the fact that Hindus are of the Aryan race instead of the Ethiopian is recognized. The Rev. Lee S. McAllister, one of the best-known Ministers in Detroit, to-day denounced the discrimination against the East Indians.

"It would be a sorry reflection on Detroit and Ann Arbor," he said, "if these students should leave our State and go to Eastern colleges, because of the rudeness of certain persons which reflects upon Michigan as a whole."

ROOSEVELT'S RISE BY MRS. STORER'S AID

"Dear Maria" of the Colonel's Correspondence Produces a New Letter.

NEVER GREW UP, SHE SAYS

Likens Him to the Helen's Baby, Who Wanted Everything "Bluggy"—Incident of a Boating Trip.

Mrs. Bellamy Storer, wife of Bellamy Storer of Cincinnati, whose recall as Ambassador to Austria-Hungary by President Roosevelt in 1906 caused a sensation and broke up the friendship that had long existed between the Storers and Roosevelts, adds still another chapter to the famous controversy by writing in the current issue of Harper's Weekly an article on "How Theodore Roosevelt Was Appointed Assistant Secretary of the Navy." She calls it "a hitherto unrelated chapter of history."

Certain portions of the story are not new, for Mrs. Storer has already charged that she and her husband personally urged President McKinley to appoint Mr. Roosevelt. In the present article Mrs. Storer makes public a letter from the Colonel to "Dear Mrs. Storer," dated Sagamore Hill, Dec. 5, 1896, in which the Colonel profusely thanks Mrs. Storer for using her influence in obtaining the appointment. A somewhat similar letter, now known as the "Dear Maria" letter, has already been published.

This is the 1896 letter:

> Oyster Bay, L. I., N. Y.,
> Sagamore Hill, Dec. 5, 1896.
> Dear Mrs. Storer—It would be hard to tell how deeply touched Edith and I were at your letter, and I never can say how much I appreciate your interest and your more than kindness, but it was just like you. We have read and re-read your letter, repeatedly and together, and it told us exactly what we wished to know. I cannot thank you enough. Of course, I wrote to McKinley at once about Bellamy, putting it, not on my feeling for Bellamy, but on the benefit I deemed it would be for the party and the country. Cabot had gone to Canton before your letter came, on McKinley's invitation and without consultation with me; I suppose he spoke of me, but the foreign policy of the administration was what he really went about. I was immensely amused at your encounter with ——. But there is one point on which I am a little inclined to differ from you. I don't wish to go to Canton unless McKinley sends for me. I don't think there is any need of it. He saw me when I went there during the campaign, and if he thinks I am a hot-headed, a harum-scarum, I don't think he will change his mind now. What you have said, dear Mrs. Storer, will count for more than seeing me again, as he already knows me, and does not need to find out anything by personal investigation. Moreover, I don't wish to appear as a suppliant, for I am not a suppliant. I feel I could do good work as Assistant Secretary, but if we had proper police laws I could do better work here, and would not leave, and somewhere or other I'll find work to do. If, however, Bellamy is to be Secretary, I confess I would give a great deal to be under him; and, of course, in view of the conditions here, I should be glad to take the position with any good Secretary. I am deeply grateful to you, and I am so very fond of you that I don't mind being under obligations to you.
> Now, for matters of more importance. I am very glad you went with Bellamy, because it was highly necessary there should be some one to say what you said. In view of what McKinley said, there is no doubt Bellamy will be given some work worthy of him, and I earnestly hope it will be in the Cabinet, though the French mission would be almost as good. Of course, let me know if there is anything further for me to do. I'll see you on the 22d. By the way, will you ask Bellamy what is the very earliest train I can take back after the dinner. I find Edith is much disturbed at the chance of my not being back for the Cove School Xmas tree, which I never miss, and to which Ted this year belongs; and to get here I must take a train from New York about 9:50 on the morning of the 24th; so I must reach New York earlier than that. Ever yours,
> THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

His Vituperation Pleasing.

In her article, Mrs. Storer describes the Roosevelt she knew when the families were at peace. Mrs. Storer relates that she visited Canton, Ohio, in November, 1896, shortly after Mr. McKinley's election and urged him to appoint Mr. Roosevelt Assistant Secretary of the Navy, as a result of a conversation she had had with Mr. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay in July, 1896, just after Mr. McKinley's nomination at the St. Louis Convention. This is her description of what happened:

"We had gone to Sagamore for a few days to see our very dear friends, the Roosevelts. Theodore Roosevelt seemed to us at that time like a younger brother, and Archie was Mr. Storer's godson, so that it was a great pleasure to see them all. Their life was ideal in its simplicity, and no one could be more amusing than the host—one never knew what he would say next. He was certainly very witty himself, and he caused wit in others. He used during this period to get on the warpath over Sienkiwicz's novels—"The Deluge" and "Fire and Sword"—and when he was quite sated with slaughter his face would be radiant and he would shout aloud with delight. He seemed as innocent as Toddy in "Helen's Babies," who wanted everything to be "bluggy." But his primitive passion for killing was wreaked only upon the lower animals, as it has recently been glutted in Africa. His vituperation was extremely amusing, and he had a most extraordinary vocabulary, and at this period his attacks were as harmless as target shooting—there were no mangled corpses after the fusillade! Never in our lives have we laughed so much or so often as when Theodore Roosevelt of those days was our host or our guest. Light-hearted memories linger about the Sagamore Hill of that time and about the little house in Nineteenth Street. At this period (to all of us who knew him well and were fond of him) Theodore Roosevelt seemed never to have grown up and as though he never would be more mature than one of Helen's babies. He had all the attraction, for this reason, of an amusing and fascinating, but rather fractious child. He was, in consequence, an irresponsible father, taking his small boys on unconscionable long tramps through the woods, himself clad in thick stockings and knickerbockers; the children barelegged, showing next day the most pitiful scars from briars and welts from "poison ivy," for the Rhus toxicodendron grows plentifully at Oyster Bay. He preached stoicism to the little boys, himself always, however, wearing thick stockings in the woods. Our great statesman, Thomas B. Reed, who had taught him (in politics) all he knew, always spoke of him then as "my boy," and his immaturity at that time was attractive.

Boat Almost Upset.

"During this visit to Sagamore, on a warm July afternoon, Mr. Roosevelt took me out in a rowboat upon Oyster Bay—a performance that made me rather nervous, for he rowed as he did everything else, spasmodically and sometimes absentmindedly.

"He got to talking about his future, and was very much depressed. He said: 'I have done about all I can on the Police Board in New York. I can't stay much longer there. The "gang" wants me out of it, and if I can't do any more good work there I had better go out. I don't know what I shall do next. I have no future. I shall be the melancholy spec-

E. G. HIGGINBOTHAM HIT BY AUTO; DYING

Former Magistrate Struck by a Machine as He Starts to Cross Flatbush Ave.

THREE CHILDREN ARE KILLED

Two Boys Playing Ball and a Little Girl Hurrying Home Run Down in Streets.

E. Gaston Higginbotham, a former Magistrate of Brooklyn, is in the Seney Hospital, Brooklyn, suffering from concussion of the brain and internal injuries as the result of an automobile accident at Flatbush and Seventh Avenues last night.

The former Magistrate was attempting to cross Flatbush Avenue, according to witnesses, when an automobile owned and driven by Stanley W. Smith of 1,701 Albemarle Road, Brooklyn, coming down the steep grade which extends from Prospect Park to Atlantic Avenue, struck him in the side. According to witnesses Mr. Higginbotham did not appear to have seen the automobile approaching. Mr. Higginbotham was thrown fully twenty feet, landing on his head and rolling into the gutter.

Mr. Smith, as soon as he could get his car under control, turned around, picked up the injured man, and rushed him to Seney Hospital, where Dr. Ackerman, after an examination, said that there was little hope of recovery. Mr. Higginbotham did not regain consciousness, and his freinds and relatives were summoned to the hospital.

Probably no Magistrate in New York has been the subject of more newspaper articles because of legal proceedings against him and of occurrences in his court. He was a Magistrate for nine years, serving most of that time in the Bedford Avenue Court. On Nov. 22, 1910, he resigned.

In the Surrogate's Court of Brooklyn he had his first trouble when his sister complained of the manner in which he had administered his mother's estate. In July, 1906, the Magistrate narrowly escaped arrest on an order of Judge Dike for neglect of duty and contempt.

The proceedings were brought by a lawyer who had been trying to appeal from a decision of Higginbotham against three of the lawyer's clients and had been trying for a year to get a certified copy of the Magistrate's papers in the case. The Magistrate was ordered to show cause before Judge Dike why he should not furnish the copy, but he made no appearance. Judge Dike ordered an attachment against the Magistrate and fixed bail at $100, and Higginbotham then furnished the required certified copy.

A warrant for the arrest of the Magistrate was issued by Surrogate Ketcham in the Summer of 1909, directing that he be committed to jail unless he agreed to turn over about $300 which he was ordered to pay Eli P. Moniot as administrator of Annie L. Moniot. The Magistrate was one of the executors of the estate. This warrant was never served, because Higginbotham could not be found until after he had a chance to make the payment.

In the Fall of 1910 Magistrate Higginbotham was arrested on a charge of assault made against him by Mary Hickey of 99 Bedford Avenue. The girl accused the Magistrate of attacking her while she was in his private office. He was acquitted. Mr. Higginbotham is 43 years old and lives at 49 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn.

THREE CHILDREN KILLED.

Autos Hit Two Boys Playing Ball and a Little Girl Hurrying Home.

Three children—Martin Dunn, 7 years old of 1,139 Second Avenue; Lizzie Canovari, 10 years old, of 23 Hudson Street, and Joseph Maccio, 8 years old, of 3,115 Willow Lane, the Bronx—were killed by automobiles in the streets of New York yesterday.

The killing of Martin Dunn was the last of a series of misfortunes for his family recently. Two months ago his father, Michael Dunn, a hack driver, was stabbed in a fight on Sixth Avenue, near Forty-third Street, and has been ill at his home. A few weeks ago, his brother, John Dunn, a chauffeur, had his wrist broken, and this has kept him out of work. On Tuesday, the child's mother, Margaret Dunn, was taken to Bellevue Hospital dying of spinal meningitis. His sister, Mary Dunn, suffers from heart disease and collapsed on hearing of her little brother's death. It was feared last night that the shock would kill her.

Miss Dunn had given her brother a penny to buy an apple a few moments before the accident, and he had run down into the street. On the way to the corner fruit stand he ran into the street to pick up a baseball which had gone by one of a group of young men playing. As he did so an automobile owned by Mrs. Buchanan Schley, Jr., of Douglaston Manor, L. I., wife of a broker at 15 William Street, ran him down and inflicted injuries from which he died on the operating table of Flower Hospital. Oscar Waiden, the chauffeur, was not arrested, as witnesses said he was not at fault. Mrs. Schley was not in the car at the time.

Lizzie Canovari was killed hurrying across Hudson Street on her way home from school to prepare her father's evening meal. Her mother has been ill for some time, and little Lizzie acted as housekeeper for her father, Andrew Canovari, a carpenter. He was coming home at the time she was run down, and stopped before the store where she had been taken to inquire what had caused a crowd to gather. When he saw that it was his daughter that had been killed he fainted.

The automobile which ran her down was owned by Charles W. Peckworth, a contractor of 631 Hudson Street, who lives at 44 Fairview Avenue, Jersey City. It was operated by Walter Eisenbaum, a chauffeur, of 81 Barrow Street.

Joseph Maccio, the son of a contractor of Willow Lane, Throgs Neck, was playing ball with several companions at Eastern Boulevard and Dayton Avenue yesterday afternoon, and ran before an automobile owned and driven by Gottlieb Benziger, a provision merchant of 462 East 155th Street.

Benzinger stopped his car, put the boy in the tonneau between his wife and five-year-old daughter, and raced to Fordham Hospital, six miles away. There it was found that the boy had suffered internal injuries. He lived only a few hours.

TAFT FIGHTS TO HOLD PARTY TO SAFE LINES

Believes Roosevelt Radicalism, if Adopted, Means the Wrecking of Republicanism.

WORKING ON OHIO PLATFORM

Wants It to Make Clear the Issue Between Him and the Colonel—Hopes to Control at Columbus.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—President Taft spent a large part of this afternoon in drafting the platform to be proposed by his supporters at the Ohio State Convention on Tuesday. For this purpose he had summoned Warren G. Harding, the Taft candidate for Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, and Mr. Harding arrived at the White House at 3 o'clock. He was closeted with the President all the rest of the afternoon and spent a large part of this evening with him.

Before going to the White House Mr. Harding, who was formerly Lieutenant Governor of Ohio and was defeated as a Republican candidate for Governor in the last election, went to the Capitol and discussed the platform with Senator Burton, who was already familiar with the President's ideas, and who is the Taft candidate for temporary Chairman. Either Burton or Harding will make the nominating speech for Taft in the National Convention.

The President places great importance on the adoption of his platform at Columbus. Whether nominated or defeated, he is desirous of placing clearly before the people the difference in the doctrines advocated by himself and Theodore Roosevelt. He wants to bring before them the issue between the two men in the plainest possible way; and he wishes his own State to appear as the proponent of his views. If, after understanding clearly the full meaning of the doctrines for which Roosevelt stands and those for which he stands, they deliberately choose the Roosevelt doctrines, the President feels that his own conscience is clear. But he does not want them to vote on a befogged idea of the issues. He believes that on him rests the responsibility of preventing Roosevelt from wrecking the Republican Party.

The Danger to the Party.

When he uses the word "wrecking" he does not use it as generally used in the sense of a defeat at the polls. He means that Roosevelt will wreck the party by warping it away from its historic purpose and its reason for being; that he will change it from what it now is, a party of conservatism and moderate liberalism, to a party of extreme radicalism. It is that, and not a temporary defeat at the polls in November, which Mr. Taft means when he speaks of the "wrecking" of the party.

It is for this reason that the President has been willing to endanger his prestige by meeting Roosevelt in a rough-and-tumble fight on the stump, and this is why his equanimity remains unruffled when he is defeated in State after State. He is not fighting so much for himself as for the salvation of the Republican Party. Though Mr. Taft has never said so, even to his most intimate friends, they believe from his attitude that he would not regard Roosevelt's defeat at the November polls as being so great a calamity as his election for the reason that the wrecking of the party would be thereby postponed.

For these reasons the President lays great stress on the adoption next Tuesday of the Taft platform, so that his own State can lay down the issue between orderly and moderate liberalism and extreme radicalism. On the Ohio platform, if it proves to be the Taft platform, the President will base the platform which he wishes the National Convention to adopt.

Mr. Harding then denied that he was here to discuss the platform, and actually tried to explain his long journey and his conference of hours with the President by saying that he had come here to tell Mr. Taft that he could count on the State Convention being for him. No one smiled when Mr. Harding said this, and the ex-Lieutenant Governor himself was as grave as an owl.

In fact Mr. Harding insisted that he came here to tell the President that Ohio is for him, that he will get the six delegates at large, and that there will be 415 delegates "sure for the President" in the Ohio Convention next Monday. "This," said Mr. Harding, "is forty more than enough to control the organization for President Taft."

Mr. Harding left at 6:45 o'clock for Columbus.

Convention Contest Close.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 31.—Preparation for the struggle next Monday in the Republican State Convention for the six delegates at large to the Chicago Convention is going forward feverishly in both the Taft and Roosevelt camps. While both sides are claiming control, it can be said on excellent authority that the contest is close, the difference being far less than fifty votes, and very likely half that amount. The air is filled with talk of compromise in the interest of the State ticket.

This is the most difficult of the obstacles which President Taft has to encounter. President Taft has sent word that he will not accept any compromise which means the loss of delegates to the National Convention. To-day his telegram to National Committeeman Arthur I. Vorys, demanding a "last ditch" battle for the delegates at large was received, and to-night there was a conference in which Vorys, State Chairman Lewis C. Laylin, and Assistant Secretary of the Interior Carmi A. Thompson took part.

The Roosevelt Stand.

Walter F. Brown, Roosevelt's manager, issued the following statement to-night:

"The President's telegram to Mr. Vorys raises the issue squarely: Shall the delegates to the Republican State Convention represent the Republicans of Ohio and select Roosevelt delegates at large, or shall they misrepresent the Republicans of Ohio and select Taft delegates at large?

"The total vote cast in the Republican Presidential primary was 299,741, a fraction less than 80 per cent. of the vote cast for Harding for Governor in 1910. Of this La Follette delegates received 15,570, Taft delegates 118,362, Roosevelt delegates 165,809. Roosevelt's plurality over Taft was 47,447. Roosevelt's majority over Taft and La Follette combined, 31,077. These figures are the aggregate of the official vote cast for the leading Roosevelt, Taft, and La Follette candidates for delegate in each county.

"Roosevelt carried sixty-nine of the eighty-eight counties in Ohio, while Taft carried only nineteen.

"The demand of the President that Federal officeholders and others who have been supporting him, either for patronage received or expected, disregard the clearly expressed will of Ohio Republicans and by road-roller methods secure him six delegates at large from Ohio is manifestly prompted by an utter disregard for the Republican Party in Ohio. To insist that Federal officeholders at Cleveland cast the vote of Cuyahoga County in the State Convention for Taft delegates at large, in the face of the fact that the President ran 8,583 votes behind Roosevelt and 335 behind La Follette, is monstrous."

Englishman Urges That It Be Placed Beside Stephenson's Rocket.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, June 1.—The writer of a letter in The Daily Mail suggests that now is the time for the British nation to obtain one of the original Wright biplanes at comparatively moderate cost. He points out that at the South Kensington Museum is George Stephenson's locomotive, the Rocket, a symbol of the great world transport revolution of the nineteenth century, and adds:

"Why not also possess ourselves of a national memorial to a great man by buying at once an example of the great transport invention of the twentieth century?"

BATAVIA, N. Y., May 31.—Dr. L. H. Wellman, the aged New York physician who was terribly burned by a gas explosion in his room at a local hotel last Monday, died to-day.

The Coroner has been unable to communicate with Dr. Wellman's daughter, Mrs. Emily Wilkins, who lives on a farm between Geneva and Waterloo.

BOY LOSES HIS MEMORY.

Can't Remember How He Got Here, Delaware Youth Says.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night a boy, who described himself as William Simonson, 16 years old, of Farmington, Del., walked into the East Thirty-fifth Street station, and was taken later to Bellevue Hospital, suffering, according to physicians, from loss of memory. The police on questioning the lad were informed by him that he had been in this city two days, and did not remember where he had slept or eaten during that time, or how he had come from Farmington to New York.

"A man—I don't remember who he was—told me to come here," he is quoted by the police. A moment his face brightened as he added: "Oh, yes, I came in a car."

KILLED BY JEALOUS WOMAN.

Mrs. Judd Shot Without Warning on Train in Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 31.—Mrs. Jessie Barnes shot and killed Mrs. W. W. Judd this evening at Buffalo Valley, Tenn., as the result of attentions the dead woman is charged with having paid to Mrs. Barnes's husband.

The shooting took place on the platform of a passenger car in a train which arrived at Buffalo Valley from Nashville shortly after 6 o'clock this evening. Mrs. Judd had been to Nashville and was returning to her home at Dauble Springs, Tenn., where she owns a hotel.

Mr. Barnes was in Nashville at the time of the shooting.

CRUISER TO STUDY ICEBERGS

Chester Sails To-morrow to Relieve the Birmingham on Patrol Work.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—An exhaustive study of the iceberg problem with a view to finding a practical method for determining the proximity of icebergs to ships will be conducted by three officers of the United States Bureau of Standards, who will leave Philadelphia on the scout cruiser Chester next Sunday.

The Chester has been designated by Secretary Meyer of the navy to relieve her sister ship, the Birmingham, which began the patrol two weeks ago.

The officials will take a large number of delicate instruments for measuring the temperature and other conditions of the water in the vicinity of icebergs.

WRECK WARNING BY DOCTOR.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—Psychic epilepsy, a disease which makes locomotive engineers temporarily oblivious to their surroundings and unconsciously endanger the lives of travelers and their own, sometimes for more than ten seconds, is a danger against which medical examiners of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad were warned to-day by a man who has given great study to the peculiar ailment.

The warning was sounded by Dr. Irving Spear of Baltimore, one of the most prominent of the surgeons in charge of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad hospital in that city, who delivered an address before the convention of the Baltimore & Ohio Association of Railway Surgeons in the Aldine Hotel here.

GETS $50 FOR LOST HAT.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 31.—John Houston, a New York manufacturer, and two friends made a shop girl's heart glad to-day by giving her $50 with which to buy a hat. She paid the full amount for the hat, then wept with the joy of its possession.

"I've always wanted one like that," she sobbed, "but I never believed I would have one."

Lulu Church was the girl, and she lost her hat in front of a big hotel while she was hurrying to her work. Afraid she would be docked for being late she did not stop. An automobile crushed the hat. She obtained permission from the manager of the store to go back and find it, and was met in front of the hotel by Houston, Harry S. Dewey, a wealthy Mexican lumber operator, and George O'Brien of San Francisco. Houston held the tattered remains of the hat. She asked for it. Houston gave it to her with a $20 bill. Dewey chipped in $15 and O'Brien a like amount.

WAITERS OUT IN 17 MORE PLACES

BEGIN AT BREAKFAST TIME

Workers Out Number 4,000, Says Union—Hotel Men to Form Employment Bureau.

HAYWOOD STIRS STRIKERS

Reappearance of Negroes Feared by White Waiters—Aren't Worrying, Proprietors Declare.

The war of the waiters was waged furiously yesterday from early morning till night—from breakfast time until the dinner hour—and when the striking hotel workers gathered last evening to recount their victories at a mass meeting their leaders could report that seventeen hotels and restaurants had been wounded during the day. Some of the blows struck were so slight as hardly to be felt. Some were smashing blows. Some were parried and some were foreseen and invited.

When the battling was over the union leaders felt immensely pleased, but the hotel proprietors showed not the slightest trace of weakening, and most of them seemed just a little more determined than ever that the International Hotel Workers' Union should not run the hotel business in the City of New York. Some thirty-five of the proprietors gathered late yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Hotel Men's Association and came out breathing defiance. Speaking for his colleagues, President Reed, who runs the Park Avenue Hotel, declared that the members of the association would close the doors of their hotels entirely before they would open them to the union.

Mr. Reed said that the same signs of unrest cropping out in the present union activities in this city were manifesting themselves in all the big cities of the East, and that the hotel men are reaching out to help and advise one another. The most important step taken yesterday by the association was a decision to establish its own employment bureau to supply servants to all its 110 members. This step was taken not so much in the belief that it will settle the present outbreak, but that the employment agency may be in readiness to meet the same situation more easily if it arises again next Fall at the beginning of the heavy season. And the decision was no sooner reached than word was telegraphed to Boston, and Manager Damon of the Thorndyke Hotel there sent back word that the Boston hotels would put the same system into operation.

Where the Men Went Out.

The hotels and restaurants hit yesterday and the various casualties were:

Hotel Marie Antoinette, 100 waiters and cooks.
Great Northern Hotel, 50 waiters and cooks.
Sherry's, 140 waiters and cooks and assistants.
Calumet Club, 3 waiters.
Hotel Seville, 12 cooks and waiters.
Vanderbilt Hotel, 60 waiters.
Hotel Martinique, 90 waiters and cooks.
Hotel Manhattan, 15 kitchen assistants.
Hotel Hermitage, 42 cooks and waiters.
Park Avenue Hotel, 20 cooks.
Herald Square Hotel, 40 waiters and cooks.
Hof Brau Haus, 12 cooks and waiters.
Hotel Majestic, 60 cooks and waiters.
Shanley's, Times Square, 50 waiters and cooks.
Cafe Beaux Arts, 15 waiters.
Bustanoby's, 35 waiters.

While the hotel proprietors squared their jaws yesterday and declared th[illegible] they would not and could not give in [illegible] the question of unionizing their establis[illegible]ments the officials of the Internationa[illegible] Hotel Workers' Union gave every indication of confidence and determinatio[illegible] to fight long and far and wide.

"Negotiations are now in progress," said Secretary Blochlinger of the union, "to bring about an affiliation between the International Hotel Workers' Union and the American Federation of Labor. Such an affiliation will mean that a sympathetic strike of all hotel trades unions will result if our demands are not met. It would call out the engineers, firemen, clerks, musicians, mechanics, electricians, upholsterers, and cabinet makers. This would be one of the largest strikes in the world's history and would be a move on which the hotel men have not counted. It would mean the complete demoralization of the hotel system in this country in the event of our demands not being met."

Mr. Blochlinger gave forth this last prediction with no little satisfaction, and backed up the National character of the possibilities by saying that organization is on in all parts of the country, and that 11,000 applications for membership have come in by mail from waiters outside of New York City. Leader Eltser was not so willing to talk on the question of an affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, and therefore did not have to explain the inconsistency of the presence on the list of speakers at the mass meeting last evening of a leader from the Industrial Workers of the World. The warring waiters would have to choose between these two affiliations.

Negro Invasion Worries Strikers.

The waiters are not in the least pleased by the prospect of negroes taking their pet places in the hotels of New York. The news that Manager Sterry of the Plaza had imported a crew from hotels in the South was greeted as a sinister and ugly move.

The union arranged promptly to meet it, and yesterday opened a special bureau for the enrollment of negro waiters and cooks. Furthermore, the union said with great scorn, it had been in touch with the Colored Waiters' Association, numbering 9,000, and had been assured by it that the aims of the two organizations are entirely sympathetic, and that if an army of negroes should be drafted to meet the occasion, they would be converted to union men in no time and drawn out into the growing ranks of the strikers. These number close to 4,000 already, according to the somewhat enthusiastic count kept by Mr. Blochlinger, and represent less than a third of the striking strength that he can now count upon.

Although the strike leaders thus lightly throw off the worry of negro labor in the hotels, the waiters themselves are restless in their fear of it, and there is hardly a hotel proprietor in this city who is not looking to the South and meditating on the question of changing the complexion of his staff. Already the Plaza has a cluster of negroes working on the upper floors, and the Majestic has more than sixty expert negro waiters up its sleeve.

Some of the managers prefer not to discuss the probability of making this change, but Manager Reed of the Park Avenue Hotel said last evening that in former years the hotels of Florida, the Carolinas, and Virginia used to turn loose a very hoard of negro waiters, who would turn their faces northward toward the beginning of June, bound for Saratoga and the big hotels there. He said that these are now coming into town and that it would not be hard to get 2,000 of them in twenty-four hours. Furthermore, negro waiters of long experience have been flooding the proprietors with telegrams offering to descend on New York and confident of breaking any strike that Europeans might attempt in this city. And the proprietors feel that the solution lies that way if the union men keep up their present attitude. In more than one quarter yesterday it was predicted that once New York has given the negro waiter a good trial the European labor would not be welcomed back.

"There are two negro waiters available for every white waiter," said Manager Johnston of the Hotel Majestic, "and I think the hotel men here will be forced to use them if those on strike do not see the error of their ways."

Clean Sweep at Sherry's.

Several of the walkouts on yesterday's calendar were as complete as the union leaders could possibly have wished. There was a clean sweep at Mouquin's. There were clean sweeps at Sherry's and the Herald Square.

At 7:15 o'clock last night Manager Schroeder was looking contentedly over the crowded tables at Mouquin's. The now familiar whistle was blown from somewhere, there was a cry of encouragement from the dark street outside, and in two minutes the restaurant had lost 150 of its employes. The chef, the cashier and the headwaiter gazed at each other in surprise as waiters, bell boys, 'buses, barkeepers, and all rushed to the street and the arms of their comrades in rebellion.

"They couldn't have gone quicker if there had been a fire alarm," said Mr. Schroeder, who saw that some of his guests finished out their meal as best they could, and then proceeded to close the restaurant. As he left the establishment he said that he had no idea whether it would be able to serve meals to-day.

Sherry's walkout was quite as thorough. It came at noon, and Louis Sherry smilingly bowed out 140 of the employes of his establishment, leaving just enough to serve luncheon to some of the regular patrons of the restaurant. The head chefs were left in the kitchen, and by dint of a new co-operation scheme between them a luncheon was served for a few. Mr. Sherry took the walk-out with an equanimity that would have made the union leaders sad. He actually chuckled, and confidingly whispered to solicitous inquirers:

"It would be a godsend if I could close the place until September. If they would just force me to it I would be money in pocket by Fall."

And this attitude was taken by not a few of the employers yesterday who are filled with a surprised gratitude that the waiters should have selected this particular season in the year for the attack upon the dining rooms. Mr. Reed explained that the patronage for most hotels falls off considerably more than 50 per cent. and that many of the proprietors would welcome an excuse to contract their dining room accommodations. Mr. Sherry's equanimity was equaled only by the serenity of Mr. Rector, whose hotel in Times Square has served no meals since the strike on Wednesday night.

"I don't care, you know," says Mr. Rector.

Mr. Sherry said that there would be no difficulty in getting help, but that it might be difficult to get just the right kind.

Didn't Wait for a Strike.

Several of the walk-outs yesterday hardly deserved the name. The Manhattan lost fifteen of its cooks, but it was after the manager had detected their intention of leaving and speeded them on their way. Mr. Reed, at the Park Avenue, preferred to say that he had simply "changed his kitchen," for he called for a declaration of unionism there, and it was no sooner made than he had a new kitchen force on its way below stairs to take charge. The strikers were replaced before they departed.

Manager Carroll of The Hermitage executed the same manoeuvre, and with great success, anticipating the strike by bidding the unionists farewell and then supplying their places as best he could with men from the Flanders. His men had asked him to cast out the two non-union workers at his tables. He spurned their suggestion.

"And so we've left the Hermitage," they reported at headquarters a half hour later.

"I've fired my men," said Mr. Carroll, gayly.

T. J. Shanley, Sr., was no less anticipatory. He collected the entire staff of Shanley's uptown restaurant and looked it over.

"You're going to strike, aren't you?" he asked, and then noted down those who dodged the question. They amounted to about fifty from the dining room and kitchens, and Mr. Sharley hustled them all out of his place in less time than it took him to tell about it afterward.

"They were all Latins and Greeks," he said with great scorn. "Every English-speaking waiter and cook stayed with me, and you can see that we are serving all right."

His tables were recruited by some men from the downtown Shanley's.

Manager Chandler of the Hotel Martinique was another who took a leaf from the book of Mr. Boldt of the Waldorf by drawing the fire of his strike before it was quite ready. He, too, avoided the whistle, a sound painful to the hotel man's ears, by calling his men before him in the ballroom at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Those who cared more for the union than the Martinique, he said, had better leave at once. Sixty of the eighty waiters rather thought they cared more for the union and went. The cooks declared with emotion that they would stick by the hotel, and they did until the strike call came at 7:15 o'clock, when they choked down their feelings and hurried up to strike headquarters. Manager Chandler was shocked, but not surprised, in proof of which he produced from somewhere upstairs a collection of thirty-six cooks that he had had in hiding for some hours and which he had apparently forgotten to dismiss on the strength of his old cooks' protestations. Meanwhile the cameo room had been converted into a tea room, and the drinks were served by bellboys, who made the success of their lives as much-embarrassed waiters. The strike at the Beaux Arts left Louis Bustanoby amused, for only fifteen waiters deserted him.

The Hotel Vanderbilt felt the hand of the union at noon. The dining-room force, with a few exceptions, withdrew in a body. The kitchen was loyal, and the management continued to serve their patrons steadily. It is one of the annoying features of the strike from the leaders' point of view that in so many cases when the union calls out all the force the hotels go right on serving dinners, bringing waiters from roof and cellar and from around the corner. The Vanderbilt had a reserve force hidden away, and by concentrating their efforts on the Della Robia dining room the managers were able to run things smoothly. The Great Northern and Marie Antoinette strikes were called at breakfast time. The Herald Square signal was given at 7:15 o'clock, and Manager Merritt closed the dining room.

The union leaders declare that they have reached partial understandings with Murray's restaurant in Forty-second Street, and that Delmonico's is ready to recognize the union, so that they do not fear that they will have to "close" either of those establishments. They also announced a signed agreement with the Carleton Terrace restaurant.

Many hotel men have expressed themselves as quite certain that in a few days the strike will all be over, for the reason that waiters are "unskilled labor," and their places may easily be filled. The waiters say that this is quite the reverse of the facts, and contend that a high-grade Manhattan waiter is an expert in his line. Dining room workers are graded as waiters, serving the food direct to the guest; bus boys, or omnibuses, who arrange the preliminary table outfit, place ice water, bread and butter, and silver on the table, and remove dishes at a change of course, and commis, or apprentice waiters, whose work is similar to the bus boy. Commis is a French word, and the system of apprentice waiter obtains in but three places in New York City, Louis Martin's, the Ritz-Carlton, and the Hotel Knickerbocker. At all other hotels and restaurants in the city the bus boy supplements the waiter's work.

The "revenant" system complained of by the striking waiters is likewise a French idea. The word comes from the French verb "revenir," meaning "to come back." A waiter's "trick" or watch is a complicated affair in most hotels, and when to his long watch is added a "revenant," or extra period of labor, he complains. A typical long watch at a well-known hotel is from 6 A. M. to noon and from 6 P. M. until the house closes. On the day following the long watch comes a short watch, which runs from noon to 6 P. M. If a waiter on a long watch is called upon to serve tea from 4 to 6 P. M. as a "revenant" he is working practically eighteen hours a day. The schedule cited is taken from one in actual operation.

One serious phase of the strike situation which developed early in the strike was the question of floor waiters. Each big hotel maintains, with the aid of a dumbwaiter, a complete floor service in charge of a number of waiters. Several applications have been made since the strike for the position of floor waiter, and in two instances known crooks applied for jobs. Experienced hotel men know what it would mean to have such people in their houses, and the first thing that was done was to put the faithful waiters who did not strike on these floor jobs. This precautionary step has been taken in all of the houses affected.

While the hotels are running manfully, forbearance is asked and perfection is not expected of some of the recruits to the napkin. Already the corridors are filled with anecdotes of the strike. Some difficulty, for example, in interpreting the menus is afflicting the new waiters. One chief of pantry grew greatly excited in convincing one of the strikebreakers that a certain elaborate order given to him just meant plain "ham and spinach." The guest of one hotel struggling under the temporary régime, was greatly diverted by having his waiter ask him if he would have his morning soft-boiled eggs "shucked." As for the intricate highways and byways of the hotel several waiters on their way to the kitchen have wandered from the pantry into the engine room of another and were not recaptured until tracers were sent out for them.

Mrs. Stokes at Mass Meeting.

The striking waiters held a mass meeting last night in the Amsterdam Opera House in West 44th Street. The meeting was noisy, but perfect order prevailed. The auditorium of the house was packed to the doors, men stood in rows three deep against the walls, and 3,000 persons clamored in vain outside the hall for admittance. There were many women in the audience. An overflow meeting was held in another hall of the building. The principal speakers were William Haywood of the Industrial Workers of the World and Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes. Both speakers advised the waiters to work to strengthen their organization. Mr. Haywood said he was not in the habit of addressing such meetings unless there was a fight on hand.

"Looking over the situation," he said, "it appears to me that you have won the fight. Though you are not back to work you have at least compelled every hotel owner to recognize the union. There is not a member of the Hotel Men's Association nor a guest but realizes you have a union now. Instead of a twelve-course dinner they are now eating bread and milk"

He advised the waiters to strengthen themselves further by enlisting in their organization all the hotel employes.

"Then you will have," he said, "one big organization, and with such an organization you can help in time of need other labor organizations in the country. There is no reason why every man and woman in the United States should not belong to one big union, and the time will come when this will be a fact.

"Your success depends absolutely on solidarity on your part—stick together. If the textile workers stood out for ten weeks, you should be able to do so, but you won't have to, because the rich have got to be fed, and as they have not been taught how to feed themselves they must depend on you.

"They threaten you with a blacklist. They are going to introduce, I hear, college boys, with their yells, in the dining room. Can you imagine college boys, with their 'Rah! 'Rah! 'Rah! serving dinner? They are not only to import college boys, but fellow-workers from the Bowery. You know what a Bowery waiter will do when a swell guy explains that his meat is too rare. He will pour it down his neck. Again, they threaten to bring colored men here from the South, and since the war, and long before the war, the colored man has enjoyed better conditions than the New York worker.

"Reduce your hours of work and then there will be no scabs, for then there will be work for everybody, and organize every worker in the hotel, and the hotels will have to employ you or they won't be able to feed the rich, who will have to go to the seashore and dig clams."

Mrs. Stokes told of the vast amount of labor which went into the building of a hotel, and then of the army of men and women employed in its service when completed. She advised the waiters to unionize every employe in the hotel, from chambermaids to chauffeurs.

"Why do your industrial masters fear your organization?" she asked. "Why are they anxious to grant your demands, but not give recognition to your union? It is because they hope to get you back, and then in a few months take away from you the things they have granted to you.

"I want to make an appeal to the police. They, too, are workers and must stand by the workers, and they should give us fair play. You waiters must show them that you do not go out to break heads, and do not countenance violence, and you must help the police to keep the peace, so that they won't have to break heads."

NO HELP FROM PHILADELPHIA.

Won't Aid Hotel Men Here, Says Negro Waiters' Organization.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 31.—A request of New York hotel proprietors received at the headquarters of the Public Waiters' Beneficial Association, 1,515 Lombard Street, for negro waiters to fill the places left vacant in that city by the strike, is likely to be in vain. It was said to-day that the organization would not assist in breaking the strike.

A member of the Board of Managers said that the request had not been considered at all. He said the New York hotel men had persistently refused to employ negro help in the past, and the local association did not feel inclined to give assistance when their white waiters failed them. There are said to be nearly 200 members of the association available for service, and about 500 other negro waiters in the city not belonging to the organization. The manager stated that, while he was unable to speak for the outsiders, he was positive that none of the association members would go to New York.

FOSS SEEKS PRESIDENCY.

Quoted as Saying He Believes He Can Be Elected.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 31.—The American this afternoon publishes the following:

"Gov. Foss is confident he will be nominated at Baltimore and will be elected President, regardless of whom the Republicans may choose.

"David I. Walsh, who was Gov. Foss's running mate on the Democratic State ticket last Fall, called on the Governor at the State House to-day and discussed the political situation with him.

"'How are things going, Governor?' asked Walsh.

"The Governor replied: 'Fine. Nothing to it. I am going to be nominated and elected. The high cost of living and a lower tariff will be the chief issues in the coming campaign. My views on these matters are well known throughout the country.

"'On these issues I have twice carried Massachusetts, considered to be a rock-ribbed Republican State. I have also carried a supposedly strong Republican district for Congress on those same issues. I believe that I can be elected President on them.'"

RHODE ISLAND FAVORS CLARK

Early Primary Returns Indicate He Is Leading Wilson 3 to 1.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 31.—Returns of the Democratic Presidential preference primary indicate that Champ Clark is leading over Gov. Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey 3 to 1. In twenty-eight out of the seventy-six election districts Clark had 984; Wilson, 321; Harmon, 59. The same districts for National Committeeman, a contest which attracted more attention than the preference voting, gave George W. Green (the present incumbent) 859 and Congressman George P. O'Shaughnessy 657.

DENIES REFUSING TICKETS TO COLONEL

Only Denied Roosevelt Committee's Request as He Did Others, Says Col. New.

ILLINOIS MEN START

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 31.—Col. Harry S. New, Chairman of the Convention Arrangements Committee, declared to-day that Senator Joseph M. Dixon, Col. Roosevelt's National manager, was a "pettifogging falsifier" in speaking of the latter's request for tickets for the National Republican Convention.

In a detailed statement Col. New explains why he refused to allot 250 convention tickets to Senator Dixon, and says Mr. Dixon's version of the request, which represented Col. New's refusal as a snub to Roosevelt, misstated the facts. Col. New says he did not use the "short and ugly word," but expressed the idea in more syllables. With this counter to Mr. Dixon's attack on the Indiana Taft leader, the last stage of the Taft-Roosevelt battle is regarded as officially opened.

Briefly, Col. New declared he had not refused to give Theodore Roosevelt tickets to the convention for his own use or for that of his friends and family, as Senator Dixon alleged.

"I refused a demand from the Roosevelt National Committee for 250 tickets, just as I had refused a request from the Taft committee, headed by W. B. McKinley, for a smaller number of tickets," said Col. New.

"I would gladly meet any reasonable request from Mr. Roosevelt or from any representative for tickets for himself and family or friends. President Taft has been given 150 tickets as President, but not a ticket as a candidate."

Col. New added that the committee would follow the system of seat distribution in vogue four years ago and previously in handling applications for seats at this year's convention. Col. New said no arbitrary number of seats would be given to any individual National Committeeman, but that each committeeman would receive an equitable proportion of available seats.

"No committeeman can get all the seats that he wants," said Col. New, "but with the limited number at our command each will get a just proportion. These will go out in the customary manner that has obtained at Republican National Conventions for a good many years."

Considerable interest in Chicago to-day centred in the departure for Oyster Bay of several of the fifty-eight Illinois delegates to the National Convention to meet Col. Roosevelt to-morrow. The party includes R. R. McCormick, Chicago; Henry M. Johnson, Ottawa; J. T. Williams, Sterling; Frank G. Allen, Moline; Fred E. Sterling, Rockford; W. J. Graham, Aledo; E. J. Hawbraker, Monticello; John L. Hamilton, Hoopeston; J. D. Barker, Vienna, and William H. Weber, Blue Island. Alexander H. Revell, Chairman of the Western Department of the National Roosevelt Committee; Oscar Heble, and Walter Schmidt, all of Chicago, accompanied them.

At the headquarters of the Republican National Committee contests from the following districts were added to-day to the list of 204 contests made public yesterday, making a total of 226 contested seats in the convention to date:

State.	Districts.	Seats contested.
Missouri,	Thirteenth	2
North Carolina,	Ninth	2
Tennessee,	Ninth	2
Texas,	at large and 5th, 9th and 14th	14
Alaska,	at large	2
Total		22

Bainbridge Colby of New York has been selected to make the arguments for the Roosevelt contestants before the National Committee. Mr. Colby is the attorney for George W. Perkins, and is identified with the Harvester interests. He has been at work for some time in Washington on the preparation of his arguments. Ormsby McHarg is now in the East consulting with him.

ROOSEVELT TO BROWN.

Any Concession to Taft in Ohio, He Says, Would Be Treachery.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., May 31.—After a day's work at The Outlook office Col. Roosevelt got back to Sagamore Hill late this afternoon, intending to remain here, he said, until after the National Convention. He has abandoned all plans for a trip to South Dakota or any other State where delegates are yet to be selected, confident that he has the battle won.

As a result of the determined fight that all the recent dispatches indicate the Taft supporters are to put up there was a renewed report to-day that Roosevelt would make an eleventh hour dash to Chicago and would personally direct his fight there on the eve of the convention. The Southern delegates, it was said, are not getting aboard the Roosevelt band wagon as he had hoped they would, and his managers are worrying. Roosevelt was told about these reports to-day, and again said that he had no intention of going to Chicago.

On the other hand, he again refused to make any flat denial that he would go, and after the interview those who heard him were far from convinced that he had definitely decided not to do so.

"I will not go unless," and then hesitated for a moment, "unless the most extraordinary circumstances should arise. I have no intention of going at present; but, of course, I may alter my plans."

And that is just what is worrying the Taft supporters now, it is said. They are openly stating that Roosevelt is insincere in his declaration that he will not be in Chicago when the fight grows warm.

In regard to a report that he had already engaged rooms at a Chicago hotel, the Colonel replied: "It's a pure fake."

Col. Roosevelt calls his Gettysburg reception "one of the most gratifying of my experience." His attention was called to a report that there was talk of a compromise in Ohio. He immediately sent a telegram to Walter F. Brown, his leader in Ohio, in which he said:

"Any attempt to give Mr. Taft a single delegate at large would mean to sanction a deliberate effort to defraud the people and by a trick nullify their expressed will. Mr. Taft has in moral and equity no claims whatever to a single delegate at large from Ohio, and we cannot for one moment afford to consider such an effort to defraud the people of their rights in this struggle for justice and for popular rule."

After repeating this point two or three times the Colonel closed by saying: "Any man who condones or approves such an act is condoning and approving treachery."

BRANDT'S RETURN DELAYED.

Warden of Clinton Prison Says He Awaits Word from Carmody.

Foulke E. Brandt, the former servant of Mortimer L. Schiff, who was sentenced to thirty years' imprisonment for assault and burglary, and who has been out of Clinton Prison since Feb. 12, is still in the Tombs awaiting the arrival of Warden Harry Kaiser from Dannemora, for transportation to his old quarters. Although the Appellate Division's order refusing Brandt a stay pending the hearing of the case by the Court of Appeals, was signed eight days ago, no attempt apparently has been made to carry out that order. District Attorney Arthur S. Hogue of Clinton County has declared that unwarranted influences are at work to keep Brandt from returning to the custody of Clinton Prison.

The Appellate Division's order was signed May 24 last. It remands the prisoner to the custody of District Attorney Hogue. The day after the order was entered, Thomas H. O'Brien and John Willet, the lawyers representing Mr. Hogue, served notice of the order on the Sheriff of New York County and on the Warden of the Tombs. They also telephoned to District Attorney Hogue and he, in turn, immediately notified Warden Kaiser and also Attorney General Carmody. On May 25, the lawyers representing Mr. Hogue, sent a certified copy of the Appellate Division's order to Warden Kaiser. Had he acted immediately, it is now argued by these lawyers, he should have arrived at the Tombs for his prisoner no later than last Monday.

Argument on Brandt's appeal from the decision of the Appellate Division, which reverses the decision of Justice Gerard sustaining a writ of habeas corpus for Brandt, will be heard in the Court of Appeals next Wednesday, it is expected. It is understood that District Attorney Hogue will use every effort to have Brandt sent to Dannemora before that time, and also in ascertaining the reasons why the Appellate Division's order was not immediately carried out by the Warden of the county of which he is the official prosecutor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 31.—Attorney General Carmody returned to Albany to-night after an absence of several days. He said that he did not know why Warden Kaiser of Dannemora had not taken Brandt back to the prison, but presumed he was waiting for orders. The Warden had not asked him for advice, he said, but if the Warden should fail within a reasonable time to go for the prisoner, then he would advise him to do so. He said there might be some reason that had not been made known to him. In any event, he said, the law would be obeyed.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., May 31.—Warden Kaiser of Clinton Prison said to-night that the papers ordering Brandt's return were served on him in regular form. He sent them to State Supt. Scott, and Scott turned them over to Attorney General Carmody, who has Brandt's commitment. The Warden expects to hear officially from the Attorney General to-morrow and then will immediately send an officer to get Brandt.

erties of foreigners which might still be menaced.

"Last night this Government received two dispatches from the General in Chief of the armed forces of Cuba, directed to the President and the Secretary of the Government respectively. The first dispatch read:

To the President of the Republic:

I have just received a communication from the Governor of the province saying that he had received the following communication, signed by the Consul of the United States in this city:

"I have the honor to inform you that the gunboat Paducah of the United States Navy will arrive at Daiquiri this morning for the purpose of protecting American interests there, which ae at pesent threatened, and to state that this act does not have any other purpose than the one indicated. I will appreciate it if you will please notify in writing Major Gen. Monteagudo, Commander-in-Chief of the military forces."

MONTEAGUDO.

The second dispatch read:

On the properties of the Spanish-American Iron Company there have been stationed for several days 170 men under the command of Major Marti, and to-day there have been sent to re-enforce the said forces three companies of infantry. On receipt of a cable from the Chief of the Naval Station of the United States at Guantanamo, which said: "It is my intention to land a force in Daiquiri for the protection of the interests, lives, and property of Americans if it becomes necessary and not with the object of intervening in Cuba."

To this I answered: "I cannot permit the landing of foreign troops without orders from my Government. The lives and property of the Americans in Daiquiri are well protected, as the Consul, who has just left this general headquarters, can inform you."

"The Government has sent the following dispatches relating to this matter:

To the Chief of the Naval Station of the United States, Guantanamo:

Our General in Chief of the forces at Santiago de Cuba informs me that he received from you a note stating your intention of interfering. At the same time he transmits the answer which he had sent you.

Tell me, if notwithstanding the effective protection of over 200 men, placed there to protect life and property, you believe it is necessary to disembark the troops of your Nation—something that I would lament very much, because no one more than I has had more interest in giving protection to the lives and property of foreigners? This endeavor has been so extreme that it is the reason why the operations against the enemy had been delayed until to-day, when they began and will be continued with all activity.

JOSE M. GOMEZ.

"The second dispatch read as follows:

You can consent to the landing of American troops for the protection of foreign properties.

Just as soon as the American troops occupy a property retire the Cuban forces from it that they may pursue the rebels.

The President is extremely satisfied with your plan of operations and expects great results.

"At 12:15 to-day the Secretary of the Government received a dispatch from the Governor of Oriente Province confirming the fact, transmitted by the General in Chief of the army, that American troops had effected a landing at 10:30 A. M.

"Congress is now informed with proper faithfulness that all the antecedents which have determined the attitude of the Government up to the present moment, and I believe that by the prudence and serenity of its determination very grave, and perhaps disastrous, consequences have been averted for the nation.

"Notwithstanding this, the Congress of the republic shall decide if the acts of the Government merit its approbation, which acts, I believe, were inspired by the highest duties of patriotism."

HAVANA, May 31.—Interest in Havana to-day centred on the question whether the United States gunboat Paducah had landed or would land marines at Daiquiri to protect the property of the Spanish-American Iron Company. This overshadowed completely all other reported events from the theatre of hostilities.

The American Legation to-day received advices from Daiquiri that the plant of the iron company had been attacked, but that its assailants were held in check by forty guards, who were later reinforced by 100 other men. This combined force drove off the insurgents, and when the Paducah arrived the fighting was over, and apparently there was no necessity for extending the aid of the American marines.

Later in the day Col. Marti, Chief of Staff of the Cuban army, and Lieut. Col. Consuegra sailed from Santiago on the gunboat Hatuey for Daiquiri to explain to Commander George G. Mitchell of the Paducah the situation on shore and inform him that there was no necessity then for the landing of American forces.

There was great excitement in Havana to-night when several newspapers issued extra editions, announcing that a great battle had taken place not far from Santiago, in which many rebels had been killed by Cuban artillery. The Government to-night said there had been no battle, but that a collision had taken place between the army and rebel forces in which the artillery was brought into play, apparently with good effect.

Gen. Monteagudo, commander in chief of the army, is still busy in Oriente disposing of his forces for a decisive movement against the enemy. This is expected to take place to-morrow. In the meantime his army continues to suffer depletion by reason of the necessity to furnish guards for foreign property. Many plantations, however, remain unprotected and many instances of depredations by the rebels are reported.

The Government continues to receive many offers to raise volunteer corps, but difficulty is being found in getting arms for them. Orders have been placed in the United States for arms to be shipped to Havana immediately.

A rumor was current in Havana to-night that the negroes in the capital intend to rise, but apparently there was no basis for it.

TRAP BRIBE-TAKERS IN ATLANTIC CITY

Detective Burns Has Five City Councilmen's Signed Confessions, He Says.

ORDINANCE ITSELF A TRAP

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, May 31.—Odd Fellows' Hall, in New York Avenue, which comfortably holds about 1,000 persons, was packed with about 2,000 this afternoon, when City Councilman Harry F. Dougherty rose before Justice of the Peace John A. Durgan of Hammonton to plead not guilty to the charge that he had accepted a $500 bribe for his vote on an ordinance for a million-dollar concrete walk to replace the present Boardwalk. Frequent and futile investigations of charges of graft among city officials have made the townspeople used to such inquiries, and the crowd which gathered to-day expected nothing more than heretofore has transpired at graft investigations.

Before the hearing ended the fortunate ones who had crowded into the small hall had heard Detective William J. Burns tell how he trapped five members of the City Councils into accepting bribes for their votes on the concrete walk ordinance, learned how the ordinance was only "a plant" originated in the mind of Burns, and how four of the five men had confessed their part in the bribery when confronted by stenographic notes of their conversation at the time of the passing of the money, conveyed to expectant stenographers by the dictograph, the device made famous by Burns.

Burns After Kuehnle Crowd.

Commodore Louis Kuehnle, known as Boss Kuehnle, was convicted as the result of the famous Macksey Probing Commission's work when ballot debauchery of the most sordid character was unearthed here in 1911. Boss Kuehnle has escaped jail up to date, but by the work of Burns the deathknell of his circle of politicians is believed to have been sounded as it might not have been sounded even by the incarceration of its leader.

To-night Dougherty is out under $3,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury, and four of his fellow-Councilmen are at liberty, too, but at liberty only on the sufferance of Burns and the authorities who hold their signed confessions of wrongdoing. Such is the state at present of Burns's investigation, and these are the men, besides Dougherty, who have been branded as bribe takers:

William Malia of the Third Ward, saloon keeper.
Gustav Kessler of the Third Ward, a cousin of Commodore Kuenhle, and a wealthy packer.
James W. Lane of the Fourth Ward, a concrete contractor.

There is speculation to-night as to the fate of these four. They are not under arrest, but none of the sponsors of the investigation will reply to the question as to whether immunity has been promised to them. Phoebus declared to-day that he had received no promise.

"I feel better than I have for months," Phoebus declared. "I am thankful that I have got this thing off my chest. I have admitted everything without any promises from Burns and I am willing to stand for anything that I get. I only did what practically everybody else in the Council did at one time or another, and I can honestly say that I never fully realized the enormity of the offense. I have never been out of Burns's reach since I knew he had me, and I am telling him everything that will help clear up this matter."

Politicians Fear Confessions.

Phoebus's willingness to tell everything is alarming politicians here more than any other phase of the inquiry. It is said to-night that Phoebus has turned State's evidence to revenge himself [redacted] he believes have used him various shady deals. To it is said that Phoebus is Burns every bit of info might be damaging to such possesses, and this is knowledge not only of the he was involved but of al that has savored of graft years.

But so successful has Bu phase of his investigation been made public that al fear is felt among the do not believe Phoebus them. If Burns, unaided, the information which he terday, there seems to be Phoebus's testimony. How Burns himself told on the He told how he had bee April, 1911, to make a th tigation of public affairs in Public officials, including men, were suspected, he he began to lay plans to bers of the Council.

"I framed the ordinance for the concrete walk," he explained, while a murmur of surprise rose from the listening throng, "and I did it to test the honesty of the men suspected."

Then Burns told how the operation of the plan had been intrusted to Frank Smiley, one of his operatives.

"He worked under the name of Mr. Franklin," explained Burns, and the remark drew a laugh from the crowd, for Mr. Franklin has occupied an elaborate suite of rooms at the Marlborough-Blenheim, and has posed as a New York contractor anxious to build the concrete walk. He has cut much of a figure here for the last few months.

"Mr. Franklin," from the witness stand, told how he had sounded various Councilmen with the proposal that the building of the concrete walk meant so much to him that he was willing to pay something for the passage of the ordinance, and how he finally had found a man who accepted $500, and through him four others who would accept the money.

He told how a dictograph had been installed in Malia's hotel on a windowsill where it was concealed by a curtain, and how the wires had run up to a room on the next floor, where two stenographers took notes of all that went on in the room below. That Malia should have been enmeshed in his own hotel seemed to astonish the crowd as much as any of the testimony.

Tells of Giving Bribes.

Smiley told how he had passed the money to each man, $500 to each, the money reaching Dougherty in $10 and $50 bills. Then he told how the men afterward were told of the ruse which had been played on them, and how all except Dougherty made confession and returned the money. Dougherty refused to return the money and pleaded not guilty to the whole charge.

It was yesterday, the day of Dougherty's arrest, that he received the opportunity to confess. Then Burns sent for him to come to the detective's deparments at the Marlborough-Blenheim where Burns had the stenographer's notes of the conversation received by the dictograph.

The complaint against Dougherty was made by William F. Wahl, a wealthy resident of the town, who has been actively identified with reform movements for years. He took the stand to make formal complaint against the Councilman, and said he had received all his information from Burns.

The detective left here to-night for New York in company with Attorney General Wilson. They are expected back here in a day or two, and if other confessions are not forthcoming then it is expected that more disclosures will be made by the detective.

tacle to the "bunnies" of an idle father, writing books that won't sell!'

"At this moment a passing steamboat sent us a wave which took the cockleshell of a boat sideways, and the history of the world came near to being changed! 'Please row back,' I gasped. 'We can talk better on dry land."

"When the boat had ben tied up and we were walking home, Mr. Roosevelt said: 'There is one thing I would like to have, but there is no chance of my getting it—McKinley will never give it to me. I should like to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy.' He said he did not think that Mr. McKinley liked him (which I knew was true enough, but, of course, I did not tell him so). I said that both Mr. Storer and I would ask the President-elect to appoint him Assistant Secretary of the Navy. Mr. Roosevelt said that nothing could help him so much. 'But,' he added, 'I don't want Bellamy to urge me and lose sight of himself. He must be in the Cabinet. I should be only too glad to serve under him and have him be Secretary of the Navy.' He was so insistent about this that I told him I did not think that it would be possible for Mr. McKinley to put Mr. Storer into the Cabinet, because he came from Ohio; that Hanna would, of course, have his choice between a place in the Cabinet or in the Senate, and that if he decided upon the latter there were other prominent political men in Ohio to be looked after for a Cabinet position. I said that we would rather go abroad, if the President chose to give Mr. Storer a diplomatic post, but that we should both go to Canton, mainly to ask Mr. McKinley to appoint Mr. Roosevelt as Assistant Secretary of the Navy."

This is Mrs. Storer's description of what happened when she mentioned the subject of the appointment to President McKinley:

"Mr. McKinley looked at me quizzically. 'I want peace,' he said, 'and I am told that your friend Theodore—whom I know only slightly—is always getting into rows with everybody. I am afraid he is too pugnacious.'

"'Give him a chance,' I said, 'to prove that he can be peaceful. Every place he has had he was put into in order that he might fight. The Civil Service Commission and the Police Board required continual hard fighting, and he has done it well and squarely, without party bias.'

"After some further talk, Mr. McKinley said: 'I shal lthink it over, and, if I can, I will make that appointment; but mind, if I do, it will be to please you. And,' he added laughing, 'I sincerely hope your friend Theodore will not be to opugnacious.' (I am afraid that the President thought he was, later, for Mr. McKinley was opposed to the war with Spain, and Mr. Roosevelt worked hard to force it upon the country.)"

Mrs. Storer then quotes these sentences of a letter written, she says, in 1911 by "one of Mr. McKinley's dearest friends," Myron T. Herrick:

"I will tell you a little incident which may be significant to you in the light of later years. I went with Mr. Hanna to Canton to see Mr. McKinley after his second election, and Mr. Hanna, as we went into the room (before greeting him) haid: 'Do you know the most important thing he should do within the next four years?' And when I asked what it was he replied: 'Keep alive! For if that young chap should ever become President he would tear the country to pieces.'"

The reason given for the recall of the Storers from Vienna was that they were too active at Rome in attempting to have Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul elevated to a Cardinalate. It was alleged on behalf of the Storers in a pamphlet setting forth their side of the controversy that Col. Roosevelt himself had requested that the Storers become active in behalf of Archbishop Ireland. The President in a letter to Secretary of State Root denied that this was so.

EITHER OSBORN OR HADLEY.

Colonel's Western Manager Predicts One of Them as Running Mate.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., May 31.—According to Frank Knox, Col. Roosevelt's Western manager, the Vice Presidential nomination, in case Roosevelt wins at Chicago, lies between Gov. Hadley of Missouri and Gov. Osborn of Michigan. Knox came to Michigan to-day to consult Gov. Osborn.

"It is generally conceded that the Vice Presidential candidate will come from among the seven Governors who started the Roosevelt campaign," he said.

"Of this number Bass of New Hampshire and Aldrich of Nebraska are candidates for re-election in their own States. Glasscock of West Virginia and Cary of Wyoming are not regarded as available. Stubbs of Kansas is a candidate for the United States Senate. Johnson of California lives too far west to be a factor. This leaves Osborn of Michigan and Hadley of Missouri."

THE TIMES'S DAILY WIRELESS AND CABLE DISPATCHES

ITALY FOR ENDING WAR, SAYS GIOLITTI

But Turkey Must Concede Her Tripoli Sovereignty in Suing for Peace, Premier Declares.

TO FORCE PORTE TO SUBMIT

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 31.—The Daily Chronicle's special correspondent at Rome, Mr. Donohue, reports an interview he has had with Premier Giolitti with reference to the Turco-Italian war. The Premier said:

"We are quite willing and ready to treat with Turkey now, as we have been from the first, but whether Turkey sues for peace to-day or to-morrow or a year hence, we shall abide by the basis for peace negotiations originally laid down by us—that as a preliminary she recognizes our sovereignty over Tripoli and Cyrenaica. This has been our stipulation from the beginning, and we will not recede from the position then taken.

"Italy in her might has hitherto been merciful, but her patience is nearly exhausted. She will shortly be compelled to strike hard, and if that does not secure Turkey's submission, she will strike still harder.

"Italy could go on indefinitely. Her finances are in excellent condition and her people unanimous in wishing for a continuance of the war on lines which will bring assured victory to the Italian flag."

With reference to the talk of a peace conference, Premier Giolitti said:

"That matter I prefer not to discuss just now. Shall we not wait a little while to see whether it passes from the region of hypothesis into that of actuality?"

Mr. Donohue says that Premier Giolitti is probably the only man in the Italian Cabinet who sees the issue of the present war clearly defined, admitting no compromise or deviation to the right or left.

The correspondent found Italian patriotism over the war as fervid as ever. Were 10,000 volunteers needed for Tripoli, they would be forthcoming in a few days.

"In Italy no one, neither man nor woman, can be found to cry a halt before the work of conquest is accomplished."

The other letter was addressed to an unknown correspondent.

DOCK STRIKE IS FAILING.

National Support Is the Only Hope of the London Unions.

LONDON, May 31.—The joint conference on the dock strike called by the Government for this morning, proved a fiasco, as expected. Not one employer put in an appearance. The Government, however, submitted fresh proposals for the consideration of the men. On a proposition for a joint Conciliation Board with power over all parties, working in the port, the strike leaders promised to give the men's reply Tuesday.

This is believed to be the policy which the Government purposes to carry out, and it is understood that they are prepared to enforce the authority of the Conciliation Board by legislation as in the recent case of the coal dispute, should either side refuse to submit to a general plan for awards and arbitration.

Whether Ben Tillett and Harry Gosling will be able to make the dispute a National affair, will be known only after the meeting of the National executives to-morrow, but the indications are that the Sailors and Firemen's Union, which will probably have the deciding vote, will oppose support on the ground that the time is inopportune, primarily because of the poor condition of the union's treasury.

Should the decision be against National support the strike seems bound to fail. The number of non-unionists working on the docks is daily increasing, and the provisioning of London goes on uninterruptedly.

DIX LEANS TO HARMON.

The Governor Sails To-day for Home, a Week Before He Planned.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 31. Gov. Dix has decided to curtail his stay in London and will sail on the Mauretania to-morrow, a week earlier than he originally planned. He told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that this change had no significance beyond the fact that he was anxious to return home. He had had a good rest, having spent a week in motoring.

During his talk Gov. Dix repeated his declaration that he was not a candidate for the Democratic nomination, but declined to say who he thought the candidate would be, as his position as a delegate at large to the convention prevented him. He did say, however, that he thought it would be "a man of the type of Harmon," in which case the Democrats had a splendid chance of winning.

Despite the New Jersey results, the Governor still thinks that President Taft will be renominated. He said on this point:

"You will find that at the convention President Taft has got too great a hold on the party not to be renominated. For four years President Taft has been making appointments, he is certainly conservative in his attitude toward the party, and now he expects fair treatment from it. Fair treatment, as I view it, means that he will be renominated."

When asked his views as to Senator Smith's report on the Titanic, he said:

"I think Smith is sincere in his statements, but personally I do not like his using the occasion for an oratorical display. I think some of his recommendations are good, and some are quite necessary."

Regarding the English criticism of the Smith report, the Governor said:

"I don't think it is fair comment."

Gov. Dix has noticed a great many changes in London since his last visit, especially the transformation which has taken place in the streets and the replacing of horses by automobiles. Concerning the traffic management here, the Governor said that while it was admirable, New York traffic was now managed equally well. He added:

"I do miss the old bus drivers, who acted as guides to the city. The present motor drivers are too busy."

MILLER AND MOTLEY FREED.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 31.—Clark A. Miller and Alfred H. Motley, who were accused by the United States Lithographing Company of New York of larceny of $100,000 in connection with the sale of a lithographing process, and had been out on bail pending receipt of evidence to warrant extradition to the United States, were discharged in Bow Street Police Station this afternoon.

Two American police officers were present to take the defendants into custody if they were extradited, but the depositions from America, which were mailed on May 20, had not been received, and the magistrate pointed out that to-day was the last day allowed by the extradition treaty for the production of evidence.

Police Lieutenant Barney Flood cabled to District Attorney Whitman yesterday that Miller and Motley had been discharged before his arrival. He went abroad armed with authority to bring them back to New York for trial. Mr. Whitman at once cabled Flood to remain in London and await instructions. The District Attorney cannot understand the failure of the evidence to support the warrants to arrive in England. It was mailed through the State Department on May 20 and addressed to the American Ambassador. Assistant District Attorney Perkins will go to Washington to-day to inquire into the matter.

Miller and Motley were indicted on March 9. They are charged with having obtained $100,000 from William Otterman, President of the United States Lithograph Company of this city, through representations that they owned a process for making colored lithographs quicker and at one-tenth the cost of the processes now in use.

TO PENSION MOTHERS.

French Deputy Proposes to Tax Bachelors and Childless.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 31.—M. Messimy, who was Minister of War in the last Cabinet, has laid before the Chamber of Deputies a proposal to make State grants to mothers of more than four children. This proposal is probably induced by the revelations of the vital statistics of France for last year, which showed only 742,114 births, against 776,983 deaths.

The plan is likely to cause discussion, for M. Messimy suggests that the money required should be raised by a tax on bachelors and childless married men or men who have only one child.

He suggests that every French mother should receive when her fifth child is born either $20 cash or half that amount, and have the other half invested for her. Payments for each succeeding child would be made according to a sliding scale.

M. Messimy calculates that a woman who had eight children before she was 31 years old would receive a pension of $21 or thereabouts from the age of 60 until death.

SUPPRESSED REPORT ON KING

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

COPENHAGEN, May 31.—An inquiry was made some time ago by the Hamburg police into the details of King Frederick's death there.

The Hamburg Police Director, in an interview to-day, said that the official report was suppressed out of consideration for the Danish royal house.

This statement is considered here very insulting, and only issued to hide the gross negligence of the Hamburg police after the King's death.

LOUVRE HAS OPTION TO BUY 'SALOME'

Knoedlers Give the Museum Two Months to Raise $96,000 for the Painting.

JUST THE PRICE THEY PAID

A Rembrandt Sells for $73,000 at the Carcano Sale and a Veronese for $36,100.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 31.—It is by no means certain that Regnault's "Salome," which was disposed of at the Carcano sales yesterday, will go to America.

Knoedler & Co., who bought the painting for $96,000, is giving the Louvre every opportunity to obtain the picture. Their generous offer of two months wherein the French National Museum may collect funds to take it from them at the price given yesterday is greatly appreciated, and hopes are entertained that the Louvre, with the assistance of French art lovers and the general public, will be able to avail itself of this unlooked for opportunity.

On the other hand, there is considerable doubt in art circles whether the picture is worth the amount paid.

Director Pujalet of the Natoinal Museum, who has been interviewed, declared himself very hopeful of success, but at the same time expressed the opinion that one of the main factors in running up yesterday's bids to $96,000 was undoubtedly the sentimental affection of French collectors for the memory of a patriotic painter, who sacrificed his life as a volunteer in the Franco-Prussian war.

Besides contributing $1,000 to the national subscription, Knoedler & Co. stated to-day their intention to exhibit "Salome" publicly with a view to handing over the proceeds to the fund.

A REMBRANDT BRINGS $73,000.

But Many of the Carcano Pictures Sell Comparatively Cheap.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 31.—The chief item of the second day's sale of the collection of the Marquise Landolfo Carcano was a portrait by Rembrandt, presumably of his sister, painted about 1633, which was bought by Durand Ruel for an anonymous customer for $73,000.

Rubens's "Christ," priced at $16,000, realized only $13,400, which was paid by Kleinberger.

The "Portrait of the Beautiful Nani," by Paul Veronese, priced at $15,000, was purchased by Ferdal for $36,100.

The total for the day was $198,575, to which should be added the customary 10 per cent. paid by the purchasers for sale expenses.

MAY SELL FAMOUS COLLECTION.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, June 1.—The Lonodn Times announces tht one of the most famous private collection of pictures in Holland, belonging to Baron Steengracht van Duivenvoorde, which was recently closed to the public owing to the death of the owner, must be sold at public auction or by private treaty, unless some testamentary disposition, as yet apparently unrevealed, is discovered.

The Steengracht collection has been for many ears one of the chief sights of The Hague. It was formed for the most part eighty years ago.

NAVAL BAN ON SEARCHLIGHTS

Non-Use by Merchant Ships Due to British Admiralty, It Is Charged.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 31.—The scientific journal Nature calls attention to the fact that the non-use of searchlights by merchant ships is due to the action of the British Admiralty.

The great value of searchlights for navigation was reported to the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty by Admiral Sir Beauchamp Seymour in 1876. Dr. Henry White, F. R. S., had previously submitted certain inventions to the Admiralty, and a number of battleships were equipped with searchlights. When attempts were made later to establish searchlights on merchant ships, the Admiralty intervened and claimed the exclusive right to the use of searchlights on the alleged ground that their brilliancy interfered with the navigation of other ships. The result is that to-day none of the Atlantic liners are equipped with searchlights.

In a paper read before the Literary and Philosophical Society, Dr. Wilde said, referring to the loss of the Titanic:

"It was repeatedly stated in evidence that at the time of the collision, and for some hours afterward, the atmosphere was perfectly clear; so much so that the stars were seen brightly on the horizon. If, therefore, the Titanic had been equipped with an efficient searchlight, the iceberg would have shone out by reflection at a distance of several miles, (visible to all persons on deck,) and the collision therewith would have been easily avoided.

"The ultimate responsibility, therefore, for the calamity, which we all deplore, rests upon the naval authorities at Whitehall through their blind policy of excluding searchlights from the mercantile marine."

FRANCE WILL HAVE EXHIBIT.

Panama Commission Assured of the Heartiest Co-operation by Republic.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 31.—The Panama-Pacific Commission concluded their official visit to France with a significant and enthusiastic conference with the Comité Française des Expositions a l'Etranger, of which Senator du Pont is Chairman.

General queries regarding the organization, finances, and regulations of the Panama-Pacific Exposition were propounded and satisfactory responses were made. It was felt that this meeting was preliminary to a formal acceptance of the invitation to France to participate.

The greatest cordiality and friendship has been shown in the receptions to the Exposition Committee by Governmental, official, and commercial bodies of France, which are deeply impressed by the importance of the Panama Exposition. All favor participation in the fair, and the American visit has been delightful in every respect.

John Hays Hammond, who headed the commission, is returning to America on the Mauretania to-morrow. Reuben Brooks Hale assumes the Presidency of the commission, which leaves Paris Sunday night for Brussels.

Mrs. Wickersham Dies In Italy.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 31.—Mrs. Frances Wickersham, the aged mother of United States Attorney General Wickersham, died at Lake Como yesterday. She had just arrived from Nice, where she spent the Winter with her third daughter. The body will not be taken to America for burial, at least for the present. Lady Robert Hadfield of Sheffield, daughter of Mrs. Wickersham, who was with her mother on the Continent last Winter, hastened to Lake Como.

MONUMENT TO PHILLIPS.

His Native Town in England Decides to Erect One.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 31.—Lord Middleton was the principal speaker at a Godalming public meeting, called by the Mayor of the corporation, to consider a proposal to erect a local memorial to Jack Phillips, the Marconi operator on the Titanic. He said the death of Phillips had done something in what was supposed to be an age of materialism and selfishness to establish the great fact that self-sacrifice was the only true way to victory in this modern world.

It was decided to erect a drinking fountain in the centre of the town.

KILLED BY AN AVALANCHE.

Several Dead in Andes Hotel—Snow May Halt Railway a Month.

VALPARAISO, May 31.—The heaviest snowfall in the Chilean Andes since 1905 has interfered with the Cross-Andes railway traffic, and passengers and mails have been detained for six days.

At Puente del Inca, Argentina, a military post in the Uspallata Pass, an avalanche destroyed the Mount Juncal Hotel, killing several persons.

The railroad is blocked for half of its length with such a compact mass of snow that it has been impossible to open it up even with snowplows. It is feared that traffic cannot be resumed for a month. Several railway employes have been frozen to death.

Most of the passengers of trains which were held up by the snow returned to Buenos Aires. The rest are safe at Inca.

BILL TO COVER COFFEE TRUST

$5,000 Fine and Imprisonment for Restraining Competition.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The operations of the so-called coffee trust would be put under the Inter-State commerce laws if a bill introduced to-day by Representative Norris of Nebraska should become a law.

The Norris bill would so amend the anti-trust laws as to characterize as an illegal conspiracy any combination whereby two or more persons are engaged in the importing of any article from any foreign country, when such a combination is operated in restraint of free competition of commerce or so as to increase the market price of the article. The bill carries as a penalty a maximum fine of $[illegible], together with imprisonment.

TORREON MENACED BY MEXICAN REBELS

Repeated Report That They Have Occupied Lerdo, Near There, Apparently Confirmed.

HUERTA'S BASE IN DANGER

Federals Repair Bridges and Tracks the Rebels Destroyed Before Pursuing Orozco.

MEXICO CITY, May 31.—Unofficial but apparently reliable information was received here to-night confirming the occupation of Lerdo, near Torreon, by rebels, and it was said that fears were felt for the safety of Torreon. Government circles apparently are without information regarding the situation. Advices in the course of the day made no reference to Lerdo, or mentioned operations at other points in that territory.

Messages were received from Gen. Huerta at Jimenez and from Gen. Blanquet, who is operating south of Torreon. Huerta discussed the general situation with reference to his operations against Orozco, and Blanquet said he had driven rebels from the vicinity of Aviles in Durango; that between Durango, the capital, and Zacatecas, the rebels were gathering in large numbers and are being followed closely by Government troops. As apparent confirmation of Blanquet's statement comes from the American Consul at Durango, who reported to-day that the rebel General, Campa, had been defeated near Pedricena and that the Federals were pursuing his fleeing forces. Pedricena and Aviles are in the same vicinity. Troops also have been sent out from Durango to engage the insurrectos in front while their pursuers harass them in the rear.

This covers the day's war news in the Lerdo territory as far as available in Mexico City, except for the unofficial telegram declaring Lerdo is now within rebel territory.

Lerdo's importance lies in the fact that it is regarded as a long step toward the capture of Torreon, Gen. Huerta's army storehouse.

Dispatches dated yesterday were received to-day from Gen. Huerta's camp at Jiminez after four days' interruption of the telegraph service. They state that Huerta has organized work gangs of 1,000 men each and is pushing the repairs on the railway track and bridges to the north.

Gen. Rabago and Gen. Villa have gone to Parral, where there is said to be a rebel force. Rebels from the vicinity of Pedricenna are reported as retiring northward to avoid being cut off.

On the march near Dolores the Federal troops found three decapitated bodies. One of these was that of a Spanish ranch manager.

The dispatches further state that many of the principal families have abandoned Jimenez with Gen. Orozco, the rebel leader, fearing that the place will be bombarded by Government troops.

The situation at Oaxaca is less tense. The mountain Indians have shown little disposition to enter the city, and are devoting their energies to robbing outlying haciendas. It is believed that the city can be defended safely by the rurales and volunteers.

EL PASO, Texas, May 31.—The advance guard of the Mexican Federals has reached a point five miles south of Santa Rosalia and 100 miles south of Chihuahua, according to telegrams received early to-day from Gen. Huerta by E. C. Llorente, the Mexican Consul here. Prospects of a battle for at least a week are remote, as the northward path of the Federals is temporarily blocked by burned bridges.

The advance from Jimenez, now the Federal base, was made under trying difficulties. Twenty-five miles of track had been torn out by the retreating rebels and rails and fastenings wrenched from the ties, which were stacked and burned. Every bridge and culvert was destroyed by dynamite or fire. Gen. Huerta's headquarters are in Jimenez.

From Col. Aguilar, chief of the Federal garrison at Torreon, came another denial to-day that the rebels had captured either Torreon or its suburbs, Gomez Palacio and Lerdo. This is the second time within a week that rebel headquarters has announced a victory at Torreon, with flat denials from Federal sources.

The rebel authorities in Juarez this morning again annulled the day train service to Chihuahua.

MAZATLAN, Mexico, May 31.—Americans are being robbed and evicted from their properties in Southern Sinaloa, said Manager Musick of the Concha ranch, who arrived here with four others from Concha yesterday. They made their way on a handcar for eighty miles when rebels compelled them to leave with only a few clothes and what money they could conceal. On Sunday morning Canedo and 300 rebels raided the Concha ranch. They took all horses, equipment, arms, ammunition, and food for man and beast, leaving the colonists absolutely stripped of necessities. Manager Musick showed a "salvo conducto" from rebel leader Tirado, but it was declared worthless.

After warning the Americans to leave Canedo said: "Your people in Mexico are to be attacked."

MOTT AND ACTRESS REACH GIBRALTAR

PAIR BOUND FOR FAR EAST

They Booked on the Indrades as Passengers Under the Name of "Mr. and Mrs. Mott."

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

GIBRALTAR, May 31.—The freighter Indrades arrived here to-day from New York after a good passage.

J. L. Mott, Jr., is aboard with a young woman. They are booked as passengers as Mr. and Mrs. Mott. They do not plan to stay at Gibraltar, but to continue the voyage to Port Said and thence to Japan.

Pursuers of the couple have failed so far to intercept them. Hector Fuller may arrive to-night, but the vessel is to sail in a few hours, so it is doubtful if he will catch them.

Jordan Lawrence Mott, Jr., son of Jordan Lawrence Mott, founder of the Mott Iron Works, with a young actress, the wife of a resident of Flushing, L. I., sailed on the British freighter Indrades May 20 for the Far East, after a break with his wealthy father. Young Mott shipped as purser, and his companion was disguised in male attire as a cabin boy.

After the couple left, Hector Fuller, war correspondent and author, sailed on the Mauretania to intercept the couple at Gibraltar, having instructions from the elder Mott to bring back his son at any cost.

Mott is 30 years old, and showed a dislike for the conventions early in life. At the age of 19, after running away from Lawrence Scientific School with Miss Carolyn Pitkin, daughter of a Thayer Academy professor, he was forgiven, and with his wife moved to the Mott estate at Tarrytown. He declared that burglars were attacking him, and after shooting at imaginary enemies on the lawn, his wife fled to her parents.

The elder Mott had arranged to have Fuller take his son on a long cruise to the Far East, when young Mott and his companion, who had been living together on Amsterdam Avenue, upset the plan by sailing on the freight steamer.

DREAMS

It is given to some men to dream, and to some men to be practical, but it is given to few men to combine the two.

Yet a building organization must be largely composed of men who are highly imaginative and practical—who are both dreamers and doers—who can look up at the stars and still keep their feet on the earth—who can follow the labyrinthine windings of a blueprint and direct a building operation from the ditch!

We are a workshop of dreams—not dreams that are still-born, but dreams that crystallize.

DARROW GAVE $4,000 BRIBE, SAYS WITNESS

JOB HARRIMAN'S NAME USED

Jury Fixer Says Socialist Candidate for Mayor Provided Darrow with the Bribery Fund.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 31.—Job Harriman, late candidate for Mayor of Los Angeles on the Socialist ticket, heard himself accused to-day of being the man who provided Darrow with the alleged bribe money.

Later in the day he heard the same witness, Bert H. Franklin, quote Clarence S. Darrow as saying to him:

"If you mention my name, I want you also to mention what you know about Job Harriman."

For the first time since the arrest of Franklin and the indictment of himself and Darrow, the names of prospective jurors, other than Lockwood and Bain, alleged to have been sought to be bribed, were injected into the case.

Some He Could Not Bribe.

Franklin said he had entered into negotiations with A. K. Kruger, and had been turned down by three others, Guy Yonkin, a Los Angeles cigar dealer; John S. Underwood, a local ironworker, and Frank Smith of Covina.

Franklin appealed to the court when asked to mention the names of the men he said he had approached, as they were all his friends. A short time before he had made a similar appeal when asked the name of the man who was said to have approached Kruger before he had.

The witness exhibited much emotion when he related his conversation with Kruger, in which he said that Kruger had told him that another man had offered him $4,000 for his vote as a McNamara juror.

Kruger, he said, wanted to know if they were both working for the same side. He named a Los Angeles lawyer heretofore not mentioned in connection with the McNamara case, which drew an indignant protest from Attorney Rogers.

Franklin testified he had told Darrow after his arrest for attempting to bribe Lockwood that had Darrow not been present when he was arrested he had intended to turn Lockwood over to the police for accepting a bribe.

"That was," asserted the witness, "when I found that Lockwood had turned traitor to me."

Knew He Had Been Betrayed.

He said that when he saw detectives near the scene of the meeting with Lockwood he knew he had been betrayed. Darrow's presence at the place of Franklin's arrest the latter explained by saying that he had been informed that Lecompte Davis, one of the associate counsel for the McNamara defense, had telephoned to Darrow, telling him that Franklin was about to get into trouble. Darrow, he said, had gone there to warn him.

After his arrest, Franklin testified, Darrow had assured him that his family would be looked after. On every occasion that he met Darrow thereafter Darrow always had asked how his wife and friends viewed his arrest, and what his wife's advice was.

"I told him," said the witness, "that my wife told me it was not my duty to draw Mr. Darrow into the mud I had made. He said she was a brave woman. I told him my son had addressed me the same way, but I had told them there was no danger of my dragging in Mr. Darrow."

Franklin related numerous conversations with Darrow, in which the former's course was discussed. He did not fear conviction for the attempt to bribe Lockwood, he said, but Lecompte Davis had been conducting negotiations with the District Attorney with a view of getting the latter to accept a plea of guilty on the part of Franklin.

Offers of Protection.

In the event of such a plea and the imposition of a fine of $5,000, as anticipated, Darrow had told him, the witness said, that he would pay the fine and in addition give him $3,000; "the $3,000," said Franklin, "for the protection of my family until I could rebuild my reputation in the community."

"I told Mr. Darrow," continued Franklin, "that if the District Attorney accepted my plea of guilty and dismissed the other counts, and if he would care for my family as promised, I would accept the offer."

On another occasion, the witness said, he had been informed by Davis that the latter had serious doubts of the acceptance of the District Attorney of a plea of guilty. "I asked him what would be the best procedure in that event, and he told me that he was not ready to concede his defeat along that line," said Franklin. A plea of guilty and request for probation were also discussed. In that case, the witness said, Davis agreed to give him $5,000, the amount of the proposed fine, and $3,000 in addition.

At a later date the plan was suggested by Davis, said the witness, of inventing a story of a Franklin-Darrow go-between, in order to save the latter, but Franklin told them, he said, that Assistant District Attorney Ford would never believe his story.

It was at this point that Darrow mentioned Harriman's name, and Davis thought it was a very unfair thing to say, said the witness. "I said it was a poor statement for him to make implicating another party," said Franklin.

"Then I told Mr. Davis if he would assure me that I would not get over two years in the penitentiary I would plead guilty and say nothing."

Darrow's Suspicions.

"Bert, they are on to us," were the words Darrow uttered to Franklin a moment before the latter's arrest, according to Franklin. He testified that Darrow had given him the $4,000 which was to have been given to Lockwood for his vote of not guilty in the trial of James B. McNamara. Franklin said that when he called for the $4,000 at Darrow's office the latter told him: "Job will be here in about ten minutes."

"I reported to Mr. Darrow on the morning of Nov. 26," said Franklin, "that Mr. Lockwood would call at my office at about 4:30 o'clock that afternoon; that Lockwood and I had arrived at an understanding with regard to the security of the money to be paid him and that I was satisfied that Lockwood would do what he had agreed to.

"I requested Mr. Darrow to get me the sum of $4,000 during the forenoon, and I told him that I would see him at noon and at that time wished him to turn over the $4,000 to me. I told him I believed I could conclude with Lockwood that day.

"Mr. Darrow answered that he would try to get the money if he had sufficient time.

"I replied that if he wished me to continue the negotiations with Lockwood, I would have to have the money at the noon hour.

Trusted the Stakeholder.

Franklin said he had discussed with Darrow his conversation with White and had assured Darrow that White was absolutely trustworthy. Later he said he called up White and told him of his telephone conversation with Lockwood and was going to see Lockwood that night. White, he said, declined an invitation to accompany him.

Franklin said he meant White when he telephoned Lockwood asking him if he should "bring the big fellow out."

This practically concluded Franklin's direct examination.

RIVERFRONT SITE FOR NEW POST OFFICE

McAneny Will Send to Washington Map of Section Bounded by West and Church Streets.

FAVORED BY COMMITTEE

Postmaster Morgan Would Like to be a Little Nearer North River for Downtown Business.

Borough President McAneny is preparing a plan of the land bounded by Fulton, Morris, Church, and West Streets for submission to the Senate Sub-Committee on Appropriations, which has been considering the O'Gorman Bill, which provides $5,000,000 to acquire new sites for the Post Office and the Federal Court Building. He will send these plans to Washington to-day, and with them a statement of the assessed valuations of the blocks within this area. He is supplying this information to the sub-committee as at the hearing on the O'Gorman bill on Wednesday it was clear that the site which appeared to the sub-committee most eligible for a new downtown Post Office lay within this area.

"Of course," said Mr. McAneny yesterday, "the choice of a Post Office site will be a matter for the Washington authorities alone, and I am only collecting this data because it seems likely to be useful to them. The city cannot in any way dictate what site will be chosen."

Mr. McAneny said he was well pleased with the way the hearing went. He expressed the hope yesterday that the attitude taken by the sub-committee showed that there was a real chance of the O'Gorman bill being passed this session. This would probably result not only in the removal of the Post Office from City Hall Park and the erection of a substitute nearby, but the placing of the Federal Court House on the site suggested by the Borough President and favored by some of the Federal Judges in the new civic centre to the north of the Municipal Building.

When Postmaster Morgan was asked yesterday about his views of a removal of the present Post Office Building he replied:

"My position in the matter has been misunderstood. It is quite true that when I was before the sub-committee and was asked what I considered the best possible site for a downtown Post Office I was obliged to reply that it was the present one. I was speaking then as an official, but as a citizen I am quite ready to see the Post Office Building removed from City Hall Park, and I believe that if we can get a site somewhere in the neighborhood, preferably a little nearer to the North River, we shall have one that will answer all our purposes. But of course the choice of the site must lie with the Postmaster General, as only he can make a wise selection from the departmental point of view."

Mr. Morgan went on to explain that shortly his own office, the Post Office Inspectors, and all the headquarters staff of the New York office will be moved up to the Pennsylvania Station. There also will go the international money order business, which centres here for the entire country. The dead letter, the money order, and a number of other departments will also be transferred uptown, and the present Post Office will be reduced to the level of a big branch.

"But we need that branch," the Postmaster said, "and it doesn't matter how much business we can transfer to the Pennsylvania Station, the necessity for a big establishment in this district will remain. At the present time we have branch offices at Wall Street and in the Terminal Building, and in spite of the relief these stations have given us we are crowded here.

"We can only hope to handle the mail for the financial district promptly by having a branch for sorting purposes close to it. So we must have a new branch Post Office if we give up this one, but I wouldn't say that a branch on a side street toward the North River would not serve our purpose nearly as well as a new one here. We want to get as close as we can to the North River, as, in spite of all the business we have diverted to the Grand Central or the Pennsylvania Station, we still use the ferries and the New Jersey lines for a good deal of our mail."

At the present time the Government is leasing expensive quarters at 60 Wall Street and in the Hudson Terminal Building at a cost of $90,000 a year, and it is contended that it would pay to expend a large capital sum to escape this annual charge, which is likely to increase rather than diminish. There would still be the necessity of providing public offices for the sale of stamps and money orders and the registration of letters. These, if dissassociated from the delivery of mail, could be established with comparatively little cost at convenient places, and there would be no difficulty in finding quarters for one at any rate in the new Federal Court House.

The present Post Office is the centre of five separate pneumatic tubes, each eight inches in diameter, running to the Grand Central, the Pennsylvania Station, over Brooklyn Bridge, to Harlem, and to the Custom House. They could be extended so as to run to a new Post Office at comparatively little cost, and, if the Government cared to insist on the letter of its contract, the company which owns them could be required to change their location. Postmaster Morgan said yesterday that he did not think that there was anything in connection with the pneumatic tube situation to hinder the moving of the Post Office to any spot that might be considered desirable.

TRANSFERS

It has become apparent that the existing transfer methods require change in the interest of the convenience of the public as well as for the protection of the revenues of the Company. Commencing therefore on June 1, 1912, a new form of transfer ticket will be issued to passengers.

The advantages of the new transfer are as follows:

1. It is convenient for the passenger because it indicates all the possible ways travelling between two points for a single fare.
2. It relieves the passenger of the necessity of obtaining one transfer after another, as the single transfer with coupons, obtained upon the payment of a cash fare, is all that is necessary to make the desired journey.
3. It relieves the conductor of the necessity of issuing re-transfers. He will have more time to devote to the safety and convenience of passengers and to the proper operation of the car.
4. This system will afford to the passengers all transfer privileges to which they are entitled, and should reduce transfer abuses.

The extensive use of transfers and their great abuse have reduced the average fare per passenger to 3.41c. for the first four months since January 1, 1912, when the New York Railways Company commenced operation. This does not leave sufficient margin to enable the Company to develop its property as it would desire to do if it were permitted to enjoy greater prosperity.

Notices explaining the new transfer ticket will be found in all of the cars and instructions for its use are printed upon the back of the ticket. The co-operation of the public is respectfully requested.

TRIBUTES ARE PAID TO WILBUR WRIGHT

New York Business Associates Send Representatives to the Burial in Dayton, O., To-day.

FLOWERS NEARLY FILL A CAR

Directors of Wright Company Issue Statement Expressing Appreciation of Inventor's High Character.

Flowers, nearly enough to fill a baggage car on the Pennsylvania Railroad, were ordered sent from this city to Dayton, Ohio, by special messenger yesterday as the tribute of the officials of the Wright Company and other friends of the pioneer aviator to Wilbur Wright, who will be buried to-day.

After the flowers had been dispatched to Dayton a meeting of the Directors of the Wright Company was held, at which there were present August Belmont, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Theodore P. Shonts, Pliney W. Williamson, Andrew Freedman, and Charles R. Flint.

Several of those present said that they could not recall any death in recent years that had struck in upon them as had the death of Wilbur Wright. They sent to Orville Wright a telegram of condolence in which they pledged "every financial help that possibly could be of service in the double load of responsibility" which Orville Wright will now be called upon to carry.

In order to express to the public something of the feeling of those who knew Wilbur Wright intimately in his business associations, the following statement was issued at the close of the meeting:

> In the death of Mr. Wright the company has suffered the irreparable loss of its chief inspiration and guiding spirit, and the Directors have lost the personal association of a man of the highest character, possessed of the loftiest scientific and business ideals.
> The principles conceived and successfully executed by Mr. Wright and his brother Orville are the basic principles now used in all heavier-than-air machines. Their development of these ideas required the highest type of physical courage, as well as creative genius. Mr. Wright and his brother are now publicly recognized by the entire world as the fathers of the art of aviation.
> As a man, Wilbur Wright was kind, considerate, charitable, an ideal son and brother, an upright and conscientious citizen, and he typified the highest standards of American manhood.

Pliney W. Williamson, one of the Wright Company's Directors, was delegated by his associates to go to Dayton to represent the company at the funeral. He left over the Pennsylvania last night. At Dayton he will meet other officials of the company who will comprise a delegation of three. At the station a TIMES reporter asked Mr. Williamson about the various views expressed in editorial comments from Europe and this country about the Wrights.

"In the first place I feel compelled to say," he replied, "that France knows Wilbur Wright a good deal better than his own countrymen. The French tributes published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of this morning were warm in tone and had a quality of assurance to them that American tributes very often lack. The reason is that the French are positive, assured, and certain as to the exact nature of the debt to the Wrights, while in this country there is still uncertainty and confusion.

"It is easy to overestimate the work of those who preceded the Wrights. They labored, yes, but no machine ever contrived before the Wrights contrived theirs would fly if every Wright invention were added to it as a basic structure. The chief efforts had been spent in working out a table of air pressures on surfaces at various angles. All the Wrights learned from their predecessors as to this was that their predecessors were hopelessly wrong. They started in from the ground up and worked out their own mathematical tables. Chanute, whose tables they started with, has made this very clear.

"And the accounts are wrong that picture the Wrights as 'poor bicycle builders.' They were of clerical blood, the sons of a minister. Their minds had an infinite grasp for research. They delighted in things whose only value was as mental exercise.

"The first time I ever saw Wilbur Wright was in a church trial. He was testifying as an expert witness on church history. And he had become expert in his church's history just as a mental diversion. The brothers took up the problem of steam engines as a mental diversion. That's how they came to invent aeroplanes. They worked on steam engines to see if they could increase the efficiency of steam. Many great engineers had worked on that problem all their lives.

"The Wright brothers failed in that. They decided they wanted something easier. Some of the aerial experimenters were being killed just then. The Wrights decided that aviation offered the best substitute for steam engines in sight, and so as investigators and men of mental power they turned to that. That bicycle-repair shop idea has been altogether too much overplayed.

"When men of finance began to consider the Wrights and to wish to back them, I sent for Wilbur Wright one day. Some men who are close associates of Mr. Ryan and Mr. Belmont wanted to see him to see if they could not arrange matters. They named an hour for a meeting. I telephoned to the Hotel Manhattan to ask Wilbur about the opportunity. He said he was very much engaged at the hotel at the hour stipulated. I went there to impress the matter upon him and found him talking to two children who had written to him about aeroplanes and to whom he had replied, making the appointment at the Manhattan. He was explaining all there was to be explained about an aeroplane to them and was very happy at his task. I was reminded of this by the account of his attitude toward the Governors Island children in THE TIMES.

"Without pay from the Wright Company, Wilbur Wright took up the patent fights that had worn him down these last two years. He journeyed to Buffalo many times, and the company finally insisted of its own volition that he should be compensated. He said always his motive in the fights was to prevent fraud against inventors, since every successful fraud would lead to another trial against some other inventor, and that he had a duty to his own kind to fulfill.

"More than the fever, the long series of litigations to which a United States patent is the only sure guarantee, wore Wilbur down to the point where successful resistance was not possible. The last time he was in this city he seemed a mere shadow of his former self, and when he was urged to take a vacation he replied that he could not do so until the patent suits were settled. You know in this country no patent is valid until adjudicated, and the only way to get one adjudicated is for the holder of a patent to start a suit, with the burden of proof on his side, against any person he thinks is infringing. In other countries the burden of proof is on the infringer, and he goes to jail if he is caught appropriating the property of another, and letters patent in Europe are considered to be property.

"Wilbur's final hope was to fight for better patent laws. The best memorial that could be created for him would be the enactment of patent laws that would afford something like real protection to inventors, instead of being the delusion they now are."

Mr. Williamson carried with him to Dayton a number of letters of condolence addressed to Orville Wright by friends among the aviators resident here.

WRIGHT BURIAL PRIVATE.

Family Consents, However, to Let Public View Body in Church.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, May 31.—Wilbur Wright will be buried to-morrow afternoon in Woodland Cemetery here. The funeral will be private and the services brief.

Hundreds of visitors from all parts of the country came to Dayton to-day to view the body, but the grief-stricken family remained alone with their dead. It was their desire to lay beside his father's grave the wasted figure of a loved son and brother without ostentation. To this end preliminary plans called for private services at the house and in the cemetery, but so great and widespread was the wish to pay respect to the dead aviator that the family finally consented to permit the public to view the body.

The body will be taken to the First Presbyterian Church at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, where it will lie until 1 in the afternoon. The body will then be claimed by the family, and, after a short service, the journey to the cemetery will be made without escort.

While the family preferred not to have the day marked by any special ceremonies, Dayton has decreed that the passing of her most distinguished citizen shall be attended by more than ordinary marks of respect. A proclamation by Mayor Philips urges all citizens to stop work for three minutes at 3:30, and the transportation companies have issued orders that no wheel shall be turned during that interval on any of their lines. All other business also will be suspended.

The pallbearers will be practically the only ones outside the immediate family who will attend the services. They will be chosen from among the favorite employes of the Wright Company, members of the Dayton Aeroplane Club, and the Ten Boys' Club, the only organization with which the decedent was actively identified.

Among those who will pay their respects to the dead while the body lies in the church are Robert C. Collier of New York, President of the Aero Club of America; Capt. Thomas S. Baldwin, and Treasurer Edwards of the Aero Club.

LE MANS TO HONOR WRIGHT.

Town Where He Began Tis European Flights to Name a Street for Him.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, May 31.—The town of Le Mans has decided to name one of its streets Rue Wilbur Wright.

It was at Le Mans in 1908 that the dead aviator began the series of aeroplane flights that convinced Europe that the Dayton inventors had mastered the secret of navigating the air.

House Action on Wright's Death.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Representative Ansberry of Ohio to-day introduced a resolution stating that "the House has heard with profound regret of the death of Wilbur Wright of Dayton, Ohio, who rendered his country incalculable service in the science of aeronautics." The resolution was referred to the Rules Committee.

WILSON IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

Jersey Governor a Guest at City's "Boost Week" Festivities.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 31.—To-day was Governor's Day in the "boost week" festivities here, and thousands of people were out to greet the State's Chief Executive when he arrived in this city this afternoon.

A delegation met Gov. Wilson at Princeton Junction and conveyed him to this city by automobile. The Governor was taken to the Mansion House, where he was the guest of the Board of Trade at luncheon. He was taken afterward to Monument Square with Mayor Morrison and the Queen of Progress, where he reviewed the civic parade and delivered an address. Judge Peter F. Daly introduced the Governor to the assemblage, saying that he stood as an exemplar of true statesmanship.

$2,500 FLOOD GIFT FROM MRS. SAGE

SEND OUT 25,000 LETTERS

150,000 Homeless People in Need of Aid—Work Will Last for Many Months.

The fund for the relief of the Mississippi flood sufferers was increased yesterday by subscriptions of $4,591.30, bringing the total up to $18,776.48. The list was headed by $2,500 from Mrs. Russell Sage and $1,000 from Mrs. E. H. Harriman.

The Mayor's Relief Committee is now working on the distribution of 25,000 letters, describing the need of money for work in the flooded districts. These letters will be sent to residents of this city and to the Mayors of cities all over the country. The Theatrical Committee in a few days will announce plans for a benefit performance.

As fast as money is received it is turned over to the Red Cross Society, which is just at the beginning of its work of caring for 150,000 persons who need help.

The greatest problem is that of sanitation. The great danger now is from epidemics in the districts where thousands of head of livestock were drowned, and in cities and towns where the flood waters are contaminated by sewage.

The increase in subscriptions is encouraging to the committee, and shows that the calamity in the South is beginning to be understood. The fund, however, continues to be small, in comparison with the sums raised in other cases. The Titanic fund in a few days ran up to $148,687.41, and the fund received by Jacob H. Schiff, Secretary of the New York State Red Cross Society, for the sufferers from the famine in China, amounted to $117,782.81 a few weeks after the call was issued last February.

APPEAL FROM THE COMMITTEE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial in this morning's issue of THE TIMES in regard to the Mississippi flood situation further emphasizes the contrast between the wide-awake attitude of the newspapers and the apathy and indifference shown by the people of this city in the face of a disaster only equaled in extent by the San Francisco earthquake and fire.

We believe that this stolidity may be explained in part by the impression received in many quarters that the army was doing all the necessary work. Just the reverse is the case. The army and local relief committees are, indeed, splendidly meeting the immediate emergency by the distribution of rations and temporary shelter. But the army is to be withdrawn soon after June 1. The interval between its withdrawal and the time when the farmers can harvest crops is anticipated with greatest dread. The Red Cross is facing a tremendous work of rehabilitation with the smallest fund ever raised by the American people to meet an emergency of such magnitude.

The appeals for help sent out by this committee, although given prominent notice in the newspapers, have met with small response. The fund so far subscribed for 200,000 American citizens in urgent need of help has reached slightly over $13,000.

Is it possible that the educating force of civilization counts for so little, that the American people give thoughtful heed only to such disasters as are attended by the dramatic setting of earthquake and fire, or accompanied by big head lines and high priced interviews? We earnestly believe that this is not the case.

We believe that they will respond, and respond generously, if we can arrest them in their business rush, and bring home to them the realization that upon their immediate help depends the adequate distribution of rations, farm implements, and seed to thousands of hitherto self-supporting American farmers, who own their own land, but who have had their credit, as well as their means of livelihood, wiped out by a devastating flood.

MAYOR'S SOUTHERN FLOOD RELIEF COMMITTEE, CITY HALL,
ROBERT ADAMSON, Secretary.
ROBERT W. DE FOREST, Chairman.

Both are special purchases, hence, very much under-price, and cannot be duplicated when these are sold.

229 CITIES PASS THE 25,000 MARK

ONLY THREE LOST GROUND

Twenty-two Municipalities Gain More Than 100 Per Cent., Census Bureau Report States.

The Census Bureau has just issued its report of the cities of this country with 25,000 population and more in a table which divides the cities by States. With the population of 1910 is given the population of 1900. In some instances the growth of the cities may have been due to additions of territory, but with the exception of New York, Pittsburgh, and a few other similar consolidations, no allowance has been made for these annexations. These are the cities by States:

GERMAN FLEET WAITS TAFT.

Norfolk Receptions Postponed Till President Arrives Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., May 31.—Outside of unofficial calls made by the commanders of the torpedo boat flotilla, sent out as convoys to the German squadron, no public receptions were held to-day aboard the visiting warships.

The formal ceremonies incident to the reception of the fleet have been postponed until Monday, to await the arrival of President Taft.

The Street Called Straight

By the author of "The Inner Shrine."

The third success now crowns this week-old novel—an enthusiastic welcome from readers and critics. Its first success—serially in Harper's Magazine—brought forth unusual comment. The second was an advance sale eclipsing even the great "The Inner Shrine" or "The Wild Olive." Now the readers of the book find that its uncommon artistic and literary and romantic story make it more than a serial—more than a readable novel. One critic has already said that it "will be the leading summer novel without question."

WAR OVER EACH CENT OF $200,000 ESTATE

C. W. Troughton's Accounting of Wife's Property Bitterly Fought by Her Relatives.

DISPUTE $20 FOR PASTOR

Object to $11 Charge for Newspaper Notices of Mrs. Troughton's Death, and $1.67 for a Gift for Her Nurse.

Surrogate Cohalan handed down a memorandum yesterday on the accounting of Charles W. Troughton of 1 West Eighty-first Street of the $200,000 estate of his wife, Lucy Beard Troughton. The memorandum suggested amendments to the report of Referee Michael J. Egan, who passed on Mr. Troughton's accounting. The papers in the case revealed how bitterly Mr. Troughton's accounting had been fought, even in the smallest details, by several nieces and nephews of his wife.

Not only were objections filed to the accounting itself, but after Mr. Egan had rendered his decision, which was favorable to Mr. Troughton, objections were filed with the Surrogate to the referee's decision.

The double objection made by the nieces and nephews, who include Godwin Beard, Charles Curtis Beard, Eliza Mills Beard, Hester T. Beard Sheldon, and Lucy Cummings Beard, extended to such items as $20 for the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, who officiated at Mrs. Troughton's funeral; $3 for the making over of a mattress damaged in the course of her last illness, $11.16 for newspaper notices of her death, and $1.67 for a gift book for Miss Williams, a nurse, who attended Mrs. Troughton in her last illness. These items were passed by the referee over the objection of the nephews and nieces and were incorporated in their appeal to the Surrogate over Referee Egan's head.

Surrogate Cohalan said in his memorandum that he would allow the charge of $20 for Dr. Parkhurst to stand against the estate. But the Surrogate refused to approve the expenditure of $1.67, objected to by the nephews and nieces, for a gift book for Miss Williams, the nurse. This will have to come out of Mr. Troughton's personal funds. The nephews and nieces objected to the gift book being charged against the estate in a document filed in their behalf by their attorney, Merritt E. Haviland, on the ground that Miss Williams was not a creditor of their aunt's estate, and that there was no voucher to support the claim for the $1.67 said to have been expended for the book.

Surrogate Cohalan also refused to allow the $3 claim for making over the mattress, but allowed the $11.16 for newspaper notices of Mrs. Troughton's death to be charged against her estate on the finding of Referee Egan that this was a necessary and proper charge, in spite of the objections of the heirs both in the proceedings before the referee and in court after his report had been submitted.

Mrs. Troughton died on Jan. 15, 1902. Her estate, according to her husband's accounting, amounted to $197,494. Coombs & Wilson were attorneys for Mr. Troughton in the accounting proceedings.

Couple Find on Front Porch What They Prayed For—a Baby.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., May 31.—As if their frequent prayers for a child had been answered in a dramatic manner, a baby boy came this morning to Mr. and Mrs. William Shuttleworth of 702 Chaucer Street. The couple has no offspring after five years of marriage.

"Its on the front porch," whispered Mrs. Shuttleworth.

She and her husband ran down stairs and on the porch they found the baby which had kicked itself free of a woman's outer skirt employed as protection for the infant.

Neither the Shuttleworths nor the police have been able to find a clue as to who abandoned the baby. But the Shuttleworths do not care, as they are going to adopt the little one.

"UNCLOTHED"
by Daniel Carson Goodman

¶ IF—in the middle of the night you awaken . . . to see parading before you, like little human things, every lie, every stray glance, every untruthful caress . . . of the past day . . . if you heard worded every thought that necessity had compelled you to choke down . . . . Would you follow the path of Loutie, or Cleodore, in "UNCLOTHED"?

¶ "A subtle, clever, perhaps exotic book—that will make you wonder and ask of yourself questions. It is a story of modern life, told in a strange, daring, unusual way, which makes you, along with the characters in the book, become one of the spectators. 'Unclothed' speaks of the fast dying part of you—the part that yearns, that tries, sometimes for recognition . . . and the part of you which convention says you must strangle, so that the other half of you may survive. It might well be one of George Moore's 'Confessions of a Young Man,' or one of the 'Memoirs of My Dead Life.'"

EXCUSE FOR LAURIER ATTACK ON TAFT

WORDS NOT TAKEN SERIOUSLY

Sir Wilfrid Resented Statement That Reciprocity Would Make Canada an Adjunct of This Country.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Senators showed little surprise at Sir Wilfred Laurier's attack yesterday on President Taft for his expressions on reciprocity contained in his letters to Col. Roosevelt, recently made public. Sir Wilfrid, they feel, is naturally bitter over his defeat at the Canadian elections on the reciprocity issue, and they find nothing strange in his attempting now to divert attention from his predicament by assailing Mr. Taft, whose expressions on the subject have unintentionally had the effect of emphasizing the awkwardness of the deposed Premier's position.

Comment divided pretty well to-day along the lines of cleavage when reciprocity was an issue before Congress. The only difference is that the President's letter, whose frankness so angers the ex-Premier who once supported the measure, is criticised by the opponents of reciprocity in the Senate as not being a correct statement of the case. They opposed the measure on the ground that it gave too great advantage to Canada, and to-day they insist that if reciprocity did bring business to this country as the President's letter predicted it would have been simply as further tribute to our great corporations. Such an increase in our business seems to strike the progressive opponents of the measure as undesirable.

Among the President's supporters in his strenuous fight last Summer for reciprocity all that the President said in his letter to Col. Roosevelt is taken as a matter of course. In private they rather regret that the President should have felt constrained to make public such references to an adjoining and friendly nation, but the soundness of his argument they do not question.

No one in Washington ever took seriously the outcry the letter raised in Great Britain and Canada any more than Champ Clark's famous remark about annexation was taken seriously last Summer until the Canadian conservatives began using it as a powerful weapon against reciprocity. But the President's indiscretion is considered less than the Speaker's because reciprocity was already dead before he made the correspondence public.

As to Sir Wilfrid's insinuations that the President acted in bad faith because he "nursed in his heart a secret which he never communicated" that is regarded as absurd. If the President had not expected this country to benefit by the agreement his support of it would have been treasonable, and that, in the view here, is the whole question. The opponents of the measure in this country and presumably Sir Wilfrid's party believed that Canada would benefit at our expense, and in Canada that belief was rejected at the polls.

Roosevelt and reciprocity precipitated a flurry in the House of Representatives to-day during the general debate on the Military Academy bill. Democratic leaders from Missouri, of which State the Speaker is the favorite son candidate for the Democratic nomination at Baltimore, denied that the Democrats were responsible for reciprocity, a provision for the repeal of which has been attached by the Senate to the bill for the revision of the steel tariff rates.

Representative Prince of Illinois, a Republican, retorted that "Speaker Clark is a bedfellow of President Taft on reciprocity, going even further than President Taft and suggesting the annexation of Canada."

"The people know who are responsible for the Reciprocity act," shouted Representative Prince. "They will hold the Democrats responsible for it in November. A majority of the Republicans of the House and Senate voted against the bill and Democratic votes passed it."

Representative Lloyd of Missouri, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, came to the rescue of Representative Shackleford of the same State, and backed up his statement that President Taft brought about reciprocity. "President Taft," asserted Representative Lloyd, "fathered reciprocity upon the advice of an ex-President."

Representative Prince then spoke in terms so highly unlogistic of Col. Roosevelt that it drew the fire of Representative Harwick of Georgia, who intimated that the Illinois member was rather late "coming out for the Colonel."

"He," exclaimed Representative Hardwick, "is the only wild man in the country who has advocated the recall of judicial decisions."

"To whom is the gentleman referring—the Governor of New Jersey?" interposed Representative Good, an insurgent Republican from Iowa.

"No," retorted the Georgian, "to Col. Roosevelt, who denounced Bryan as a Socialist because he criticised the income tax decision, and now wants to recall all decisions. There is enough intelligence, enough patriotism, enough memory in the American people not to crown this dangerous demagogue as the Mexican King of this Republic. Roosevelt is going to be nominated, but he will not be elected!"

Representative Hardwick asserted that whether the Democrats nominate Clark, Underwood, Harmon, or "the glorious Governor of New Jersey" there was Democratic success in the skies in November.

"Don't be too sure of that," interrupted Representative Dyer of St. Louis. "You may speak with authority regarding Georgia, but not for the entire country."

At this juncture Representative Steenerson of Minnesota sent to the front a petition signed by 31,000 farmers of the West pleading for the repeal of the Reciprocity act. It stated that the recent elections in Canada gave the party opposed to reciprocity only a small majority, "which is in danger of being reversed at any time even in political exigencies in Parliament with another popular election."

Representative Henry wanted to know whether the House had forgotten a certain letter which contained these words: "Dear Mr. President. It seems to me that what you proposed to do with Canada is admirable from every standpoint. I firmly believe in free trade with Canada, for both economic and political reasons. THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, May 31.—Members of the Canadian Government decline to comment upon the reciprocity utterance of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Montreal.

"I do not see anything in it to comment upon," said Premier Borden.

"Premier Borden speaks for the Cabinet," said the Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Customs. Other members of the Government and leading party men take the same position.

The Government press, on the other hand, professes to be puzzled by Sir Wilfrid's apparent confusion of dates. He spoke of President Taft's "adjunct" letter to Col. Roosevelt as echoing the words of Canadian jingoes. It is pointed out here that the letter was written on Jan. 10, whereas the annexation cry was not raised in Canada till the middle of February, the pact not being made public till Jan. 26.

LAURIER'S RECIPROCITY SPEECH

He Says Taft Borrowed His 'Adjunct' Term from Canadian Jingoes.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Canada, May 31.—The speech of Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the dinner given in his honor at the Windsor Hotel, in which he discussed the letter of President Taft to Theodore Roosevelt, is printed in full to-day by the local papers. It was the expression that Mr. Taft "looked upon the reciprocity agreement, if consummated, as making Canada an adjunct of the United States," that interested Americans here. Mr. Laurier said the expression was not original, but had been borrowed by Mr. Taft from the Canadian jingoes. His reference to Mr. Taft's letter and reciprocity was as follows:

"Let us now come to the crux of this question. I know that the contention of the Conservative Party during the last election has been revived by a letter recently published by President Taft which was addressed to Mr. Roosevelt at the time of the negotiations on the 10th of January, 1911. And in that letter President Taft said to Mr. Roosevelt that he looked upon this reciprocity agreement, if consummated, as making Canada an adjunct of the United States.

"I need not tell you, gentlemen, it was to be expected that such a letter would be taken up at once by those who are opposed to reciprocity. In fact, it was natural that it should be so, and all the Conservative Party seized the letter with glee, and quoted it to us as justification of their attitude, as confirmation of their sinister predictions.

Used by Canadian Jingoes.

"But I have found nothing new in that letter. We had heard the word adjunct before. We had seen it in the literature and heard it in the oratory of the Conservative Party. In fact, President Taft, when he wrote that letter, invented nothing at all but simply repeated what had been said by Canadian jingoes. He has admitted himself that he borrowed the idea from Canadian Tories. I want to discuss that question with my fellow-countrymen, because I am satisfied that in the position we took we were right.

"These are the words of Mr. Taft addressed to Mr. Roosevelt: 'In the meantime the Canadian products would produce a current of business between Western Canada and the United States that would make Canada only the adjunct of the United States.' This is an argument against reciprocity in Canada, and, I think, it is a good one. Therefore, Mr. Taft admits that it took the Canadian argument from the Canadian Tories, and when he saw the Canadian Tories appealing to the prejudices of the Canadian people he thought he might also appeal to the passions of the American people in favor of it. It shows that human nature is the same on both sides of the line, and there are some weak parts which politicians appeal to when not actuated by the highest motives.

"I happened to be in the United States at the time that letter was read, and I was asked to give my opinion as to what I thought of that letter. I said to one of my friends then—a personal friend and political opponent of Mr. Taft—that I did not care to express any opinion with regard to that letter. When I came back to Canada I was again asked my opinion upon that letter of Mr. Taft, and I said then what I say now, that for my part I am surprised that a man of the independence and eminence of Mr. Taft should borrow such shallow rhetoric from Canadian Jingoes. [Applause.]

Roosevelt's Explanation.

"The funny part of it is that that letter which has created such a commotion in Canada, that letter which has been taken up by all the Tories in Canada, which was addressed to Mr. Roosevelt, did not convince my dear friend, Theodore. Mr. Roosevelt in his answer to Mr. Taft did not say that he shared his opinion that the reciprocity agreement would make Canada an adjunct of the United States, but he simply said: 'Dear Mr. President'—he had been addressed as 'My dear Theodore,' but Mr. Roosevelt did not respond in the same terms. He said: 'Dear Mr. President: It seems to me that what you propose to do with Canada is admirable. I firmly believe in free trade with Canada, for both economical and political reasons.' And when he was asked what he meant by 'political reasons' he was careful to say that these reasons were perfectly honorable to Canada and the United States. He got his secretary to cable to London that Mr. Roosevelt used the words 'political reasons,' but had not the slightest thought of annexation of Canada.

"Take the fact that Mr. Taft imagined that reciprocity with Canada would lead Canada to be an adjunct of the United States. There is the opinion of Mr. Roosevelt that it would not have such an effect at all, and is not Mr. Roosevelt as good a judge as Mr. Taft? I stand by the interpretation of Mr. Roosevelt, which is more in accordance with the pact and with Canadian traditions.

"You know, Sir, very well that reciprocity was opposed in Canada, but it was opposed just as strongly in the United States as an Canada. The American lumbermen and fishermen opposed it just as strongly and vehemently as the Canadian Tories. Moreover, it is an open secret to us, so open that everybody knows it, that during the last election, in the heat of the contest, when every nerve was straining to win the fight, the special interests of the United States joined hands with the special interests in Canada to defeat reciprocity, both singing lustily and loudly 'God Save the King,' but also murmuring to themselves, 'God save our monopolies and our trusts.' [Applause.]

"But, Sir, let me go one step further. If men there are yet in Canada who believe the words of Mr. Taft must be taken literally, and that a commercial agreement with the United States for the exchange of natural products would make Canada an adjunct of the United States, let me make this ultimatum: Nobody here will dispute the fact that friendship with the United States is the greatest blessing that could be given to the world in the present age. [Applause.] Nobody will dispute that trade and commerce are the most potent agency in maintaining friendship between nations. Nobody will dispute that commercial treaties are one of the greatest instruments to that end. When we received the invitation to enter into an agreement for the exchange of natral products without any interference between the two countries, we accepted the invitation because we thought it would lead to greater friendship between the two nations and that the result would be mutually honorable to the two peoples, econonically and politically, in the words of Mr. Taft. [Applause.]

Commercial treaties are not of this day nor of yesterday. They are as old as civilization itself, and I have yet to know that commercial treaties have ever led to the absorption of one nation by another. On the contrary, my reading of history is that it makes two nations bound by commercial treaty more friendly to one another and more respectful of one another. That was our sentiment. That was the sentiment of Mr. Knox who negotiated the convention with my friend Mr. Fielding, and when Mr. Fielding represented to him that such a treaty would have that result, Mr. Knox said that he responded and agreed altogether in these sentiments.

"In the face of that, Mr. Taft in his heart of hearts had the idea, which he never communicated to us, that such an agreement would lead to the absorption of Canada by the United States. I have to say simply to Mr. Taft that he little knew the character of the Canadian people. [Cheers.]

Consent of Canada Necessary.

"If Mr. Taft, the President of the great American Republic, the mightiest Nation perhaps to-day in one way on the face of the earth—if Mr. Taft harbored in his heart or in his mind the thought that by making this agreement he could make Canada an adjunct of the United States, I have to tell Mr. Taft that Canada cannot be made an adjunct of the American Republic except with the consent of the Canadian people. [Applause.]

"I have to say further to Mr. Taft that the consent of the Canadian people cannot be gained by all the proffers or the wealth of the United States. [Applause.] I can say further that whether we trade or whether we do not trade with our neighbors, Canadians we are and Canadians we shall be. [Cheers.]

Let me go again further in this. If Canadians there are yet at this day who think that we cannot go into such an agreement with our neighbors, though the object of trade is of advantage to those who trade—if Canadians there are who think that for political reasons we should have saved that profit for us, I tell them that their objection carries with it the deepest humiliation that can be conveyed. [Hear, hear.]

"Are we to be told—I ask seriously—are we to be told—that we cannot trade with any nation on earth, no matter whether it be the United States or anybody else, without injuring our political independence? Are we to be told, as implied by the objection which we hear today since the publications of President Taft's letters, that the only basis upon which we can maintain our integrity as a nation, our independence, is by keeping a non-commercial intercourse with the American Republic? For my part, I say: Away with all such debasing thoughts! We are more manly than that. [Cheers.]"

After referring to commercial treaties made with the United States in the past and suggesting that trading with Canada's neighbors need not jeopardise her liberty, Sir Wilfrid said:

"I confess, Sir, that I cannot hear such arguments without indignation and shame as a Canadian. If you tell me that we should not go into reciprocity for economic reasons then I am ready to discuss it with you. Upon this question there may be room for argument, though in my humble opinion the argument is all on one side. But if they tell you that we cannot enter into a treaty of commerce with any nation on earth because by so doing we will impair our political independence, for my part I repell all such arguments with shame and indignation. The argument that we might me liable to lose our political independence is an argument that is against all the dictates of self-respect, conscience, and honor. But I know there are men in this country, men with whom I associate every day on the Conservative side, who believe that we should not have gone into this agreement for economic reasons. With such men I am disposed to discuss. Let me take some specific reasons for this view. I take a view given by Mr. Taft in his letter. He says, 'In the meantime the amount of Canadian products we would take would create a current of business between Western Canada and the United States.' Of course with this agreement that is the very object we have in view. But Mr. Taft goes on to say, 'It would transfer all their important business to Chicago and New York, with their bank credits and everything else.'

"Well, I would like Mr. Taft to explain to me or anybody else why, if we trade with the United States, if we buy and sell with them, why, in the name of common sense, we should transfer our bank accounts to the American side of the line. This passes my poor comprehension. I know to-day our trade with them is $400,000,000, and thank the Lord for it, and thank the Laurier Government also. It has increased fourfold in the last sixteen years. But I have yet to know that in consequence of this increased trade we have carried our bank balances to the other side of the line. Money does not recognize customs duties or international laws. Yet, I do not know to-day a single American bank which does business in Canada, and I know at least thirty places where Canadian banks are doing business in the United States.

"Do you believe that, if a man at the foot of the Rocky Mountains sends a bunch of cattle to Chicago he will receive his money in any other way than the usual method of receiving a draft from Chicago on Calgary or Edmonton? Do you believe that because a man sold his goods in the United States he would also send his bank accounts over the border? [No, no.]"

ARCHBALD WITNESS ASKS VINDICATION

JUDGE'S INFLUENCE ADMITTED

President Truesdale Testifies That Mention of His Name Caused Quick Hearing on Offer to Sell Culm.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Edward E. Loomis, Vice President and General Manager of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, to-day demanded that the House Judiciary Committee clear his name of "vicious lies" which he said appeared in the testimony concerning him in the investigation of charges against Judge R. W. Archbald of the Commerce Court.

Mr. Loomis was indignant over the statements of C. G. Boland, who told the committee that he understood Judge Archbald, Mr. Loomis, and President Truesdale of the Lackawanna were to be the beneficiaries of a $60,000 increase in the price for which Boland and his brother were to sell the Marion Coal Company to the railroad.

Judge Archbald's negotiations with the Girard estate of Philadelphia for culm banks on the Lehigh Valley Railroad were described by Supt. George E. Kirkpatrick of the Girard estate. He read from his files letters showing that Judge Archbald and three partners applied to James Archbald, Jr., engineer of the estate at Pottsville, Penn., to lease the culm banks of the Girard mines, being operated by the Lehigh Valley Coal Company. James Archbald, Jr., is a nephew of the Commerce Court Judge. In addition to letters from the Judge the witness described his personal application for the lease. The culm bank was not leased.

"When you received this application from Judge Archbald, did you think there was anything improper in it?" asked Representative Sterling.

"It did occur to me that it was improper for a Judge on the bench to engage in mercantile business," answered Mr. Kirkpatrick.

"Did it occur to you that the Judge might have been favored by the railway company because of his position on the bench, and did that influence you to decline his proposal?" asked Mr. Sterling.

"It occurred to me, but did not influence me," said the witness.

William H. Truesdale, President of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, called to the stand to testify to Judge Archbald's participation in coal dump dealings with his railroad, said he did not talk with the Judge about any deal, and did not know him. He said the Judge had not written to him, but to other officials of the road about the Marion Coal Company. He said a conference on this controversy was held and he attended it.

"How did you regard a Judge's connection with this matter?" asked Chairman Clayton.

"Naturally I was somewhat puzzled that a Judge should be concerned in this, but as the Judge lived in Scranton I thought he had a neighborly interest in the matter," said Mr. Truesdale.

"Did you think it was proper or improper for the Judge to be concerned about this matter?"

"I did not pass on the propriety of it. I will say I thought it rather unusual."

Truffault-Hartford
SHOCK ABSORBER

Joe Dawson in a National car equipped with Truffault-Hartford Shock Absorbers finished first in the 1912 500-mile Indianapolis race in competition with the world's best cars and drivers. With this equipment only was it possible to maintain the tremendous speed-average of over 78 miles an hour.

It is significant that the first nine cars finishing were Truffault-Hartford equipped.

Car	Driver	Time	Shock Absorber	Car	Driver	Time	Shock Absorber
1 National	Dawson	6:21:06	Hartford	5 Schacht	Endicott	6:48:23	Hartford
2 Fiat	Tetzlaff	6:31:29	Hartford	6 Stutz	Zengle	6:50:28	Hartford
3 Mercer	Hughes	6:34:56	Hartford	7 White	Jenkins	6:54:55	Hartford
4 Stutz	Merz	6:38:25	Hartford	8 Lozier	Horan	6:59:27	Hartford
				9 National	Wilcox	7:11:30	Hartford

The use of the Truffault-Hartford permits of maximum speed with minimum danger—a fact that explains its use by all of the leading professional drivers. It eliminates jolt, jar and vibration, saving car from excessive wear, tear and racking; it insures against spring breakage; eases the strain on the tires by keeping them on the ground. Indispensable for comfortable motoring, speed event, hill climb, endurance run, world tour, etc.

"GUARANTEED FOR ALL TIME"

Abbottisms

How many times have you ridden in an automobile that started so violently as to jerk your head back? Thought it one of the "unavoidable annoyances" of motoring, didn't you?

It is an annoyance that has been eliminated in the new 1912 Abbott-Detroit.

Eliminated by the use of a multiple disc dry plate clutch so excellent, so expensive to install, that the only other American car using it happens also to be one of the costliest cars in the market.

The Abbott clutch engages smoothly and starts the car with a noiseless, velvety ease that is a constant joy to Abbott owners. For this advertisement, we wanted a drawing of the clutch with the cover off. The artist went to our Service Department, hoping to find a clutch that was in for repairs. Our Service Department explained that not one of our three type Abbott clutches has ever been "taken down" or brought in for repairs. This explains why we have to show the clutch with the cover on. And also why we say the Abbott clutch is absolutely "trouble proof."

Built on two chassis—the "44" with a 7-passenger touring body at $1,800; a 4 or 5-passenger demi-tonneau at $1,775 and a 6-door limousine at $3,000. And the "30"—a little lighter, but the same wonderful car value, in a 5-passenger touring at $1,350; a 2-door roadster, at $1,250; and a Colonial Coupe at $2,150.

*Batted for Devore in the eighth inning.

Two-base hit—Mowrey. Home run—Meyers. Stolen bases—Hauser, Murray. First base on errors—New York, 1. Left on bases—St. Louis, 4; New York, 6. Double play—Willis, Hauser, and Konetchy. Johnstone and Eason. Time of game—One hour and forty minutes.

Smiling Joe Willis, who formerly pitched in the Trolley League in St. Louis, put a crimp in the Giants' winning streak yesterday, and his southpaw spinning landed the Cardinals a victory by a score of 5 to 1. Three times this season the New Yorks have won nine games in a row and slipped up on the tenth. Willis was wholly responsible for yesterday's tumble. He held the Giants down to five hits, one of these being a home-run smash between centre and right fields by Chief Meyers for New York's only score. After that Willis took great pains to give the Indian his base on balls.

This defeat was bound to happen sometime. New York fans have become so accustomed to Giant victories that yesterday's jolt was a shock, But, cheer up; they can still lose a few and have a chance at the pennant. Somewhat. It was the first visit of the season of Roger Bresnahan's troop, and they had fire in their eyes for the drubbing McGraw handed them in St. Louis. Roger himself caught the game and gave fatherly advice to his young pitcher, and not once did the huge southpaw totter in his work.

Not only did Willis have a répertoire of bends, but he also had a smile that would be worth a fortune to a political candidate. He smiled at the Giants, one by one, as they faced him, and this continual spirit of ha, ha, rather got the Giants' "nanny." Even when Meyers caved in the front of the ball for a circuit slap Willis came up smiling, and nothing like that occurred again.

Including the striking waiters present, some 7,000 citizens turned out to welcome the Giants home. They have been cutting some dash since they left town, and the deep-rooted notion of the Polo Grounds fan is that nothing can stop McGraw's fast team except dynamite.

It was the first chance that the waiters have had to see the Giants in action. This strike was lucky for them in that way. Since the season opened they have heard all abot the team as they served the soup. Yesterday they saw for themselves.

"Hooks" Wilts did some fine pitching while he was in the game, and for eight innings St. Louis got only five hits, and when "Hooks" was taken out of the game to give some pinch hitters a chance St. Louis was only one run ahead. Tesreau, who pitched the final inning, put too much spray on his moist toss, and the Cardinals banked the ball out in the sun to give it a chance to dry. Big Jeff was hammered for five hits and three runs in the ninth. And the pinch hitters for whom Wiltse was taken out succumbed to Willis just like the others.

The Cardinals showed much sprightliness in the first inning. After Magee fanned, Devore dropped Ellis's fly to left and Rube went to second, scoring on Mowrey's single. In the second Hauser rammed a red-hot hit at Herzog and stole second base.

Then a peculiar play happened. Oakes beat out an infield hit, and Bresnahan hoisted a high fly to Meyers. The Indian had to run far back to get it, and after the catch Oakes started for second base. Also, Hauser started for home. Doyle made a bad throw to the plate, returning Meyers's throw, and Hauser was safe, with Oakes planted at second.

It isn't every team that can harvest runs on foul flies to the catcher.

Meyers was the first man up in the second inning for New York, and Willis smiled on him as he did on the rest. The Indian gave the ball a terrific clout, sending it on a line between centre and right. It rolled to the corner of the field, bounding away from the fence, and Oakes was so long in trapping it that Meyers made the through trip easily.

New York had a good chance to do something in the seventh inning when Murray was safe on Hauser's fumble and stole second. After Becker and Herzog died, there was great rejoicing when Meyers came to the bat. Willis took the tip from Bresnahan and walked him intentionally. Fletcher was thrown out by Magee and spoiled the fun.

In the eighth inning Burns batted for Wiltse and rolled to first. Crandall, batting for Devore, fanned, and Doyle bounced an easy one to Konetchy. With Tesreau pitching the last inning the Cardinals lost no time in making the victory a certainty.

Mowrey got an infield hit, and was forced at second by Konetchy. Evans beat out an infield hit and Hauser rapped to centre, filling the bases. Oakes smashed a hit to centre, scoring Konetchy, but Becker got the ball back in time to get Evans at third. Bresnahan walked, filling the bases. Willis then took matters into his own hands and dropped a Texas Leaguer back of second where no one could reach it, and Hauser and Oakes scored. New York got two hits in the ninth, but nothing like a run.

"ALL IS NOT LOST."

If the Giants won them all it would put the league on the fritz.

And if the St. Looeys lost them all they wouldn't dare go back home.

Manager McGraw notified the umpires not to get sick or hurt because Hank O'Day would soon be back looking for his old job. The Reds are gathering much speed as they shoot down the toboggan.

That Western Union rule about long sleeves and high collars doesn't affect the fair attendants at the ball games.

Willis played for a while with the St. Louis Browns last season, but Bobby Wallace canned him. Another reason why the Browns are in last place.

Ground Keeper Murphy's flower beds are all in bloom, and he says he can keep the turf green and velvety for the world's series without any trouble.

Left-handed pitchers never were easy for the Giants.

Despondency Note—Charley Faust is back.

When Wiltse made a circus stop of Oakes's bounder in the fourth and nonchalantly spirited the ball to Snodgrass, Manager McGraw immediately nicknamed Wiltse "Brodie."

Giants have the thinnest pitcher in captivity. He reported yesterday from Guilford College, North Carolina. His front elevation is 6 feet 3 inches, and he looks as if he weighed about 110 pounds. His name is Ernest Shore. National League clubs better keep at a safe distance.

Jack Powell's Superb Pitching Easily Defeats Detroit.

ST. LOUIS, May 31.—Jack Powell's pitching, together with the locals' heavy hitting, was too much for Detroit this afternoon, and St. Louis won, 9 to 1. The visitors' lone tally was scored in the first, when Bush was passed and Cobb tripled. The score:

OLYMPIC TEAM HERE.

United States Athletes Will Be Seen at American League Park.

In spite of the fact that the Olympic try-outs will be held in Boston, New York City is going to have a chance to see the athletes who will represent this country. Forty hours before the steamer Finland sails for Stockholm all the star performers who will make the trip will come together, at American League Park on Wednesday, June 12, for their last appearance in the United States.

The meeting was arranged after a consultation between Commissioner James E. Sullivan and representatives of the Newsboys' Home, which was held last night. It will be held under the joint auspices of the home and the American Olympic Committee, and the opportunity to see the crack athletic performers of all sections of the country in action and at the same time help to swell the funds to defray the expenses of the trip and the cost of the new home for newsboys is expected to attract a large crowd.

SUPERBAS STEP A PEG HIGHER IN THE RACE

Double Defeat Sends Boston Down to Bottom of National League Ladder.

Brooklyn climbed out of the National League cellar yesterday afternoon, greased the chute, and gave Boston a push. The moving day scenes were enacted at Washington Park, where the two candidates for the extreme lower berth grappled in a double header, the Superbas grabbing both ends of the twin bill. The opener was decided 8 to 3, and the nightcap number by the score of 9 to 3. With three consecutive victories it is time for Pres. Ebbetts to pass around the eats again.

The two games were played in a storm of cinders that made 3,000 fans sigh for that new ball park which Ebbetts is building for his Superbas. The little cinders floated in on the wings of a stiff breeze from the powerhouse of the B. R. T. Company, just beyond the left field fence.

Those who sat through the whole programme know how it feels to take a ride through a West Shore tunnel with all the car windows open. In the sixth inning of the second game the play was temporarily suspended while Umpire Bill Brennan underwent an operation on his right eye, which had been clogged with cinders. Umpire Owens led the attack on his colleague's optic, while players from both teams gathered around. Some of them were unkind enough to suggest that the cinder had been bothering Bill all the afternoon. The crowd had a busy time offering suggestions for the removal of the cinder. The implements which they suggested ranged all the way from a monkey wrench to a derrick.

The Superbas gave a fine exhibition of hard and timely hitting in each engagement, and the stickwork of the Braves was woefully weak. In the opener Brooklyn drove Dickson from the mound in the fourth inning and continued the bombardment against McTigue. Meanwhile Yingling, the youngster, picked up from Toledo, was holding Boston to five scattered hits.

In the second game Brown lasted only one inning for Boston and Donnelly, his successor, was touched up for eleven hits. The Braves chased Don Carlos Ragon to the clubhouse in the second inning, but were powerless before Rucker. Three spectacular catches by Moran were the features of the second game.

Manager Bill Dahlen was suffering from an attack of stomach trouble, and the Superbas were in charge of Willie Keeler. The scores:

Fred Tenney in Shoe Business.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., May 31.—Fred Tenney, last year manager of the Boston Nationals and former first baseman of the New York Giants, has become identified with the shoe manufacturing business at Lynn as Vice President of the Usher-Stoughton Company. Tenney hopes to eventually visit the trade in some of the larger cities of the country as a real shoe salesman and is much interested in his work. The shoe business appealed particularly to Tenney, as he was born in a shoe town, Georgetown, Mass., and has always had more or less konwledge of shoes and leather because of his New England affiliations. Tenney's entrance into shoe manufacturing will mean his permanent retirement from baseball and his many friends will wish him every success in his new venture.

Reading Out of U. S. League.

READING, Penn., May 31.—The last United States League baseball game was played in this city yesterday. Cincinnati is scheduled to play here to-morrow, but Hugh McKinnon, the manager of the Reds, was disappointed with the small crowd on Memorial Day and took the team home to-night. It is said that the circuit will be rearranged and that only Western cities will be in the organziation. Indianapolis, it is asserted, will get the Reading franchise. Local players have signed with teams in organized leagues.

WOLGAST BEATS O'BRIEN.

Champion Drops Philadelphian for Nine Seconds in Second Round.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., May 31.—Ad Wolgast, lightweight champion of America, outfought Young Jack O'Brien in six fircely contested rounds at the American Athletic Club to-night. Wolgast dropped O'Brien with a left-hand hook to the jaw in the second round, sending the youngster to the floor for a count of nine. When O'Brien arose he not only surprised the crowd but also Wolgast, as he fought back like a young tiger and until the bell ended the round had the champion on the defensive.

Following out instructions, O'Brien made little attempt to mix it up with the champion in the third and fourth rounds, keeping him at long range. He was in and out, jabbing and stabbing the champion with his left and making Wolgast miss more than a dozen wild swings. Wolgast changed his tactics in the fifth and sixth rounds, and forced his young opponent all over the ring, giving him little chance to get set. It was in these rounds that O'Brien received his greatest punishment from the short-armed punches of the champion delivered at close range.

It must be said to the credit of O'Brien that he did the bulk of the leading, took all the chances, and made it possible for Wolgast to land his terrific short punches. Wolgast showed in this bout that he has not improved on his judgment of distance nor does he seem to possess the stamina which longer bouts would require.

COLUMBIA WILL WIN.

That's What Coach Rice Says of His Crew's Chances at Poughkeepsie.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 31.—In the navy week number of The Cornell Era James C. Rice of Columbia declares that he would not be loyal to himself if he did not feel and say that Columbia was going to win this year in both the 'Varsity and freshman races at Poughkeepsie.

"We are counting on five crews in the 'Varsity race this year which have to be beaten, and we feel that we can beat them," he writes. Rice declares that any one who goes to the Poughkeepsie races this year will see the greatest rowing that this or any other country has ever witnessed. He pays tribute to Coach Charles E. Courtney of the Cornell Navy, to whom this number of The Era is dedicated, and declares that there is a better feeling of friendly rivalry and sportsmanship between Cornell and Columbia than between any other two rowing colleges in the country.

Coach Courtney refuses to make a prediction on the outcome of this yeaf's race, but he declares that Cornell has a good crew.

Rain Stops Cricket in England.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, May 31.—Rain seriously interfered with the Colonial cricket matches to-day. The Australians scored 208 runs against Warwickshire, the latter's total for the first inning yesterday being 275. Northamptonshire, facing a total of 428 runs made by the South Africans, scored 99 runs for the loss of 7 wickets, when rain stopped the play in both matches.

Marshall Tied for Fourth.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 31.—Though closely pressed, A. K. Rubinstein, Russia's chess champion, maintained his lead in the international chess masters' tournament at Postyen by defeating Spielmann of Munich in the sixth round to-day. At the same time Marshall, the Uited States champion, was displaced in second position by Duras of Prague, who won from the American in the longest game of the round. Rubinstein heads the list with a score of 5 and 1, followed by Duras, with 4 and 1, the latter having an adjourned game in hand. Alapin moved up into third place by administering the first defeat to Yates of England. The former has a score of 4 and 2.

In the other games Johner defeated Barasz, Bulla won from Teichmann, Lowtzky scored against Leonhardt, Sterk defeated Cohn, and Schlechter drew with Salwe. The game between Hromadka and Breyer was adjourned.

Winners in Englewood Golf.

In the semi-final round of the club championship for women at the Englewood Country Club yesterday, Miss Eleanor Freeman beat Mrs. Lawrence Swift, 3 up and 2 to play, while Miss Georgianna M. Bishop eliminated Miss Louise F. Krug, 2 up and 1 to play. Both Miss Freeman and Mrs. Swift were out in 49. A peculiar incident happened to Miss Krug on the seventeenth green. Miss Bishop was dormie two, and Miss Krug had a put of about five feet to win. Her ball went into the cup, but bounded out again, and instead of winning the hole and sending the match to the last green, all she could do was to halve it. Miss Krug made the circuit in 97 as against 94 for Miss Bishop.

It was announced yesterday that a one-day tournament will be held next Monday at the Montclair Golf Club under the auspices of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. The Hackensack Golf Club has also planned a one-day tournament for the women on Wednesday, June 12.

COLUMBIA ATHLETE'S SHOT-PUT RECORD

R. L. Beatty Sends Missile 47 Feet ⅛ Inch in Intercollegiate Tryouts.

PHILADELPHIA, May 31.—The tryouts on Franklin Field this afternoon for the finals in the intercollegiate track and field events to-morrow indicate that the team championship probably lies between Cornell, last year's winner, and Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvanians qualified thirteen men, the greatest number of men in the eleven events in which trials were necessary, and Cornell pulled through seven, but the Ithacans are strong in the branches of the sport in which she will run men to-morrow. Harvard showed up well, but not as strongly as was expected.

Three of Pennsylvania's men are in the low hurdles and three in the high barriers. Cornell has three of her seven men in the half-mile run. Harvard qualified nine men, Yale eight, Columbia eight, Dartmouth seven, Michigan seven, Princeton six, Syracuse five, Brown and Wesleyan two each, Amherst, Bowdoin, Massachusetts Tech, Pennsylvania State, and Rutgers one each.

One intercollegiate record, the shot put, was broken. R. L. Beatty of Columbia in his second throw placed the distance at 47 feet ⅛ inch. The intercollegiate record was 46 feet 7½ inches, made by J. J. Horner of Michigan in 1911. Beatty also holds the collegiate record of 48 feet 7⅝ inches, made last year.

One of the surprises of the day was the shutting out of Pennsylvania in the 100-yard dash. She was expected to get one or two men through, but all of them appeared in poor form. The fastest time in the four heats in the 100 was 0:10 2-5 against a strong wind.

Despite the wind good time was made in the quarter-mile run and in the half-mile event. The best time in the quarter was made by Reidpath of Syracuse, who won his heat without being pushed in 49 4-5 seconds. Snyder of Cornell made the best time in the half-mile, 1 minute and 57 seconds. Good time was also made in the 220-yard dash.

Outside of Beatty's heave in the shot put another notable performance in the field events was Mercer's broad jump of 23 feet 10½ inches. The Pennsylvanian made this distance on his first and only leap. In the pole vault five men qualified by clearing the bar at 12 feet 4 inches.

Cornell's strength to-morrow is expected to lie in her ability to carry off the half-mile and the one and two mile events. Her followers expect the Ithaca athletes to get 20 points in these three races, while Pennsylvania's supporters hope to mount up the Red and Blue points by winning the major number of the points in the two hurdle races and in the high jump, with scattering points in other events.

The weather to-day was perfect and the track was fast.

Twenty-four men out of ninety-six entered in the 100-yard dash ran in four heats to-day, six men in each heat, first three to qualify in semi-finals to be run to-morrow. The summaries:

100-Yard Dash—First Heat.—Won by M. E. Robertson, Syracuse; D. N. Miles, Amherst, second; T. F. Rudell, Yale, third. Time—0:10 2-5.

KIRKBY AND TIFFANY REACH GOLF FINAL

Tuxedo Club Champion to Play Powelton Clubman for Honors To-day.

Oswald Kirkby of Englewood and Gilman P. Tiffany of Powelton advanced themselves to the 36 hole, final round, today of the invitation tournament of the Tuxedo Golf Club by winning their matches yesterday, Kirkby defeating E. P. Rogers of Baltusrol 5 up and 4 to play and Tiffany eliminating Archie Reid of St. Andrews, 1 up.

Reid and Tiffany are both former champions of the Hudson River Golf Association and the meeting of these two rivals brought about a keen match. Tiffany was down most of the way. It looked almost a hopeless match for the Powelton golfer when he found himself two down at the fifteenth hole, but by playing the next three holes in 2, 3, and 4 he became the winner by 1 up. The card follows:

Tiffany, out.....5 5 3 6 5 5 4 5 3—41
Reid, out.......5 4 4 5 4 6 3 5 4—40
Tiffany, in.......4 5 5 4 5 4 2 3 4—36—77
Reid, in.........4 4 5 5 5 3 3 4 5—38—78

Kirkby, who was the winner of the Tuxedo tournament last year, by virtue of playing good golf, vanquished Rogers 5 up and 4 to play, going out in 34 as against 43 for his opponent. Possibilities of a record loomed up, but as the Englewood man lost a couple of strokes thereafter, he had lost all interest in such an attempt by the time he had reached the fourteenth green. As the record for the course is 69, Kirkby stood a fine chance to equal it with the foundation he had on the outward journey.

One of the matches in the main set had Oswald Kirkby and William A. Larned of Baltusrol, the National lawn tennis champion, as principals. Larned plays a fair game, but he never had a chance against the Englewood record holder. The only time Larned appeared to advantage was in the early stages. Kirkby began by topping his drive, but a fine recovery permitted him to get home on the next and halve the holes in four. Larned won the second, and had he been a trifle closer on his approach to the third he might have won that also. As it was the hole was halved in four. With a four at the fifth Kirkby made the match even and then wining three of the next four holes he turned for home three up. He was out in 37 against 40 for Larned. Both won and lost coming, Kirkby finally winning 4 up and 3 to play.

It was figured that George Brokaw would beat E. P. Rogers of Baltusrol, but as it turned out the latter was able to hold his own and the match was all even at the turn. Going to the seventeenth, Rogers stood one up. Brokaw still had hopes, however, but Rogers settled the match with a three which made the Baltusrol man a winner by 2 up and 1 to play. The summary:

First Sixteen.—Second Round—Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, beat William A. Larned, Baltusrol, 4 up and 3 to play; E. P. Rogers, Baltusrol, beat George T. Brokaw, Garden City, 2 up and 1 to play; Archie Reid, St. Andrews, beat C. S. Lee, Tuxedo, 4 up and 3 to play; Gilman P. Tiffany, Powelton, beat Louis Livingston, Westbrook, by default.

Williams, Upper Montclair, beat N. L. Tilton, Tuxedo, 6 up and 5 to play; W. W. Hoffman, Newport, drew a bye.

MOTOR PARKWAY OPENED.

Forty-Mile Speedway Ready for Use with No Limit to Pace.

The Long Island Motor Parkway was formally opened yesterday with W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., the host at a function which included an inspection of the famous automobile speedway on which there is no speed limit, and upon which it is asserted there is no dust. Inspection of the course developed the fact that nearly every mile of the forty between Great Neck Lodge and a section close to Lake Ronkonkoma is ready for the patronage which desires no curb in regard to pace.

The finishing touches have just been put on that portion of the speedway between Beth Page Lodge and Brentwood, approximately seventeen miles, the construction of which is based on cement, with a top of a patent liquid preparation which solidifies almost as soon as applied, and which is said to be a boon to those who desire to save the tires of their machines.

Petit Trianon, a building fashioned after the famous edifice made historic by Marie Antoinette, graces the extreme western end of the parkway, and was the scene of the concluding ceremonies and a banquet which completed the function in connection with the opening. It is estimated that fully $500,000 will have been expended in fitting out the speedway by the time that it is finished, as $300,000 has been spent thus far.

AUTOMAKERS TO MEET.

Five Organizations to Discuss Industry in This City Next Week.

The coming week will be a busy one in automobile circles, and New York will be the mecca of the motor car industry. Five great National organizations have meetings scheduled. In addition, the long-delayed election of officers of the Automobile Club of America will be held. Although no official announcement has been made as to the next President of the Automobile Club of America, it is understood that Henry Evans is slated to succeed Henry Sanderson. Mr. Evans is a member of the Board of Governors and his term has three years more to run. He is Vice Chairman of the Executive Committee, and has been a member of the club since March 9, 1906. Since the election of the Board-of-Governors insurgent talk has subsided, and it is not thought that any further activity will be displayed by the opposition for many months at least.

It is expected that there will be present in New York next week more prominent men connected with the industry than ever before except at show time. The National Association of Automobile Manufacturers and the Automobile Board of Trade hold regular meetings on Wednesday, and the American Automobile Association will meet in semi-annual convention at the Hotel Astor on Thursday. The Directors of the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers assemble on Thursday, and the truck convention, the second of its kind in the history of the industry, will be called to order at the headquarters of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers on Tuesday.

It was announced yesterday that motoring enthusiasts at Philadelphia hope that a way may be found to get the Fairmount Park Commissioners to reconsider their recent decision prohibiting automobile racing in Fairmount Park. A resoluton looking to the restoration of the Fairmount Park road race has been adopted by the Common Council of Philadelphia.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JUNE 1, 1912.

THE STANDPATTERS' DEVICE.

At last the great Republican Party has thought out a tariff policy for the present session of Congress on which its warring factions have agreed and on which all the leaders are apparently willing to go before the people, if, haply, a candidate equally acceptable to all can be found. It is a policy quite worthy of the foresight, courage, candor, and devotion to the general welfare that have been the dominant traits of the Republican Party for something like fifty years in dealing with the tariff.

It is this: When the four tariff reduction bills originating with the Democratic majority in the House reach a vote in the Senate one after another will have tacked to it, as the Steel bill already has had, an amendment levying an exorbitant and oppressive tax on imports of paper and repealing the Reciprocity act. This the House is expected to reject as a matter of course. Then enough of the queer statesmen calling themselves "Progressives" will join the remnant of the "Reactionaries" to insist on this outrageous provision, and the bills will go their way to dusty death. And the reunited Republican Party will enter the Presidential and Congressional campaign with the proud consciousness that it once again has "eliminated" the vexed question that has so long and so pitilessly divided its ranks. A more hopelessly inept, insincere, and contemptible course it would be hard to devise.

Undoubtedly the chief motive for this extraordinary scheme was to spare the President the necessity of vetoing the tariff reduction bills that appeared only last week to be on the point of passage by the combined votes of the Democrats and the Progressives. The desire to rescue the President from this embarrassing act is a tribute to the strength of the bills with the people. If the standpat leaders had not known that the bills met the demands of a powerful and growing sentiment they would have let them go to the President and have made one more appeal to popular support of the protective system. They knew that the sentiment was the other way. They knew that the argument which the President would use—that tariff legislation should follow the reports of the Tariff Board—would carry little weight with the public, and by many would be regarded as a mere subterfuge. They felt that all their pledges for the last four years, so impudently broken in the Payne-Aldrich tariff of 1909, would be used against them, and that vetoes of the pending bills would be looked on as another violation of them. The nearer they got to the decisive moment when the President must act, the more they were dismayed. The vicious tax on paper seemed to be the trick that would save them, and they have adopted it, or made a beginning in its adoption.

So far as the lonely little contingent of the Old Guard in the Senate is concerned, this manoeuvre, though desperate, is comprehensible. They can count on the Democrats of the House to reject the paper amendment. There is no other course open to the majority of the House, and no inducement for them to take any other. If the tariff reduction bills are thus killed, the record of the Democrats will be sound and directly in the line of popular sentiment. They will stand on their concrete and definite action. They will present the actual reductions they put into their bills, and show—largely from the reports of the Tariff Board—what their beneficent effect would have been. And they will show how they have been held up in the interest of the Paper Trust. Thus it will turn out that the effort of the Republicans to dodge the tariff issue will only make that issue sharper and make still plainer the trickery of their party as to all the promises it has made.

The puzzling thing is the crass folly of the Progressives in lending their aid to this impudent trick. They have been weak and wabbling before time and again, but there was generally something they might hope to gain by it. In this instance there is nothing. After all they have done to divide the party in their efforts to control it, they are now caught in a device to unite the party, which is fatal to their control, and which in the end will not unite it. All the credit they have sought to get by their previous course is wiped out by their support of one of the very worst monopolistic combinations in the history of American industry and politics. Even more blameworthy is the attempt to close the door to reciprocity. If it be left open on one side Canada in time will surely accept it, and an enduring enlargement of the markets for both nations will be secured. Cannot the Progressives see this? The whole business is so amazing that one cannot but think that it will yet be reconsidered or abandoned.

THE COURT HOUSE COMPETITION.

It might have been expected that much fault would be found with the plan formed for the competition of architects in the matter of the new law courts. The Court House Commission has named ten architects or firms of architects entitled to compete, while ten more will be selected from the names of all New York architects or firms desiring to enter the competition who make application by mail to Mr. L. Laflin Kellogg, Secretary of the Court House Commission, within the next twenty days. A preliminary contest will then be held and the second ten competitors selected. The Jury of Award in both this and in the final contest for the Court House plans will comprise Mr. R. S. Peabody of Boston, Mr. Frank Miles Day of Philadelphia, and Mr. J. L. Mauran of St. Louis.

The favored ten architects and firms already selected, who need not compete for the privilege of entering the final competition, are McKim, Mead & White, Carrere & Hastings, La Farge & Morris, Track, Swartwout & Litchfield, James Riely Gordon, H. V. Magonigle, York & Sawyer, Charles Butler & Charles Morris, Associated; Trowbridge & Livingston, and Arnold W. Brunner. We miss in the list—everybody who knows anything about recent architectural progress will miss—the names of Cass Gilbert, George B. Post, Hoppin & Koen, (who built the new Police Headquarters;) Warren & Wetmore, and Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, (who designed the new buildings at West Point,) and others of National repute.

The commission's plan to avoid an open competition, with all its attendant labor and annoyances, is commendable. But the list of favored architects is too restricted, and otherwise open to serious criticism. It is not unlikely that architects of the first rank will refuse, in the circumstances, to enter the proposed preliminary competition. It would have been a better plan to restrict competition to architects who had designed and superintended the construction of fine buildings for public uses costing at least $1,000,000. As it is, an immediate change in the regulations is desirable. The competition should surely be open on equal terms to all New York architects in the first rank. Some of those named in the first ten can only be thus described with a great straining for politeness.

SIR WILFRID ON RECIPROCITY.

The Liberals of Quebec, who have just enlarged their majority in the recent provincial election, tendered a testimonial banquet on Wednesday to the greatest Liberal leader the party has ever had. Sir Wilfrid Laurier made the occasion one for the discussion of the defeat of his party on an issue upon which victory had been confidently expected. The marvel of that defeat has scarcely ceased, for, as the ex-Premier said, the Liberals and Conservatives were not opponents on reciprocity with the United States. For forty years it had been on the Conservative platform, and they rejected it only when the Liberals also favored it. The reason for the rejection does not lie in any argument regarding reciprocity. Said Sir Wilfrid:

> I need not tell you that on the Conservative side froth and fury took the place of argument and reason, and that they represented reciprocity as the first step toward annexation and that the contest was represented as one between the British and the American flags for supremacy in Canada. So far as such tactics were concerned I stand to-day as I stood then, and I say that all such appeals to passion and prejudice are unworthy of serious men. Even at this day it is asserted that if we sell our natural products to the United States we shall, as a consequence, sell them our nationality. I say to-day that if such an argument could scare Borden, Foster, or Monk, it could not scare me or any Canadian worthy of the name.

This is the plain truth. When the Canadian reciprocity agreement was announced it was thought that it was sure of success in Canada and doubtful in the United States. The reason was that the concessions to Canada were so generous that there was danger of the Dominion being hypnotized (in the phrase of that time) and of the treaty being defeated in Congress because so much had been surrendered. It was then said that Canada would ratify the agreement and leave it as a permanent offer available at the pleasure of the United States. The situation has been exactly reversed. The United States ratified the agreement, and has thus far left it standing. Canada rejected it, but not on its merits. The merits were forgotten the moment the negotiators had done with them. The negotiators dealt with the economics of the question, and reached an agreement advantageous to both sides. It was a statesmanlike bargain which cannot be criticised without raising false issues. That is a game the politicians on both sides the border understand, and they have played the game to the limit. It is a pity to find such a man as Sir Wilfrid playing it, even for the sake of carrying reciprocity. The coming campaign for it ought to be fought on the merits, but it seems to be necessary to fight a way to them through the Canadian obsession that we are secretly planning politics when we are thinking only of economics.

This must be the explanation of the stand Sir Wilfrid takes on the Taft-Roosevelt "adjunct" correspondence. That correspondence was private, and not published until after the Canadian election, which, therefore, could not have been influenced by what was unknown. Yet Sir Wilfrid demeans himself to hint that President Taft was a conspirator. He does himself less than justice. The President could not have conspired without the connivance of the Premier, and the agreement is the highest evidence that the Dominion Premier did not betray his trust. The entire course of the campaign on this side the border consisted of wonder and ridicule at the Canadians' idea that we were coveting them and their possessions. The good faith of this position appears from the fact that it was disclaimed even in this private correspondence, and the disclaimer was repeated in London on Mr. Roosevelt's authority. President Taft's motives were as good as Sir Wilfrid's, and it is not worthy of him to suggest that our Chief Magistrate adopted a cry of the jingoes.

Sir Wilfrid knows better, and disclosed his perfect understanding of the situation in another passage:

> It is an open secret that during the heat of the contest, when every nerve was strained to win, the special interests in the United States joined hands with those in Canada to defeat reciprocity, and sang lustily "God Save the King" while they whispered to each other, "God save our monopolies and trusts."

That is the milk in the cocoanut. Disloyalty to the ultimate consumers in the interest of the protected special privileges explains the opposition to reciprocity. That is the reason why the campaign against reciprocity failed to settle the matter. The merits were left just what they were, and they were and are good enough to carry Canada whenever they can be placed before the people without any "adjunct" nonsense. Last week five by-elections were carried in Alberta by the friends of reciprocity. There is no other single issue in Canada so commanding. The cry of loyalty itself does not unite the Dominion, as is shown by the inability to unite on any policy regarding Canada's contribution to imperial defense. When there are dissensions in the Dominion regarding the proportions of the British preference it is preposterous to say that there can be any permanent success in a campaign for the limitation of trade with the United States. Canada has tried every variety of trade treaty, and the uniform experience is that no restrictions which the people will tolerate will prevent trading where there is profit. The idea that trade is treason applies only to the United States. And the English opposition suggests the idea to Canada, although freedom of trade is the unshakable principle of British politics. There can be no long life for any party whose success is based on humbug.

WHAT ARE WE FIGHTING FOR?

"This campaign has been a fight by the rank and file against the bosses," says Mr. Roosevelt in his Outlook editorial article this week. If that statement is true, the condition of the Republican Party is shocking. Mr. Roosevelt is fighting Mr. Taft as the representative of boss domination, but since Mr. Taft has more than half the delegates pledged or instructed or favorable to his nomination it would appear that more than half the party is enrolled in defense of the bosses. The condition is really worse than that. In the preference primary States it appears that three-quarters of the Republicans are believers in boss rule. Mr. Roosevelt, the mighty champion of the people against the bosses, has secured, roughly speaking, only about one-quarter of the Republican vote, in several States less than one-quarter. Another quarter has registered itself at the polls directly against him, while half, by staying away from the primaries altogether, has indicated its acquiescence in the control of the party by the bosses.

We prefer to believe that Mr. Roosevelt does not know what he is talking about. It has not been a fight against the bosses, it has been a fight for the personal advancement of Theodore Roosevelt against President Taft, and the fighters have been that part of the people who have been awakened and inspired by Mr. Roosevelt's "corking" campaign. Everybody must admit that he is a somewhat awakening and inspiring agitator. It is he himself, not the widespread hostility to bosses, that has aroused the people.

Probably the Colonel will be furious at the comparison, but we say with deliberate conviction that William Barnes, Jr., of Albany has a sounder philosophy of this fight than Mr. Roosevelt. In his letter to The Times, published yesterday, Mr. Barnes says that this contest against Mr. Roosevelt has been waged for these principles:

> that this Government is a self-controlled democracy, where the people rule through the forms which they have established to prevent the democracy from degenerating into chaos, which must call for the rule of an autocrat.

In all his writing and speaking since the campaign began Mr. Roosevelt has not anywhere or at any time put forth an utterance so compact of the solid substance of truth as this single sentence of Mr. Barnes's letter. That is just what we are fighting for.

THE WAITERS' STRIKE.

The strike of the hotel and restaurant waiters, which is assuming a serious aspect, has been measurably justified in the public mind by the willingness of the employers to meet all the demands of the strikers except one. That one is recognition of the union. The idea of a labor union of waiters, however, does not commend itself to the public. The waiters, also, have injured their own case somewhat by timing their strikes so as to inflict the greatest possible annoyance and discomfort upon the guests of the hotels. It is well to say, too, that the tipping system is not popular, though it is recognized by the people generally as a necessary evil, by the hotel proprietors as a source of large profit to them, as it enables them to pay their waiters either very small wages or none at all, and by the waiters as their chief means of support.

Suppose the people who pay so liberally for the upkeep of the smart hotels and restaurants now affected by the withdrawal into idleness and conspiracy of many hundreds of workers should strike themselves, and organize a combination (which would be quite as legal as any combination of employés) to abolish the giving of tips? Now would be as good a time as any for such a movement. The hotel men would then be compelled to pay "living wages." Would any wages they could afford to pay satisfy their waiters?

There is no doubt that the waiters have been shamefully underpaid in most of the hotels, badly fed in many of them, badly quartered, compelled to dress in ill-ventilated rooms, and frequently compelled to give up a large share of their tips if not directly to the hotel at least to "captains" and head-waiters. There is no doubt of these abuses, because so many of the hotel managers have been eager to promise more pay, better food, better treatment generally. It is to their credit that they have admitted the existence of the evils and promised to remove them. It is to their discredit, however, that they permitted the abuses, until the threat of pecuniary loss compelled them to recognize the need of changes, that to their own short-sightedness and greed the strike is directly due.

Conditions thus in some measure justifying the strike, it is only fair to admit that it would have been impossible without organization. The union has made the protest of the waiters effective. The natural result is that the waiters demand the continuance of the union and recognition of its authority. In this crisis we fancy that the larger measure of public sympathy is with the employers. Thus far they have stood firmly in their refusal to recognize the union. Two ways out of the difficulty have been discussed. One is the employment of women as waiters. Cleanly, competent women waiters would be very difficult to obtain in New York in large numbers. The other is the employment of colored labor. Three New York clubs of the first class employ only colored waiters, and their service is accounted satisfactory. The importation of colored waiters from the South, from Washington, Baltimore, and Hot Springs, is only a temporary expedient, and it may lead to trouble. Nevertheless, the stand of the hotel men against the recognition of the union is intelligible. If the waiters are sure of fair wages and good food they would do well to disband their union and get back to work. The tips, we fear, will then be forthcoming in the old reckless manner, and a waiter who is in a way to get tips is better off without a union than he possibly could be under union rule without tips. And this public must do something to protect itself sooner or later.

Major J. C. Hemphill, one of the best-known newspaper men of the South, for many years editor of The Charleston News and Courier and later of The Richmond Times-Dispatch, has resigned the editorship of The Charlotte Observer and will become a member of the editorial staff of The New York Times.

The New York Times printed 842,275 lines of advertising in May, a gain of 103,225 lines over May, 1911, and the greatest volume of advertising ever printed in The New York Times in a single month—2,807 columns.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

For Once Not Exaggeration.

Rarely indeed has the death of any man been followed by the expression of as many and as sincere utterances of a sense of irreparable loss as has that of Wilbur Wright. The word "irreparable" is used not infrequently as a permissible exaggeration of real grief or respect—and of some that is not real—but in most cases there is an underlying recognition by all who speak or hear the term that the empty place will soon be filled. That is not the feeling now.

And it is not on anything ever said by Wilbur Wright himself that his claim to exclusive recognition as inventor of the first practicable flying machine can be based. Invariably he credited his brother Orville with having done an equal share in solving the problem of mechanical flight, and this, coming from the man it did, must be accepted, in a sense, as the truth, but somehow we all know that the elder brother's mind was the one that guided and controlled the work—that it cannot be replaced, though of course the art of aviation will continue to progress. The progress, however, will be slower than it would have been had Wilbur Wright not died in his prime, and probably it will be in other directions than the one he would have selected. The aeroplane is already worthy to be numbered among the most magnificent of human achievements—among the achievements that were nothing less than the accomplishment of the admittedly impossible. But its magnificence as an achievement it surpassed by its magnificence as a promise, and it was in the keeping of this promise that so much was confidently expected from Wilbur Wright. While he was alive, national jealousies and conflicting interests caused ungracious questionings of his priority and his superiority in the field of aviation. That has all ceased now, and France, Germany, Italy, and England unite with America in proclaiming that he taught the world that men could fly. There is every indication that the consequences of this lesson will be of an importance comparable with the number of centuries that passed before the teacher came.

There is, perhaps, a significance, hitherto unnoticed, in the name "Wright." Like all trade names, it tells what the bearer's ancestors were and did, and this one tells that the man came of a line that long ago was familiar with tools and skillful in their handling. No ordinary mechanic was ever called a "wright."

Virtue Still Survives.

Pessimists who think—or say—that in these degenerate days everybody is "crooked" and honesty extinct may profitably ponder this episode in very recent metropolitan history:

A man who had bought for a price not small four tickets to one of the most popular plays now running here, found, a few hours after the purchase, that they were not in the pocket where he supposed he had placed them. How, when, or where they escaped from his possession he does not know, but on notifying of the loss the agent from whom they were bought he was informed that, as the position of his seats was known, the theatre would recognize his right to sit in them—that, to put the case briefly, "it would be all right."

And it was, as the loser of the tickets found when he went to the box office to verify his information and to make sure that there would be no embarrassing scene with the finders of his property. At the theatre he was told that the tickets had been found and that the finder had telephoned in that fact, adding only that no attempt to use them would be made and that the seats could be sold again. No name was given, and his name remains unknown to the other parties to this curious, complicated, and novel transaction.

The honesty of the man who found the tickets is obvious, for he was subjected to a temptation which for many would have been strong, and for not a few irresistible, to get something for nothing. And he was considerate as well as honest, for he recognized and acted on an often ignored obligation to save other people from inconvenience when it can be done without too much trouble. Had he been only honest he would have torn up the tickets and let it go at that. Perhaps that is what he would have done had it not been for that greatest of all trouble-savers, the telephone.

Another point might be raised in connection with this incident: The finder of lost property is expected to make reasonable effort to find the owner, but neither the law nor custom defines the extent of the duty, while both recognize that after its due and fruitless performance something of ownership vests in the finder. If the original owner of these tickets had not appeared, to whom would the money for which the seats were sold have belonged? In this case the finder made no claim.

Justices Make a Mistake.

Of all the victims of insanity, none except actually raging maniacs are more dangerous to the community, or can with less safety be left at liberty, than those whose misfortune takes the form of believing themselves the objects of undeserved persecution. This delusion is a familiar symptom of a rather common, and usually hopeless, form of mental disease, but as the people suffering from it may long remain in other respects much like their neighbors, only too often no efficient attempt to confine or control them is made until after they have avenged their fancied wrongs by killing one or more of their imagined persecutors.

What seems to be an instance of ignoring this peril is supplied by the case of the man who has just been tried and convicted in Washington of fiercely libeling certain Congressmen who had refused to impeach certain Judges against whom he thought he had a grievance.

There is apparently adequate reason for thinking that this man is obsessed by the delusion of persecution, and the Department of Justice attempted to secure his sequestration. The Justices of the District Supreme Court chose to regard these efforts as attacks upon their dignity or discretion, or as interference with the performance of their duty. At any rate, they snubbed the representative of the Department of Justice and let the man go on a suspended sentence and his promise that he would make no more accusations against members of Congress.

It is announced that he will soon return to his home in England. The hope that he will do so, and remain there, may be selfish, but it is one hard to exclude from the mind.

WOODROW WILSON'S TRAGEDY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The tragic element in the career of Mr. Woodrow Wilson has been expressed with startling accuracy by Hawthorne in his "Mosses From an Old Manse." Can you among the "dark, unfathomed" effusions on the present political situation find room for the following?

[In the "Procession of Life" we find also] the man who should have lingered in the cloisters of a university digging new treasures out of the Herculaneum of antique lore, diffusing depth and accuracy of literature throughout his country, and thus making for himself a great and quiet fame. But the outward tendencies around him have proved too powerful for his inward nature, and have drawn him into the arena of political tumult, there to contend at disadvantage, whether front to front or side by side, with the brawny giants of actual life. He becomes, it may be, a name for brawling parties to bandy to and fro, a legislator of the Union, a Governor of his native State, * * * and the world may deem him a man of happy stars. But not so the wise, and not so himself when he looks through his experience and sighs to miss that fitness, the one invaluable touch which makes all things true and real. So much achieved, yet how abortive is his life!

Litter at Sunset.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is there not a remedy for the unsightly condition of Riverside Park at sunset? There are many who walk there at that hour who could enjoy its great beauty were it not marred by the newspapers which are left on the green slopes. I have never been able to find any receptacle for waste, and the people who leave their papers evidently have no regard for the neat appearance of this beautiful spot.

LENOX LIBRARY IN PARK.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Lenox Library building is on high ground, and the great architect, Richard M. Hunt, in designing the building, planned for the location it occupies. I stood beside him on many occasions when the drawings for this building were on his board. The building is a good example of the work of a great architect and should be preserved, particularly when it can be utilized as the administration building of the Department of Parks. I have heard the cost of taking it down and re-erecting it estimated at $150,000. In my judgment it will be more. The building is not of granite, but of limestone.

I can appreciate how reluctant The Times has been to approve of any encroachments on the Park. In the instance I refer to, all rules and exceptions pass away. The situation to which the library building should be removed and placed, in my judgment, is west of the West Drive in Central Park in the vicinity of Sixty-sixth Street, now occupied by the sheepfold. This location is elevated, and the character of the buildings on Eighth Avenue, or Central Park West, would make a fitting frame for a building of such individual character.

The sheepfold was for a long time a feature of the Park, but its full purpose has long since passed in its present locality. The sheep are in the Park, but there is practically no pasturage, and we see them driven from the meadow to make way for children's play. Whether or not my suggestion for the location of this building be adopted, the sheep should be removed to Bronx Park, where there are abundant pasturage and ideal conditions.

If my suggestion is adopted, the material may be carted from the present site of the Lenox Library building through the Transverse Road to the new site, so that the Park will not be defaced in any way by carting or building operations. There is an advantage in the short cartage.

The site suggested is more convenient for general use than the present Arsenal Building. It is near the Transverse Road, the Eighth Avenue cars pass, and Subway and elevated stations are at the junction of Broadway and Columbus Avenue, at Sixty-sixth Street. Another advantage is that the preparations for receiving the building on the new site could be completed within a reasonable time, and a new location for the sheepfold and its occupation conveniently arranged. We may assume that Mr. Frick is anxious to have possession of his land by the removal of the library building at an early day, and promptness is essential. If there be a better location to suggest, let it be brought forward.

WOMEN AND THE NEWS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your correspondent "J. G." refers to the infrequency of the instance of women to be seen reading newspapers in the cars, and The Times generously, or in jest, explains that the women read them at home. Beyond the cursory observation of the death or wedding announcements or divorce news, I have never observed those of my connection or acquaintance to be addicted to the delightful pursuit of news "fit to print," which contributes in great measure to the education of those of masculine avocations. This neglect results in the misty comprehension of many subjects made clearer by those trained and paid to be interesting in print.

Digressing somewhat, in any of the branch public library reading rooms, or those of the central building on Fifth Avenue, women are seen in few numbers. In the north and south rooms, irrespective of the other apartments devoted to technical or special subjects, but a very slight percentage are female readers. In the two rooms the seating capacity is for about 600 readers, and whenever I visit them I find, perhaps, about 200 present, of which, on an average, there are about 5 per cent. of women. One day last week, in the Boston Public Library, of fifty-two readers, six were women. The question is as to whether "they know it all" or don't care to know too much beyond fiction. By the way, a careful scrutiny of the expression of the faces of the men readers in the main library exhibits a placidity unfound in any other occupation. Without the building autos rage and a sweaty haste seems to prevail, but within there is peaceful intercourse, if one will, with the greatest minds of all ages. None of the readers seem to be possessed by an uncurbed ambition, inevitably foiled in realization. Not an expression is to be observed of one capable of wrecking a life, a family, a railroad, or a bank. All seem satisfied with conditions or intent in rational pursuit of objects that shall lead to the "vine and fig tree."

BROWSING.

WAITERS' STRIKE ILL-TIMED.

Just When High Cost of Living Ruins Restaurants.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The present strike of the hotel waiters in New York seems to me to be very ill-timed and ill-advised. My observation of the bankruptcy notices has been that a great many of our New York restaurant men have gone into bankruptcy during the past year or two, one such notice appearing on the same day as the account of the present strike.

The reasons for these business failures have been, first, the increasing cost of food, and, secondly, the overhead charges for music, display, &c., which have grown so enormously during the past few years. To meet these increased charges, the proprietors increased their prices and a large part of the public, in consequence, remained away, in some cases to dine more at home, in others to patronize plainer and more moderate restaurants.

The result of the present dispute will be probably an increase in wages to the waiters, an increase in prices to the patrons, a further decrease in patronage by the public, fewer tips to the waiters, which will easily eat up the few dollars' increase in wages, then further bankruptcies and fewer restaurants of the best class, with probably more of the plainer and more moderate ones. In either of these cases the waiters will be among the ultimate losers.

Far be it from me to blame them for getting all they can—everybody's doing it—but I am convinced a strike at present is no means to that end.

The best thing for the waiters to do is to go back to work, as the public also has an interest in this strike.

TO THE GREAT MUD-GUNNERS.

From Harper's Weekly.

You can kick my dog and chase my cats
And burn my house to kill the rats;
You can shoot the old mud-gun at me
And, when I have climbed, pull up the tree;
You can toss my bull and butt my ram,
But I insist,
With doubled fist,
Don't spit in the face of Uncle Sam,
For you set the people's house afire
When you call their President a liar.

Of him please say no evil thing,
For, Sir, my President's my King;
Archangels, only, near to God,
May lay upon his soul the rod.
Steadfast uphold his name and hand—
Lord God above!
Help us to love
The chosen of our fatherland—
They trail the old flag in the mire
Who call our President a liar.

Hell thrives on that the froward saith!
Why taint the well of public faith?
They do but start the Anarch's flame
Who dim the honor of his name;
And wild words, lodged in a witless head,
To madness have grown and to speeding lead,
So this I say,
In a fighting way,

IRVING BACHELLER.

TO OPPOSE LIBRARY IN CENTRAL PARK

WOULD REMOVE BUILDINGS

Congressman Sulzer Says It Would Be a Dangerous Precedent to Accept Such Offers as Frick's.

Strong objections to accepting the offer of Henry C. Frick to rebuild the old Lenox Library Building in Central Park will doubtless be made by the Parks and Playgrounds Association, of which Eugene A. Philbin is President. This association has frequently been forced to fight proposed encroachments on the Park space and it has won every fight with the single exception of the fire alarm signal station which was placed in the Park.

"There is no reason," said Mr. Philbin yesterday, "why the administration offices of the Park Department should be in the Park while there are abundant reasons why they should not be there. I am not able to say just what action the Parks and Playgrounds Association will take, but I have no doubt but that it will be decided to oppose the transfer of the Lenox Library to any site within the Park borders. Why, we even object to any extension of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and we are trying to solve the problem of giving the museum more room without covering more space in the Park than it occupies now.

"It takes a pretty hardy set of men to object to the extension of the museum because that is a very necessary and very popular institution, but we intend to object to its extension in its present location. Our suggestion is that a suitable site be provided for an extension in Riverside Park as a section to accommodate the statuary, thus making two sections of the museum. This could be done without interfering with the growth of the museum and without hurting it as a source of pleasure or instruction for the people.

"We have had to battle against the proposed building of stadiums in Central Park and against other propositions that would diminish the area that could be used by the public. Once we had to fight against the Academy of Design having a location there and we have won all our fights with the single exception of the fire alarm signal station, which got inside of the Park in spite of our efforts to keep it outside."

Mr. Philbin said that this encroachment was a small one, but his association considers it necessary to object to every attempt to put buildings in the Park. This work is considered the price that must be paid to keep the Park for the sole use of the public.

Reservoirs Should Be Filled In.

"The old reservoirs ought to be filled in and added to the Park space," he said. "Some time ago The Times had a plan for using one of them as a playground for the children, giving the little ones some place where they could play and romp as much as they pleased without interfering with anybody. I thought the plan was a good one and I still think so. The thing to do is to tear down the old Arsenal, which appears to be in a bad and insanitary condition, and turn the space it occupies over to the Park. Take as many of the other buildings out of the Park as possible. All of them should be removed except those necessary to confine the animals.

"There is no reason why the Park offices should be in the Park. It would be a good deal better if they were somewhere else. Certainly there is valid objection to using any desirable space for a building intended only for business purposes. I also think that the police station ought to be removed from the Park and that some of the obnoxious animals should be transferred to the Bronx Zoo, although I would not favor taking all of them away. Many of the people on the east and west side enjoy visiting them and they can do so without paying car fares, which is a consideration to some of the poor.

"Some of the people want the Park reserved for sauntering and lounging in and others want it as a playground and as a source of entertainment and amusement. Sometimes these two classes conflict, which proves that the Park is much too small. This being the case, as much of its space as possible ought to be kept safe from encroachments and many of the buildings removed from it."

Congressman William Sulzer said:

"It would be a good thing to demolish the old Arsenal Building because it is no good and has no right in the Park anyway. But if any building at all is necessary inside of the Park line keep the present building and make it habitable and safe. It is in the depression opposite Sixty-fourth Street, that is, an undesirable location, but don't replace it with another building on such a site as that north of the Transverse Road at Sixty-fifth Street. That is a splendid location and ought not to be occupied by any building.

"The people have to fight all the time, it seems, to protect our parks from the encroachments of business or from some scheme intended to benefit only a few. In the nineties a bill passed the Legislature and was signed by Gov. Flower providing for the building of a speedway right through the centre of Central Park from the southern to the northern boundary. There were mass meetings that protested and the newspapers fought the scheme. Finally I introduced a bill repealing the law and it was passed. Then the present Speedway was built.

"Of course the Park Department needs offices, but they ought not to be in the Park. Let the city buy a site for the Lenox Library Building and then if Mr. Frick refuses to give the building to the city we may be able to find money enough to put up as good a building and one that would serve the city's purposes just as well.

Suspects Rich Men's Motives.

"Central Park should be kept for the people's pleasure and not for business. Let Mr. Frick put up his building in the Park and pretty soon some other rich man will be offering some other building to the city with the proviso that it be placed on a Park site, and the gift of Mr. Frick will serve as a precedent. We want no such precedents, and the people must watch out that none are established.

"It seems to me very strange that a certain class of men are always seeking to invade the parks. I often wonder what their idea is. I think I know, but I may be wrong.

"Central Park should be kept for the people and every part of it ought to be at their disposal under proper restrictions tending to preserve it, but nothing should be done to deprive the people of its entire use."

COACHING APPLICANT TEACHERS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At a meeting of the Board of Education's Investigating Committee several nights ago, various Superintendents of our schools, including Dr. Maxwell himself, admitted the accuracy of certain caustic criticisms that from time to time have appeared in print, signed by a teacher. Coaching of applicants for teachers' and Principals' licenses, with the coach "forecasting five or six questions" when any single examination includes only six or eight questions, shows the practical wisdom of those educators who used the services of coaches.

All other admissions pale into insignificance beside this one—for the clever coaches who could forecast successfully did a rushing business peddling their pedaguese and the answers the examiners would accept.

The best, or, at least, the best known of the coaches being questioned at the inquiry, boldly declared that he had coached and was ready to answer any and all questions. He was apparently proud of it all—but the committee declared apologetically that it did not want any more views about it. The questions would have had to include "of what actual educational value was it all; how much money did you collect, and from whom?" This would open up too much, so it was stopped firmly and wisely.

BARNARD SENIORS ACT ON THE GREEN

FAIRY DANCE IS EFFECTIVE

Barnard seniors have been planning a long, endless dream for senior week, and they began their festivities last evening by presenting Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" on the campus. Perhaps the most effective feature was the fairy dance, in and out of the bushes, led by Elizabeth Gray as Titania.

The costumes showed that the students about to receive degrees have made great strides in appropriate dressing since their début in the freshman show; at all events, the friendly darkness made up for any defect.

The audience laughed heartily at Bottom and Flute, (Pauline Cahn and Chrystene Straiton,) but perhaps this may only be a proof of how familiar they are with their Shakespeare.

Lillie Stein as Puck came up to all expectations, and those of Puck are pretty high.

With lords, ladies, fairies, and "supers," almost all members of the class had a chance to take part in the final class play.

Mildred Hamburger, Chairman of the committee, deserves much credit for the splendid management of the play. It was especially hard to manage with two weeks of final examinations coming in between rehearsals and performance.

CATHOLIC RECTOR PREACHES SUFFRAGE

WOMAN MADE MAN'S EQUAL

God Made Her His Helpmeet—Industrial Greed Has Forced Her Down.

Father Joseph H. McMahon, rector of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, West 142d Street and Convent Avenue, preached in his church last night a strong sermon for woman suffrage and equal pay. The Church, he said, had always stood for the betterment of women, as early as the fourteenth century women had voted on equal terms with men, and there is nothing unwomanly or immodest in it now. Any one reading opposition to the franchise for women in the doctrines of the Church, he declared, is not well informed in regard to them.

The sermon aroused much interest among suffrage workers on account of the action of Father Matthew A. Taylor of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Seventy-first Street and Broadway, who dismissed a young woman teacher—Miss Aimée Hutchinson—from his parochial school because, not knowing that he would object, she marched in the big suffrage parade of May 4.

Father McMahon said that it was the enemies of the Church who were saying that it was against anything that was for the elevation of women and the statement that the suffrage movement was objected to by the Church because it would take women from under the influence of the priests was a calumny.

"A church which holds before the eyes of men and women a woman, the Virgin Mary, as the most perfect example of human nature cannot believe in degrading and enslaving women," he declared. "We draw upon ourselves such calumny by not having a clear knowledge of our own standing.

"St. Paul, indeed, said, 'Let the women be covered in the churches,' but he and the Early Fathers were struggling against the corruption of that time. Women were then but the toys of men, gratifying their lust and passions, and the best way to check this was to remove them from view. They only did what we would have done if confronted by the same conditions.

"The struggle between the sexes in intellectual matters is the root of the question. You know the stock arguments from the Scriptures to prove that woman is inferior to man. If you read the account of the creation carefully you will see that the Lord made 'male and female in His own likeness' and God blessed them alike and gave both dominion over the world. When Eve was covered with shame for her sin she saw a vision that was to redeem mankind, crush the serpent, and stamp out its power.

"Jesus Christ came on earth to restore marriage to its proper position. Woman was not to be the slave, but the helpmeet of man, and He made marriage one of the greatest sacraments of the Church. Woman was the companion of man in the union He sanctified. Man was indeed made the head of the family, but it was because evil had come into the world, and his strength was needed to protect the weaker vessel."

Father McMahon then took up the restriction of the priesthood to men. The work of a priest, he argued, required strength, and the old heathen religions, where women were priestesses, had become degraded and women missionaries, he declared, are not well thought of. Then, referring presumably to Christian Science, the preacher said:

"One woman has founded a doctrine, and it does not require much insight to see its doom."

"But this is no argument for the inferiority of women to men," went on Father McMahon. "Those who believe it is lean on prejudice or unproven assertions. They forget the conditions under which women have lived, and then they argue that because women cannot step at once into the same place as men they will never do so under similar conditions."

The preacher dismissed the argument founded on the comparative bulk of the female brain as having nothing to do with the issue, and then took up the question of different standards of morality for men and women.

"God holds one code of morals for men and women," he said, "and if men and women are expected to observe the same law, God must have given them the same powers to obey it. He who seeks to prove anything else in the Gospel must be much mistaken."

Then the preacher denounced the injustice to women in the Code Napoleon, and the theories of those leaders who have protested against all marriage and have advocated free love and trial marriages. It was, he declared, the changes in industrial and commercial life that started the women's movement about fifty years ago.

"The increased cost of living dates back to the last century," he said, "and it made impossible for men to support their families. Women were driven out into the business world. They came into competition with men who were ungenerous and unjust. It was all the fault of the same greed that causes present conditions, the desire for luxury and pleasure in both men and women. There was a lack of self-abnegation, and so we find inequalities in industry.

"There should be equal pay for equal work, and anything else is unjust, but it has been the way since women came into the labor market. Men have objected, saying that women have not the strength, but how much does strength count? A factory girl can go into a factory and press a button that sets machinery moving as well as the strongest man. In almost every way the element of strength is being eliminated.

"If the laws, in which women have no voice, could equalize the pay of men and women, fewer women would be employed, and men would have a better chance to support their women at home. There are many women, who would not care for matrimony, but would prefer to go into professional life, and there is nothing in Holy Writ to show that a woman should not engage in any profession that has been or can be opened to her.

"People hold up their hands in horror at the idea of women casting a vote and say she is degrading herself. Yet how old is voting? It began practically in this Republic, and now we are going back to Catholic institutions and traditions to oppose it for women, when there was practically no voting before the nineteenth century."

Then Father McMahon showed how under the code of St. Louis in the fourteenth century women had the same voice in the government as men, and went on:

"It is a big question and we must understand it before we talk about the woman movement. Something must be done to prevent its becoming anarchistic and socialistic. When it turns against marriage the Catholic Church will denounce it, but it will not oppose anything that makes for the betterment of women and the rights of the mother and the child in the home."

P. R. BENJAMIN DIES ABROAD.

Theatrical Agent Was Stricken with Pneumonia on the Teutonic.

A cablegram was received at the Friars Club yesterday afternoon announcing the death of Paul R. Benjamin at the Midland Hotel, Liverpool, of pneumonia. Mr. Benjamin, who was well known to theatrical people as an advance agent and manager, sailed for a pleasure trip to England on the Teutonic on May 18 from Montreal. His traveling companions were Frank Tannehill, Charles Bradley, and Bert Glickauf, all Friars. The party should have reached Liverpool on Tuesday or Wednesday of this week, but the cablegram gave no details.

Immediately after the receipt of the message John Rumsey, Abbot of the Friars, cabled Mr. Bradley, Mr. Tannehill, and Mr. Glickauf instructions to have the body sent back to New York on the first available steamer at the expense of the club. An effort was being made last night to locate Mr. Benjamin's father and mother, who live in Milwaukee, but whose address was not known.

Mr. Benjamin was about 32 years old. He was born in Milwaukee, and began work as a reporter on The Milwaukee Sentinel. His first theatrical engagement was as press agent of the Davidson Theatre in that city, and later he became an advance agent. He was with Maxine Elliott's company as advance man for several seasons. His last engagement was with Fritzi Scheff, and previous to that he had gone in advance of the Gertrude Hoffman company to the Pacific Coast. He managed stock companies in some of the smaller cities for several Summers. Mr. Benjamin was unmarried.

"Wild Man of Borneo" Dead at 92.

BOSTON, May 31.—Plutano, the last of the famous pair of "Wild Men of Borneo," died at the home of Mrs. H. A. Warner in Waltham to-day. Plutano is believed to have been about 92 years old, and with his brother, Wano, who died in 1905, had traveled all over the world. Plutano and Wano were among the most famous "freaks" exhibited by the late P. T. Barnum. The pair were brought on a ship to New York in the early fifties, and were said to have been captured on the island of Borneo. Since 1857 the wild men had been in the care of Capt. Hansford A. Warner or one of his descendants.

CAPT. ROSTRON GUEST OF MRS. J. J. ASTOR

GOES TO SEE MRS. WIDENER

With the Crew of the Carpathia He Will Attend Concert for Musicians' Families.

Capt. Arthur Henry Rostron, R. D., R. N. R., and Dr. Frank E. McGee, surgeon of the Cunard liner Carpathia, which figured as the life saver in the Titanic disaster, were the guests yesterday of Mrs. John Jacob Astor at an informal luncheon given by her at her home, 840 Fifth Avenue. As the hostess was in deep mourning, the party was very small, the only other guests being two widows whose husbands died on the Titanic, Mrs. John Bradley Cumings of New York and Mrs. John B. Thayer of Haverford, Penn. The Captain gave up his room to the three women after they reached the Carpathia on the morning of April 15.

The taxicab that took the Captain and the doctor from the Cunard pier to Mrs. Astor's house nearly came to grief on Fifth Avenue, at Twentieth Street, through losing a tire off a rear wheel. The taxi skidded into the sidewalk with a lurch that nearly threw it on its end. The driver managed to get his machine under control in time and no one was hurt.

Mrs. Thayer and Mrs. Cumings, both dressed in deep black, had reached the house before Capt. Rostron and Dr. McGee arrived, and had to pass through a cordon of photographers and moving picture operators.

The decorations in the dining room were pink roses and wild flowers. The menu was simple and had been arranged personally by Mrs. Astor.

Mrs. George D. Widener was to have made the fourth guest at the luncheon, and was to have accompanied Mrs. Thayer from Philadelphia, but she was unable to attend on account of illness.

After the luncheon Capt. Rostron went to Mrs. Thayer's home at Haverford and will probably call on Mrs. Widener in Philadelphia to-day if she is well enough to receive him.

Capt. Rostron said that he was delighted to have had the pleasure of seeing Mrs. Astor and her friends, Mrs. Cumings and Mrs. Thayer, before sailing again for Europe. He added that he was also very gratified on his own behalf and also on account of the officers and crew of the Carpathia for the enthusiastic reception accorded to him on Thursday night at the Winter Garden, but it was also rather embarrasing, he said, to a shipmaster to be suddenly thrust in the limelight before a large audience.

At Haverford the Captain will meet Mrs. Thayer's seventeen-year-old son, John B. Thayer, Jr., who was rescued with her by the Carpathia when her husband, who was Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was lost.

It was said yesterday that Mrs. Astor intended to present Capt. Rostron with a souvenir of the rescue of the women and children who were confided to his care for five days on the Carpathia.

The crew of the Carpathia, including Capt. Rostron and his officers and engineers, have been invited to attend the concert to be given to-morrow night at the Moulin Rouge for the benefit of the families of the eight musicians who went down with the Titanic. More than 500 band musicians will participate in this concert.

The bands that have volunteered for the memorial concert, giving their services free, are Arthur Pryor's Band, Gustav D'Aquin's Band, Lacolle's Concert Band, Soller and her male band, New York Letter Carriers' Band, Catholic Protectory Band, Hebrew Orphan Asylum Band, United States Navy bands, and United States Army bands.

HEN PROBLEM FOR MAYOR.

Mrs. Ward Thinks He Would Know About Hatching Chickens.

Mrs. Catherine Ward, who lives at 234 Williams Street, Long Island City, is a chicken fancier on a small scale, and the chickens she raises help to pay her rent. Several days ago she set two hens, and the time for hatching won't be up for ten days yet. Therefore, when her landlady, Mrs. Julia Klent, informed Mrs. Ward that she would have to pay up her last month's rent, amounting to $10, or be evicted, Mrs. Ward was horrified.

"Why, if I move those hens all those chickens will be killed," she argued. Mrs. Klent was insistent and Mrs. Ward consulted Judge Kadien of the First District Municipal Court.

"Would it not be possible to move those hens on a featherbed or something soft, and thus keep the life in the eggs?" asked the Judge when Mrs. Ward told him that she couldn't raise the money with which to pay the rent.

"I guess you never raised chickens, Judge," replied Mrs. Ward, with scorn. "Why, if you move those eggs the hen mother won't go back on the nest. There is no other way to hatch them. Only a hen knows how to turn the eggs every day."

Judge Kadien admitted that the question was a serious one, and, after looking up the law, he found nothing about stopping a process of eviction on account of brooding hens. Consequently, he issued an order that Mrs. Ward would have to move before next Monday or be evicted.

"I guess there's only one man in this city who can settle the question," said Mrs. Ward as she left the courtroom. "That man is Mayor Gaynor. He has written a lot about hens, and I'm going to consult him."

Thereupon Mrs. Ward started for the City Hall. The novelty of her errand preceded her, and it soon became noised about the City Hall that the Mayor was going to give a Solomonic decision regarding hens. There was an instant scurrying of reporters and photographers, but, after waiting all afternoon, Mrs. Ward did not appear. Neither did the Mayor. Some one suggested that the Mayor, receiving wind of the problem he would have to face, refused to come to the city, but it is expected that Mrs. Ward will bring the case to his attention later.

ROBIN APPEARS AS HIS OWN LAWYER

Too Poor to Hire Counsel, He Says, and It Doesn't Take Much of a Lawyer to Tell the Truth.

SUIT IN APPELLATE DIVISION

Lawyers Opposing Him in His Charges Against Cheney and Others Refuse to Sit with Him.

Stout, well dressed, and not at all discountenanced, Joseph G. Robin, the wrecker of the Northern and Washington Savings Banks, appeared before the Justices of the Appellate Division yesterday as his own lawyer, determined to argue his charges against former Bank Supt. Cheney and members of the law firms of Rollins & Rollins and Gifford, Hobbs & Beard. He wore a natty blue suit and straw hat and looked healthier for his fifteen months incarceration in the Tombs, where he is waiting under a suspended sentence. He journeyed in the Subway uptown to court in the company of a Tombs keeper. His affidavits charge Mr. Cheney and the lawyers with having conspired to deceive the court into ordering the preferential payment of $15,000 to Gifford, Hobbs & Beard in final payment of their services as attorneys for the wrecked bank.

When the five Justices of the Appellate Division took their seats one of the court attendants, with whom Robin had conferred, informed them that the bank wrecker was going to argue his own case. Austen G. Fox and Anson McCook Beard were about to take seats at the lawyers' table, but, recognizing Robin, who was calmly seated there, they visibly shied. Mr. Fox took a seat by the rail, among the lawyers who were waiting for cases to be called, and Mr. Beard took a seat near the other rail, among other waiting counsel. Robin thus had the lawyers' table all to himself, but this didn't seem to embarrass him.

When the case was called, Mr. Fox began an emphatic denunciation, both of the proceedings in general and of Robin in particular. Both Mr. Fox and Mr. Beard contended that Robin had ample opportunity to protest against the payment of Gifford, Hobbs & Beard's bill for services during the proceedings last year before Referee Ernest Hall. Mr. Beard, indeed, implied that Robin had started the present proceedings, with the tacit consent of the District Attorney's office, in order to pose as making reparation for his own wrongdoing, thus strengthening the effect of his testimony in the coming trial of ex-City Chamberlain Hyde.

Lawyers Protest Indignantly.

"It is only right to state to the court on behalf of the gentlemen for whom I am appearing in this infamous proceeding," said Mr. Fox, "that the only allegation of fact in it comes from a source which is tainted. Robin could not possibly have any personal knowledge of the one single fact involved in the charges as outlined in his affidavit that certain papers had been delivered to Mr. Cheney on which Gifford, Hobbs & Beard had a lien. I hope some expression of judicial disapproval will be given to this proceeding."

Mr. Beard added that the sole question at issue was the bill which his firm had submitted to the court for its services in representing the wrecked Northern Bank in more than 200 actions.

"Robin attended all the hearings before Referee Hall," said Mr. Beard. "He had every opportunity to oppose the payment of our bill. Yet the referee found in our favor. My firm didn't include in its bill all the law cases we handled for the bank and the bill didn't cover all our services. We collected several millions of dollars for the wrecked bank through the actions we brought. All this we turned over to the wrecked bank. This man over here, a self-confessed stealer of $1,000,000 funds of the Northern Bank and of several hundred thousand from the Washington Savings Bank, the savings of the poor, is the man who makes these charges. He is guilty of one of the greatest financial crimes ever committed in this city. This is the most infamous proceeding ever brought before this court."

Mr. Beard then went on to explain the details of the work his firm had done in the 200 lawsuits in which his firm had represented the bank.

Robin's Speech Short.

"We were very careful of the grounds of our claim for remuneration," Mr. Beard explained, "as any one should be when there is a crook like this around. This man has come to pose as a friend of the District Attorney, and is doing this simply to build up false public sympathy on his own behalf. I understand that he has been going around free recently, without the formality of a habeas corpus writ. He comes up here from the Tombs on a writ to-day."

Robin rose and denied that he had been allowed to leave his cell in the Tombs without the formality of a habeas corpus.

"I am here because I can't afford to engage counsel and because it doesn't take much of a lawyer to tell the truth," he said. He then handed his affidavit up to the bench, decision being reserved on it. The affidavit concludes with the statement that the acts complained of "point to moral turpitude and malpractice," "conspiracy to defraud the Northern Bank," and "deliberate and collusive deception and fraud upon the court in which all participated."

District Attorney Whitman said last night, when told of the intimation that he was behind Robin's suit against former Supt. Cheney and the eight lawyers, that he knew nothing about the suit.

"Robin is a valuable witness for the people in the Hyde case," said he. "Judge Seabury has the power to send him to Sing Sing, but apparently thinks he is more valuable as a witness here. As far as the report that he is allowed unusual privileges in the Tombs and that he is allowed to walk about the streets or the Criminal Court Building, that is ridiculous. The only times he leaves the Tombs are when he is subpoenaed in some legal proceedings."

Robin seemed to enjoy his outing thoroughly yesterday.

"Let's walk back to the Tombs instead of riding. I want some exercise and sunlight," he said to Keeper Setternich as he left the courtroom.

"GO WEST" BOOM REVIVED.

Government Officials and Railroad Men Renew the Invitation.

CHICAGO, May 31.—A conference between officials of the United States Reclamation Service and railroad men was held here to-day to devise plans to induce residents of Eastern cities to settle on farms in the West.

It was suggested that a National bureau of information for the dissemination of facts regarding Western lands open for settlement be established under Government direction. Speakers declared that one of the chief factors in the recent decrease in emigration to Western lands was the promotion of numerous fraudulent land schemes.

"We want to do everything possible to revive the old spirit which years ago caused Eastern people to go West in large numbers, and which in recent years has been on the wane," said Director F. H. Newell of the Reclamation Service.

Others present at the conference were C. J. Blanchard, statistician, and C. F. Carpenter, settlement agent, of the Government's Reclamation Service; W. D. Candland, President of the Utah State Land Board, and C. R. Seagraves, colonization agent of the Santa Fé Railroad.

SCHWAB IN ALABAMA COAL.

Will Reorganize Consolidated Company if Merger Plan Fails.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, May 31.—At a meeting of the preferred and common stockholders of the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company here this afternoon announcement was made by Joseph H. Hoadley, Chairman of the corporation, that Charles M. Schwab had promised to become interested financially in the Alabama Consolidated and to reorganize the company provided the merger with the Southern Iron and Steel Company does not go through.

Facts also developed at the meeting which tend to prove that the efforts of the committee appointed a year ago to merge the Alabama Consolidated Coal and Iron Company and the Southern Iron and Steel Company have proved fruitless. The entire plan will likely be dropped.

Mr. Hoadley read a copy of a letter written by Mr. Schwab to a member of the firm of Harvey Fisk & Sons of New York, which was to head the syndicate organized to take care of the underwriting under the merger plan. Mr. Schwab wrote that he was willing to become interested in the company provided its status remained as it is now and that he would aid Fisk & Sons in every way to work out some new financial plan for the corporation.

Mr. Hoadley also announced that Harvey Fisk & Sons were willing to expend $2,000,000 in refinancing the Alabama Consolidated in the event that it remained an in dependent company.

FAVOR U. S. RUBBER PLANS.

Stockholders Approve Directors' Proposals by 558,569 to 2,982.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the United States Rubber Company yesterday the vote was largely in favor of the propositions, informally submitted, 558,569 shares for approval, and 2,982 against it. The Directors called a special stockholders' meeting to be held at New Brunswick on June 17 for effective action on the matter.

The stockholders will vote upon two resolutions adopted by the Directors yesterday, one declaring advisable the increase of the capital stock to $120,000,000, to consist of $70,000,000 first preferred stock, $10,000,000 second preferred, and $40,000,000 common; and the other declaring advisable the retirement from time to time of such second preferred stock as may be sold to the company by the holders by the issue to them of first preferred at the rate of three shares for four shares of second preferred.

The support of two-thirds of each kind of stock is required to carry the resolutions, which will be voted on separately. The transfer books will close on June 6 and reopen on June 18.

SUBWAY ROUTES APPROVED.

Only Mayor's Signature Needed to Legalize South Brooklyn Lines.

The Board of Estimate adopted yesterday eight rapid transit routes which had been sent over by the Public Service Commission after it had approved them. They will now have to receive the assent of Mayor Gaynor. No doubt is expressed that the Mayor will sign them.

These eight routes include the South Brooklyn lines and short sections which are necessary to carry out the dual subway plan. The proposed Park Place-William Street subway, which it is proposed to give to the Interborough, has been approved by the Public Service Commission, but was not sent over to the board in time to be placed on yesterday's calendar. It was set down yesterday for a public hearing next week.

ASK LOWER 'PHONE RATE.

Midwood Section of Flatbush Wants to Enter Five-Cent Zone.

ALBANY, May 31.—The Flatlands Property Owners' Association of Brooklyn has petitioned the Public Service Commission to include the Midwood section of Flatbush within the zone for which the commission recently ordered the New York Telephone Company to establish a five-cent rate from Manhattan Borough to Brooklyn. The complaint says that the present rate is 10 cents, although the five-cent rate is in effect in other sections of Flatbush.

Citizens of Inwood, Lawrence, Cedarhurst, Woodmere, and Hewlett, Nassau County, have filed a complaint against the New York Telephone Company, alleging that the present rates are unjust and excessive.

POSTAL FOREST FIRE PATROL.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—By an order issued to-day Postmaster General Hitchcock has strengthened the forest fire preventive forces by almost 55,000 men. These men are the rural and star route carriers of the postal service, who are directed to co-operate with the forest rangers and State Fire Wardens whenever possible.

Forest fires last year destroyed approximately $50,000,000 worth of property. The Department of Agriculture has been anxious to increase in every way the efficiency of its preventive service. Postmaster General Hitchcock has found the way to offer assistance, and as soon as his plan was found feasible the order referred to was issued.

Some adequate idea of the immense value which this assistance will prove can be formed when it is remembered that there are about 42,000 rural and 13,000 star route carriers. The routes for the most part lie through the wilder and more sparsely inhabited parts of the country, more often than not through the wilderness itself. Over their regular paths, therefore, they have every opportunity to observe closely what is going on.

The carrier's duty on observing fire, or indications of fire, is to notify the nearest forest official or Fire Warden. If it is impossible for him to do this in person he must obtain the services of some citizen, who will transmit the message by telephone, if possible. Postmasters in or near National forests are also instructed to report any fires that they observe to the nearest forest official.

With this force of almost 55,000 men using their powers of observation in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture's forest service, the safeguards against these most destructive fires are tremendously increased. Mr. Hitchcock's contribution to this work is virtually a fire patrol covering about 1,200,000 miles, for a great part through regions most likely to be threatened.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

Full Duty on Bonded Goods Reimported—Whips Not Saddlery.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday handed down a decision which will have the effect of putting an end to the storage of importers' merchandise in the Federal bonded warehouses for indefinite periods. While the decision deals with a protest filed by Newmann & Gach, the ruling is of general application. It appears that the firm imported leaf tobacco at New York on Dec. 30, 1907, which was sent to a bonded warehouse, where it remained until Dec. 23, 1910, at which time a rewarehousing withdrawal entry was made for transportation and exportation to Canada.

The tobacco was later reimported from Canada, and arrived in Chicago Jan. 5, 1911. The Collector at the latter port assessed the same duty as had been levied at this port upon original entry less the duty on six pounds of samples which had been duty-paid at Chicago. The protestants claimed that the merchandise is assessable on the actual weight at the time of entry after its reimportation. In his decision for the board Judge Somerville says the testimony is undisputed that the object of the withdrawal of the merchandise from bond, its exportation to Canada, and its reimportation into the United States was simply to secure an extension of the three years' time allowed by Section 2,971 of the Revised Statutes. This section provides that goods remaining in bonded warehouses beyond three years shall be deemed abandoned and the merchandise sold at public auction.

The importers sought to evade this provision of the law by shipping the tobacco to the Dominion and thence back into this country again. In overruling the protest Judge Somerville says that the exportation of the merchandise for the purpose stated, and not with the intention of giving it a foreign status, was not bona fide. He holds that the bringing of the goods back into this country was not an "importation" within the contemplation of the law. It is held the tobacco is dutiable upon its reimportation according to its condition, weight, and value at the time of its original entry. The Collector's action in reassessing the goods is affirmed.

In denying a contention raised by A. D. Jones the board, in a decision by Judge McClelland, holds that carriage whips are not saddlery within the meaning of the Tariff act of 1909. They were returned for duty at 40 per cent. ad valorem as "manufactures of leather not specially provided for." They were claimed to be dutiable at 20 per cent., or at 35 per cent. under paragraphs of the act referring to saddlery. The Collector's classification stands.

DRY GOODS BUYERS FEW.

The Day's Business Confined to the Smaller Merchants.

Following the holiday, the activities of buyers in the New York dry goods markets were generally limited yesterday. Out-of-town buyers were few, and important local buyers were conspicuously absent. The day's business was for the most part confined to the purchases of the smaller merchants of the city, and in most instances the quantity of merchandise bought was small enough to permit the goods being carried away by the purchaser.

The usual late-week dullness was also responsible to a certain extent for the lack of trading in evidence, and taken as a whole the day's sales reached no great proportions. Little business is looked for to-day, but in the principal secondary distributing centres an excellent business is expected to develop in the coming week. Reports from various sources indicate yesterday's mail orders to have been liberal, both in number and the quantity of merchandise wanted.

Trading in wash goods was small. Buyers were fairly active, but the individual orders were nominal. Practically the same conditions marked the buying of white goods, silks, laces, and embroideries. Seasonable hosiery and underwear moved slowly, the latter having the better call. One of the principal dress goods factors in the market reported the sale of the first diversified lot for Fall off the floor, the order amounting to about $2,500.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Shipments of honey from Southern California this season will aggregate about $2,500,000 in value, according to a report from Riverside, Cal. With favorable weather, it is estimated that the tonnage of honey stored away by the bees will require several hundred cars of 60,000 pounds capacity to move.

E. E. Martin, who for the last seven years has been with the J. Spencer Turner Company, 88 Worth Street, severed his connection with that firm yesterday. Mr. Martin will to-day become President and General Manager of the International Rubber Company, 320 Broadway.

MISCELLANEOUS MARKETS.

SUGAR—The refined sugar market was closed yesterday, consequently prices were unchanged. The following quotations are net, less discount of 2 per cent. for cash: Crystal dominoes in cases of 60 two-pound cartons, $8.20; in cases of 24 five-pound cartons, $7.70; Eagle tablets, $6.50; cut loaf, $6; crushed, $5.90; Mold A, $5.55; cubes, Eagle five-pound bags, powdered, and Eagle confectioners' granulated, $5.45; XXXX powdered, $5.35; powdered, coarse powdered, and Eagle coarse granulated, $5.30; fruit powdered and Eagle extra fine granulated, $5.20; Eagle, two, three and one-half, and five pound cartons of fine granulated, $5.40; Eagle, two-pound bags, fine granulated, $5.50; three-and-one-half-pound bags, $5.45; five-pound bags, $5.40; ten-pound bags, $5.35; twenty-five and fifty-pound bags and standard granulated, $5.25; fine granulated and Diamond A, $5.20; confectioners' A and No. 1, $5.05; Nos. 2 to 12, $5@$4.50, in five-cent ranges; Nos. 13, 14, and 15, $4.45.

Raw sugar was steady and unchanged, at $3.98 for centrifugal, 96-test, $3.48 for Muscovado, 89-test, and $3.23 for molasses, 89-test. Offerings were small at the above prices, as sellers were inclined to hold out for a slight advance. Sales were reported of 3,000 tons of Philippine Island sugar, in port, at $3.28 basis, 88-test, which is on a parity with above quotations.

TEA EXAMINER IN OFFICE.

George F. Mitchell Begins His Work To-day.

George F. Mitchell of the Department of Agriculture, who was recently appointed supervising tea examiner by the Treasury Department, assumes his duties to-day. According to a statement issued by the department, these will be to visit the various ports at which tea examiners are stationed in order to observe and report the methods of inspection in vogue, the instruments and apparatus used in making the tests, and to keep all records pertaining to the work. He will also perform any further duties assigned by the Secretary of the Treasury in connection with the enforcement of the Tea act and the new regulations regarding inspection of imports drawn up by the Government Tea Board.

The appointment of the supervising examiner was made by the department to insure uniformity of method in the examination of teas under the act of March 2, 1897, and followed a petition forwarded to Secretary MacVeagh by members of the New York tea trade several months ago asking that a supervising examiner be appointed. In the petition the contention was made by local importers that inspection of teas at the various ports of entry was not uniform, and that examinations at the Port of New York were more strict than at the other ports. This lack of uniformity, it was contended, worked against the best interests of New York importers.

The new supervising examiner, although only 31 years old, has for some time been connected with the Government tea farm at Summerville, N. C., and has also acted as secretary of the present Tea Board for several months. His appointment is favorably looked upon by the members of the local trade.

COTTON DUCK EXPORTS.

Decrease of $133,632 in Last Week's Business.

Statistics covering exports of domestics and cotton duck from this port for the week which ended May 25, compiled by the Custom House, show a decrease of 694 packages and $133,632 in value, compared with shipments of similar merchandise in the previous week. Exports for the week amounted to 8,168 packages, and were valued at $465,196. Despite the decrease shown by the foregoing figures, shipments of these goods recorded since Jan. 1, 1912, exceed those of the corresponding period in 1911 by 65,281 packages. The gain in the value of merchandise forwarded is $3,243,872.

Exports to China, Central America, and Cuba headed the list of the week's shipments, being valued at $94,079; $93,491 and $37,443, respectively. Total exports of this merchandise from the Port of New York to all parts of the world since the beginning of the current year, aggregate 189,228 packages, valued at $12,453,498, against 123,947 packages, valued at $9,209,626 forwarded in the same period in 1911.

Notwithstanding the year's increase shown by the customs figures, current trading in the local export market is said to be the source of considerable dissatisfaction. Philippine business continues to come forward in good volume, as do orders from Central and South America, but the prolonged absence of a normal demand from China and the Red Sea districts, for which Aden is the chief distributing centre, is having a detrimental effect on the New York market. Prices are already reported to be weakening on certain lines. With the present outbreak in Cuba, adding to the difficulties of carrying on foreign business caused by trouble in China and around Aden, the position of local exporters from a business standpoint is far from enviable.

231 Business Failures This Week.

Bradstreet's reports 231 business failures in the United States during the week, against 218 for the previous week and 168, 160, 191, and 225 for the corresponding weeks of 1911 to 1908. The Middle States had 75, New England 21, Southern 47, Western 45, Northwestern 17, and Far Western 26. Canada had 17, against 21 for the preceding week. About 88 per cent. of the total number of concerns failing had capital of $5,000 or less and 8 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

8,891. WHARF CONSTRUCTION.—The American Consul General at Ottawa, Ontario, reports that the Department of Public Works has advertised for tenders for constructing a wharf at Fredericton, N. B., and a pile wharf at Edmondton, Alberta. Bids for the former will be received until June 6, and plans, specifications, and form of tender can be obtained for both undertakings at the Department of Public Works, Ottawa, Ontario. Tenders for the wharf at Edmondton will be received until June 17.

8,892. TIMBER CONCESSIONS.—An American Consular officer in Russia has forwarded copies of letters received from a resident of that country in regard to a timber proposition, in which he wishes to interest American capitalists. Copies of the correspondence, containing further details, will be sent to firms applying to the Bureau of Manufactures.

8,893. HEATING APPARATUS.—A report from an American Consul in Africa states that a firm in his district engaged in tendering for large heating contracts, is desirous of receiving from American manufacturers catalogues, price lists, and full information concerning radiators, boilers, and heating apparatus of all descriptions for steam, hot and warm water heating. Cable addresses and codes should be included in the information furnished. Up to the present materials for heating systems have been purchased principally in England, and this is an opportunity for American manufacturers to secure at least a share of this trade if they are prepared to quote satisfactorily on the business. It is strongly urged that manufacturers responding should send duplicates of their catalogues and other information to the Consulate for use in answering future inquiries of a similar nature.

8,894. ROAD MACHINERY AND IRON BRIDGES.—Supplementing a previous report on road construction in a Latin-American country an American Consul reports that in addition to the road machinery already purchased, the Government will probably need more traction engines, rock crushers, cars, &c. These will be ordered early next year. About thirteen bridges from 27 to 105 feet long must be built. No provision is made for the material to be used in constructing these bridges, but the Consulate was requested to obtain catalogues and price lists showing iron bridges. Communications should be addressed in Spanish to the inquirer, and it would be well also to send catalogues and price lists to another person whose name is furnished.

8,895. BENZINE.—A business firm in a foreign country has written an American Consul that it desires to receive regularly large shipments of American benzine direct, and it would like to get in touch with firms in a position to furnish such requirements. The firm desires to receive this article as cheaply as possible, without the necessity of paying duty in two different countries.

8,896. MOVING PICTURE FILMS.—An American Consul in Russia reports that a business man desires to obtain the sole agency covering the territory of Siberia and Northern Manchuria for American moving picture films. His idea is to introduce the films by means of establishing a film exchange, and with that end in view would be pleased to receive catalogues and enter into correspondence with American manufacturers of this article as to terms and conditions.

8,897. COLLAPSIBLE LIFEBOATS.—A report from an American Consular officer in Europe states that a firm in his district desires to be placed in communication with American makers of collapsible lifeboats. Owing to recent marine disasters there will probably be a considerable demand for boats of this class in the country in question. The inquirer is prepared to purchase or act as representative. Satisfactory references can be furnished. Correspondence in English, French, or Italian. Catalogues, prices, discounts, and terms desired.

8,898. WOOD HANDLES AND HARDWARE.—An American Consular officer in the United Kingdom reports that a resident of his district has expressed a desire to obtain agencies for American makers of wood handles of all descriptions and for manufacturers of hardware.

8,899. MACHINERY FOR RUBBING OR POLISHING STONE.—A firm in England engaged in stone quarrying has informed an American Consulate that it would be very much interested in any improved machinery for rubbing or polishing stone. Correspondence should be sent direct to the firm.

8,900. WOOLEN AND COTTON MATERIALS FOR LADIES' BLOUSES AND ROBES.—A report from an American Consular officer states that a manufacturers' agent in his district desires to enter into negotiations for the purpose of obtaining agencies for American printers of woolen and cotton materials suitable for the making of ladies' blouses and robes. The inquirer states that he has first-class connections with important buyers of these materials and is already doing a large trade for several important Continental manufacturers. References furnished.

8,901. RAW ASBESTOS AND ASBESTOS RINGS AND PACKING.—An American Consul in the United Kingdom reports that a firm in his district making asbestos desires quotations on raw asbestos. Another firm of asbestos merchants desires to purchase asbestos rings and packing.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Bear pressure, such as that which was exerted against the market on Wednesday, was renewed at the opening of trading yesterday. Before the session had advanced very far, liquidation was being forced in several parts of the list and when, after a period of dullness, the pressure on the market was again renewed in the afternoon, the downward movement became so general that at the close there were very few stocks which had escaped net losses. Neither the liquidation nor the bear selling was on an unusually large scale, but the losses which prices suffered amounted to something more than an ordinary reaction.

It was not the specific news of the day which was responsible for the downward movement or, at least not responsible for its inception, although the weakness may have been increased in the afternoon by the move which was made in the courts to subject subsidiary companies of the recently dissolved Tobacco Trust to somewhat the same scrutiny which is being applied in the Waters-Pierce case to the Standard Oil Company. This at most, however, was but an incident of the selling, and the stocks most directly concerned were little affected by this news. What really was under way was an undoing of the advance in prices recently brought about by the active manipulation in which certain groups of traders engaged and in which they were not supported by conservative market sentiment. The fact that such heavy declines as those recorded yesterday, following the losses recorded during the previous session, resulted from sales which represented an aggregate of little more than 600,000 shares, indicates that the market had moved into a somewhat hollow position in which underlying support was very light. It was just such a situation as made possible the success of the bear movement which has been directed against the market these last few days. From this point of view it was not so much yesterday's decline which called for an explanation as it was the previous rise in prices, particularly in the issues identified with the group whose operations have been most conspicuous.

Except as a broad underlying factor affecting the attitude toward the market of those who cannot very easily alter their views regarding the seriousness of some of the political proposals of the day, it is hardly necessary in a discussion of yesterday's market to refer at all to the political situation. It is true that it was considerably discussed, but not as an immediate explanation of the day's movement of prices. Indeed, it is coming more and more the fashion in the financial district at the moment to turn what it lately regarded as a dangerous possibility into a positively favorable factor. At least in the lighter argument of the Street one now finds many references to the favorable developments in respect to business and financial matters which would follow the success of the most radical candidate who has aspired to the Presidency. This suit, and that suit, are to be withdrawn, the Inter-State Commerce Commission is to change its attitude toward advances in freight rates and the railroads allowed to put up their charges, and there is to proceed from the White House utterances which will uniformly encourage industry and commerce. This, and much more, can be heard by way of argument that what many people in Wall Street have come to regard as inevitable should work not to the disadvantage, as was recently felt, but to the very great advantage of the finance and business of the country. Such a complete change must command the attention of even those who have not shared the feeling of uneasiness with which so many have regarded the progress of popular approval of radicalism. Only the future can make perfectly plain to all, the adequacy or the inadequacy of the assumptions upon which is based the view that all we have to do to assure a conservative administration of the Government, one which will be helpful and not harmful to business, is to put the leader of radicalism into the Presidential chair. Meanwhile, however, the drift of a good deal of the current discussion in the financial district is to make a favorable argument out of the success which has been attending Mr. Roosevelt's campaign. It was at least interesting that prices acted as they did on a day when so many phases of this argument were heard.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Speculation Abroad.

The speculation in the German stock market, which led up to the recent official warnings that the banks should discourage speculation because of the tax which it was putting upon credit facilities, has been marked by some very violent movements. Mail advices bring news of the fluctuations in some of these German stocks which show that all reserve was thrown aside by those who rushed in to buy them. In some cases, as was natural, reaction came very speedily. Thus, within two days recently, the stock of a German machine company rose 120 points only to drop back 90 points the third day. The Austrian market has been going through a somewhat similar experience, and there, too, warnings have been issued against unrestrained speculation. One example of the way in which speculation drove prices upward is furnished by the stock of a distillery company which, in a single hour on one day recently when an increase in dividend was announced, rose 200 points and almost immediately dropped back 160 points.

London and Berlin Price Movements.

Thanks to the rise in the price of certain groups of stocks on the Berlin Boerse, the average of all the securities listed showed an improvement in April for the first time so far this year. There was a decline in the average market value of bonds which was, however, a little more than offset by the advance in stocks. The Bankers' Magazine compilation of the market value of London securities covering the period from April 20 to May 20, shows a decrease during that period of about $30,000,000 in the aggregate market value of 387 representative securities. The only class of securities which showed an increase in aggregate market value for the month were the securities of foreign governments quoted in the London market.

Many Stocks Ex-Dividend.

The decline in many stocks was made to look greater yesterday than it really was, owing to the fact that nearly a dozen issues, including such important ones as United States Steel and Union Pacific, sold ex-dividend. This automatically reduced the price of these stocks overnight, and when to the reduction due to this cause was added the set-back in prices which occurred during the day's selling, the actual figures quoted for a number of stocks was very far below the final prices of Wednesday. In the early trading Canadian Pacific, which was one of the stocks to sell ex-dividend, recovered the full amount of the payment which came off the stock yesterday, and though it later declined with the rest of the market, it showed a net gain. With this exception practically none of the process of recovering the dividend was reflected in yesterday's price movements.

Out of Town Interviews.

Distance lends enchantment to the interview. A man who may have been accessible at his desk in New York for several months without being able to say anything worth wide quotation, no sooner leaves town than his remarks begin to come in by wire or wireless. A popular trader who could have been quoted on any day that the market was open recently took a pleasure trip through the West, for the purpose, evidently, of cheering up the omnipresent interviewer with comments on the country's great business and the excellent outlook. Daniel G. Reid has been bullish in New York for the past several months, but his bullishness seemed to take on fresh significance when it was learned yesterday that he had told Chicagoans that everything looks good.

Rock Island Under Pressure.

Sometimes the market appears to be following the news, and at other times the news seems made to fit the market. When it appeared, a few days ago, that the men who had made the market in American Can had finished their work for the present and were about to start off for their summer vacation trips, a great many people who had been enthusiastic over the possibilities of a big advance in the Rock Island issues suddenly decided that the prospects were not as good as they were a few weeks ago, and sold out. Rock Island common touched its highest point this year on April 8, when it sold at 30⅛. The preferred emulated the example set by the junior issue the day following, setting a new mark at 59⅝. The declines of the past few days have brought rumors of poor business, a bad outlook and heavy flood losses. As all of these factors were the same a week ago as they were yesterday, they can hardly be blamed for the reaction. D. G. Reid was quoted in a telegram from Chicago yesterday as saying that the Rock Island was in as good shape as ever, and in no danger of defaulting on its bond interest. The Rock Island's earnings speak for themselves, and show fixed charges earned. Notwithstanding this, Rock Island common went off another 1⅝ yesterday, closing at 23¼, while the preferred lost 2¾, closing at 49⅛. The collateral 4s sold off a point to 67. The Rock Island lines lost heavily through the flood, but the crop outlook is said to be unusually favorable, so that the speculators should be able to offset one piece of bad news with another item of good promise.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Recessions Predominate Among Active Issues in Day of Brisk Trading on the Curb.

Recessions were general among the active curb stocks yesterday, and trading was brisk, though individual issues which have been most conspicuous in recent markets reported fewer transactions. In the industrial list there were substantial declines from opening levels in B. F. Goodrich common, the old losing 2¼ and the new common 2 points, in Lehigh Valley Coal sales which declined from 247 to 242, and in United States Lighting & Heating new, which declined from 21½ to 19½. Goodrich, preferred, the Loose-Wiles Biscuit issues, and Marconi made fractional advances. Most of the coppers were reactionary, but moved narrowly. Trading in the bond list was confined to Chicago Elevated 5s, which sold $10,000 at 98½, and New York Telephone 4½s, which sold $25,000 at 98⅜.

Transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices were as follows:

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

It was in the so-called Reid stocks that weakness first developed in the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, the downward movement gradually extending practically to the whole list, and the decline becoming a violent one in the late afternoon, when the volume of business increased heavily. In the closing dealings the market reflected a condition of urgent liquidation, with little or no support. Stop loss orders were reached in numerous directions, and weakened margin accounts were being let go. One of the features of the market was the closing out by commission houses of many odd lots of various specialties recently the subject of bullish operations. The trading list was a long one, sixty-five different stocks being represented on it, with the sales totaling 67,936 shares. Pacific Mail changed hands at 32⅜, the only sale of that stock reported in Wall Street during the day.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

Canadian Pacific and Mining Shares Strong in London—Paris and Berlin Steady.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Saturday, June 1.—The Times in its City article this morning says:

"There was a brisk demand for money in the morning. Rates were at first maintained, but the supply soon began to increase and in the afternoon became abundant. The Bank, nevertheless, did only a small business in short bills. Discount quotations were reduced, most houses being buyers to a moderate extent of bills with less than six months to run. Even the latter were in less disfavor than they have been.

"The market, however, is still firm for short fixtures, knowing that treasury bills must be paid on Tuesday, and that it will have to provide most of the cash required for the purpose.

"Payday passed off on the Stock Exchange without untoward incident.

"It is now hoped there will be no failures. In this connection a rather disagreeable account has just been concluded. There was not much fresh business, and the house was half empty nearly all day, but the feeling was cheerful and the tone of most of the markets was good. Prices showed a moderate rise at the close in many cases.

"The home railway market was firm. The chief feature was a sharp rise in City and South London stock.

"The South African market was again strong. Grand Trunk Canada stock was rather lower.

"The oil share market showed considerable weakness in sympathy with a sharp fall in Shell Transport shares, which were depressed by a heavy decline in the shares of the Royal Dutch Petroleum Company.

"The American market became flat in the Street in sympathy with the fall in Rock Island shares. The reaction in this department affected Canadian Pacific and Amalgamated.

PARIS, May 31.—Prices were steady on the Bourse to-day.

Three per cent. rentes, 93 francs 25 centimes for the account.

BERLIN, May 31.—The completion of the settlement and the advance in home and foreign iron prices strengthened values on the Boerse to-day.

LIQUIDATES SEABOARD CO.

Vice Chancellor Signs Order for Distribution of Assets.

Vice Chancellor Stevens of the New Jersey Chancery Court signed an order yesterday on the application of James Byrnes of the New York Bar and J. Edward Ashmead of the Newark law firm of Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, approving a plan for the distribution of the assets of the Seaboard Company, a holding company of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company.

The Seaboard company had about $50,000,000 of stock outstanding. The order requires the liquidation of 25,698,718 shares of first preferred stock of the Seaboard company by payment of cash at the rate of $101.76 per share, payment to be made at the Commercial Trust Company of Jersey City. The order also provides for the even exchange of second preferred and common stock of the Seaboard company for second preferred and common stock of the Seaboard Air Line Railway Company. If this stock is not exchanged it is to be sold by the Trustees on either the Stock Exchange in New York or that in Baltimore, the proceeds to be paid to the court.

The report filed by the Trustees showed that they handled $2,629,013 in cash.

SETTLING SPOKANE RATE.

Agreement with Shippers Makes Legal Decision of Loss Account.

Traffic experts of some of the Northwestern roads believe that they have reached a settlement of the inter-mountain rate cases by friendly conferences with shippers and commercial organizations of Spokane and Salt Lake City, as a result of which the pending decision of the Supreme Court, to whom a decision by the new Commerce Court was appealed by the railroads, will make no change in a new rate to be adopted.

A reduction in westbound rates to Spokane and other points in the Middle Northwest was ordered by the Inter-State Commerce Commission after an investigation of complaints of discrimination in favor of Pacific Coast points. The railroads followed the principle of the "long and short haul" theory, which approved of a higher charge to Spokane than was made to Seattle on the theory that water competition had to be met at the latter point. The reductions were suspended pending a determination of the Commission's right to pass on the long and short haul provision. The Commerce Court upheld the constitutionality of this feature of the law, and the matter is now before the Supreme Court for review.

The conference with the shippers has resulted in an agreement to accept a new tariff considerably lower than the old rates, but 4 per cent. higher than the rates from Chicago, which were fixed by the commission, and 7 per cent. higher from Buffalo. It is expected that with both the roads and the shippers approving this compromise, the commission will not raise any objection to its acceptance.

It is expected that the settlement will reduce a net loss to the carriers concerned, abou $3,000,000 per annum, which would have been inflicted by the original reductions to about $2,000,000.

INTERBORO BONDS ALLOTTED

With the closing of the Morgan syndicate for the $170,000,000 of Interborough bonds to-day, it is expected that the full amount will have been subscribed for. The average allotment is to be around $200,000 each, which will mean a wide distribution of the bonds at the outset. The bonds will probably be offered to the public at par, and it is planned to keep the offering prices of subsequent blocks at par or higher. Under the terms of the agreement between the bankers and the Interborough $78,000,000 of the issue will be sold within a year.

BATH BANK CLOSES.

George W. Hallock Institution Is Insolvent Through Excessive Loans.

Special to The New York Times.

BATH, N. Y., May 31.—The George W. Hallock Bank failed to open its doors this morning. The closing of the bank, which has been in business since 1840, was a great surprise to this community. Attorney Reuben R. Lyon is in temporary charge of the institution, and he is authority for the statement that the bank will liquidate through proceedings in bankruptcy.

The bank was founded by the late William S. Hubbell, whose daughter George W. Hallock, married. For more than sixty years the bank has been owned and conducted by the Hallock family. It is stated by William N. Hallock, cashier, that the institution has assets of a book value exceeding liabilities. The liabilities are between $600,000 and $700,000. The business of the Hallock Bank extended throughout Steuben County and into Livingston County. It is believed that a large part of the deposits were in active or certificate accounts, and that consequently no large number of commercial firms will be involved. Attorney Reuben R. Lyon makes the following statement:

"The present condition of the bank is due to its policy of overloaning upon notes to merchants and other business firms of the community. It has also a large amount invested in realty holdings, aggregating from $70,000 to $80,000, upon which a speedy liquidation is not possible. To protect loans that the bank has made in New York and to meet its pressing needs, there is deposited as collateral over $110,000 in notes against Seuben County residents. It is understood that the difficulties of the Hallock Bank are not of recent origin, but are due to loans made during the administration of previous managers."

At a meeting of depositors this afternoon it was agreed to urge William H. Nichols as temporary receiver. It is also proposed to reorganize the institution as a National bank and to take over the present depositors, either as stockholders or else to pay them dividends on their deposits outright. It is said by some that the loss to depositors cannot exceed 25 per cent. The failure has caused a stagnation of local business conditions, as the bank was regarded as one of the soundest in Southern New York.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE.

Commenting on general business conditions, Dun's Review says:

Four features of the business situation are so favorable, for the time being at least, as to overshadow those conditions which seem doubtful. These favoring features are: The better outlook for the crops—particularly in the Northwest—this being already productive of an increase of confidence and activity in the leading trade centres of the great agricultural sections; the warmer weather, which is everywhere stimulating trade distribution; the very notable expansion which has taken place in the iron and steel trade, bringing production almost to the point of capacity and giving promise of a year of remarkable consumption; the greatly improved conditions which have prevailed this year in the textile markets, a fact due in part to the more normal state of the market for raw cotton, and in part to that condition which is the inevitable product of low stocks of merchandise and a growing population with expanding wants. The past week has accentuated these more favorable features. Bank clearings this week outside of New York were 2.0 per cent. less than last year and 7.1 per cent. under 1910, while in New York there was a reduction of 2.8 and 21.2 per cent., respectively. Railroad gross earnings during three weeks of May show a gain of 4.3 per cent. Foreign commerce continues very large, with a noticeable outward movement in the iron and steel and dry goods markets. During the latest week the total commerce of the Port of New York amounted to $38,960,263, against $30,047,406 in 1911 and $24,858,738 in 1910. Both exports and imports made notable gains over the two preceding years, the exports being $19,209,598 and the imports $19,750,665.

Bradstreet's says:

Trade reports are irregular in tenor, in which respect they differ slightly from crop returns, which indicate that favorable progress has been made, and that on the whole conditions are relatively satisfactory, saving cotton, of course. In other words the elements have been adverse to distribution, but conducive to growing crops. But it is probable that the week's turnover in commercial circles has not been better than fair. Retail trade has suffered from unsettled weather, the early part of the week having been either too cool or rainy for free distribution, though higher temperatures and clearer skies in the final part of the week improved sales somewhat.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Prices of Local Issues Decline on the Exchanges in Other Cities.

Local issues were generally lower on the exchanges in other cities yesterday, as reported in special dispatches to THE TIMES.

In Baltimore G. B. S. Brewing issues were weak, owing to the fact that a former official of the company announced his intention to conduct an independent brewery. Houston Oil shares were soft and lower.

In Boston prices were generally a small fraction lower than on Wednesday. Lake was fairly strong, opening up ¾ at 39 and holding most of its gain. Old Dominion was off ½ to 56½, and Superior got down to 33, a loss of a full point. Shannon was fractionally lower at 14⅞. In the industrial list, American Wool preferred was in some demand, selling up to 92¼, up ½. East Boston Land was again stronger on the prospect of the East Boston Terminal Railway bill becoming a law to-morrow.

In Chicago the declines in Eastern values were reflected. Quaker Oats common dropped 5 points between sales, and there were losses of a point or more in Peoples Gas, Sears-Roebuck common, Public Service preferred, and Union Carbide. The various series of Chicago Railways participation certificates were fractionally lower. Small advances occurred in the quotations on Diamond Match, Swifts and Boxboard shares. The business in bonds was moderately large, extending to a number of issues, most of which were fractionally lower.

In Philadelphia heavy buying of Lake Superior Corporation, which set in at the very opening of the market, caused a violent upward bound. There was the customary brisk dealing in United States Steel and Reading. Lehigh Valley Transit was the only other purely Philadelphia issue to show signs of activity.

FOR HIGHER TROLLEY FARES.

Five-Cent Limit Bad, Says Jersey Service Corporation Head.

On his return yesterday to Newark after a long tour of the country studying trolley railway conditions, Thomas N. McCarter, President of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, declared that one of the real evils of the trolley railway business is the fixed five-cent fare. Mr. McCarter traveled about 14,000 miles, and made stops in the principal cities of the North, East, South, and West. The trip covered in all about thirty-eight States, and was made with representatives of the American Railway Association.

"While in the first few years," Mr. McCarter said, "large fortunes were made—and perhaps improperly—there have been exceptions. As a fair example of the earnings of electric railway companies I may cite conditions in Massachusetts.

"A dollar of capitalization in any of the companies operating there unquestionably represents a dollar honestly invested. Yet approximately only one-half of the electric companies pay dividends, and the average rate is 6 per cent., while the average for all companies, dividend-paying and non-dividend-paying, is 5¼ per cent.

"One of the most difficult problems with which the electric railway men have to contend is the fixed five-cent fare. It seems to be the thought that there is no limit to the elasticity of the nickel. As communities grow electric railway lines are being constantly extended, the long haul increases in length, and the transfer system is widened so that the distance which may be traveled for a five-cent fare becomes steadily greater."

RAILROAD EXPENSES UP.

Operating Costs of Two Great Lines Offset Increase in Gross Earnings.

Reports of the two great Eastern trunk line systems for April, one issued yesterday and the other published this morning, show that while business is offering in larger volume than it was a year ago, operating expenses have continued to increase more rapidly than the gross revenues.

The Pennsylvania lines, East and West, had total operating revenue of $18,668,000 in April, an increase of $588,000. Its operating expenses were $14,870,000, an increase of $1,241,000, so that in spite of the improvement in traffic the company's net earnings fell behind last year's by $653,000. April results were worse in this respect than the average since the opening of the current year. For the four months gross revenues have shown a gain of $5,083,000, against an increase of $5,333,000 in operating costs.

Revenues of the New York Central lines for April were $20,422,000, an increase of $131,000. The expenses and taxes totaled $16,819,000, an increase of $739,000, so that net for the month carried a loss of $608,000, as compared with last year. For the first four months the Central's gross gain was $4,971,000, at an increase of but $2,341,000 in expenses, so that net for the period leads last year's by $2,630,000.

MEXICO NOTES IN DEMAND.

Issue of $10,000,000 Put Out by Speyer & Co. Going Rapidly.

The bankers reported yesterday that there was a good demand for the $10,000,000 issue of Mexican Government 4½ per cent. treasury gold notes, which were being sold by Speyer & Co. on a 6 per cent. basis. Subscriptions were also said to be coming in freely at London, Amsterdam, Frankfort, Berlin, and Paris, at which points the notes were offered.

Among the New York banks subscribing to the issue are the First National, National City, Hanover National, Chase National, Guaranty Trust, and Union Trust Company. The notes are dated June 10, 1912, and mature at the end of a year, but are redeemable at par on thirty days' notice.

PERJURY IN PACKERS' CASE.

Special Grand Jury May Investigate Testimony of Witnesses.

CHICAGO, May 31.—A special Federal Grand Jury was ordered to-day for June 10 by United States District Judge Carpenter. Federal officials would neither affirm nor deny that the new jury would be asked to investigate the testimony of the witnesses in the recent trial of the meat packers.

Oliver E. Pagen, special assistant to Attorney General Wickersham, recently reviewed a transcript of the testimony in the trial and compared statements on the stand with what the winesses had told the Grand Jury which returned the indictments charging ten Chicago packers with violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

It was generally believed in the Federal building that the new Grand Jury would consider the results of Mr. Pagan's investigation.

ATTACK RENEWED ON TOBACCO TRUST

MEN AND METHODS THE SAME

Independents Had "Fighting Chance" Before, but Now "Their Annihilation" Is Deemed a Certainty.

The reality of the dissolution of the Tobacco Trust is attacked in papers filed yesterday in the United States District Court by Charles Dushkind, as counsel for John A. Locker and Elma Locker, trading under the name of E. Locker & Co. Their suit is against the American Tobacco Company. The Circuit Court intended by its decree to restore true competition in the tobacco business, it is declared, but it has failed to accomplish the desired purpose.

The plaintiffs are tobacco jobbers, who, before the filing of the Government's suit for the dissolution of the Tobacco Trust, began suit against the American Tobacco Company and a number of other corporate and individual defendants for triple damages under the Sherman law on the ground that they had conspired to restrain trade. After several adjournments their case has been set by stipulation for trial next November, and the plaintiffs now seek permission to add to the list of defendants the Liggett-Myers Tobacco Company and the P. Lorillard Company.

In their petition E. Locker & Co. declare that there had been in this city a large number of tobacco jobbers through whom the manufacturers sold to the retail trade. The American Tobacco Company in order to deprive the independent manufacturers of this avenue for distributing their products conspired to obtain a monopoly of the tobacco jobbing business, and by "a ferocious and relentless trade warfare" drove a number of jobbers out of business and rendered the business of others unprofitable and worthless.

The plaintiffs joined as co-defendants to this suit against the American Tobacco Company the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, a large jobbing house, and now declare that the dissolution decree of the Circuit Court has failed in its effect. It has, they say, made practically no change in the situation, except that whereas "formerly the independent concerns were hammered at by one trust, they are now attacked simultaneously by the several companies created out of the trust."

The plaintiffs assert on information and belief that the Metropolitan Tobacco Company is employed as a jobber by the American Tobacco Company, the Leggett & Myers Tobacco Company, the P. Lorillard Company, the Weyman-Bruton Company, the American Snuff Company, and the Blackwell-Durham Tobacco Company, to the exclusion of other jobbers, and the American Tobacco Company has only recently established a premium station in this city under other than its own name.

On April 8 last E. Locker & Co. wrote to the American Tobacco Company, the Leggett & Myers Tobacco Company, the Weyman-Bruton Company, and the American Snuff Company, pointing out that they had been engaged in the wholesale tobacco trade since 1862, and asking that they might deal with them as jobbers. All refused to do so, though their subsidiary concerns, the American Cigar Company and the Butler-Butler Company, were willing to sell them goods. Consequently the plaintiffs declare:

"These proposed new defendants now appear to be a part and parcel of the same old Tobacco Trust; their methods of doing business are the same as those employed by the American Tobacco Company. Their employment of the same agency for the distribution of their products, as is the case with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, is, as I am advised, a flagrant violation of the decree of the Circuit Court, and is surely inconsistent with free competition."

The petition then goes into the stock ownership of the American Tobacco Company and argues that "the active management of these new companies is in the hands of the very same individuals, who have theretofore managed the affairs of the condemned trust." Most, if not all of the officers, managers, heads of departments, clerks, &c., it is declared, "have come directly from 111 Fifth Avenue, and these gentlemen, representing as they do the interests of the group of individuals who control the stock of these companies, are now supposed to be engaged in restoring honest competition."

"One of the means employed by them in their earnest efforts to restore the so-called competition is for four of the big companies to come into a territory apparently to compete with each other, but in reality to attack the common enemy, that is the independent manufacturers simultaneously and from all sides, so that whereas the independent people had a fighting chance before when attacked by the trust, their annihilation is now a matter of certainty."

Locker & Co. have been in litigation with the American Tobacco Company for seven or eight years. The first suit was brought in the State courts and was thrown out on a demurrer. The lower court was upheld successively by the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals. Locker & Co. then sued under the Sherman act in the Federal courts, but after some time dismissed the case. Subsequently a new suit was brought, which is now pending.

The American Tobacco Company, before the dissolution, had an agreement by which the Metropolitan Tobacco Company was the exclusive distributor in this city of the goods manufactured by the American Tobacco Company itself, as distinguished from its subsidiaries. The American Cigar Company and two of the chief cigarette companies in the trust sold to other jobbers in this city. Some of these subsidiaries were turned over to the P. Lorillard Company in the disintegration process and they continue to sell to others. In general the Lorillard company still deals only with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, and for a time after the dissolution the same was true of the Leggett & Myers Tobacco Company, which took over another part of the trust's business. Recently the Leggett & Myers Company gave notice to the Metropolitan Tobacco Company that it would sell to the trade generally and it is now doing so.

In behalf of the tobacco companies it was said yesterday that one of the chief reasons for dealing with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company exclusively was to avoid the necessity of extending credit promiscuously in so large a market as New York City. It was also pointed out that the trust never held any stock in the Metropolitan, which antedated its formation.

The argument in the Locker suit will be held before Judge Noyes June 7.

CROCKERY MARKET OFF.

Cut Glass for Wedding Gifts, However, in Fairly Good Demand.

Following one of the best weeks experienced for some time, business done in the New York crockery and glassware market this week was generally disappointing. Mail orders are reported to have been fairly heavy, but spot activities of both local and out-of-town buyers were limited. The present road season is practicaly over, traveling salesmen returning to their various houses almost daily.

Although it is getting a little late to supply orders for June weddings, cut glass was in fairly good demand through the week. A good call for Japanese ware from stock was in evidence, a feature pleasing to importers. Little business on these lines had been expected so early in the season, and the week's orders are said to have been gratifying. There was little activity in lamps, but with the advent of new Fall lines in a week or two a general expansion of business in this end of the trade is looked for. Reports from the pottery districts received by the Crockery and Glassware Journal indicate a decided falling off in orders. Glassware was in good demand, however, the prospective shutdown proving an incentive to place orders before the factories close.

COMMODITY MARKETS.

All Dull and Lower as Good Growing Weather Continues.

The grain markets were all lower. Near deliveries showed most decline, and the wind-up of the May delivery was very flat. Weather and crop conditions are generally favorable. Some complaints on wheat come from Kansas. Provisions were dull. Cotton shows an easier undertone with favorable weather conditions, hopeful crop accounts and estimates. The foreign market was firm on Thursday. Speculation continues quiet. Cottonseed oil reacts further on selling by speculative holders. Consuming demand remains slow. Coffee was dull, with prices fractionally lower.

WHEAT.

The wheat market was heavy all day, closing at a little over the low point. There was pressure on the May and July deliveries, and May wheat at Chicago closed at only ⅛c over July, at a net loss of 2⅛c for the day. The crop reports were of continued dry weather in the States of Kansas and Nebraska, with some claims of damage, but these reports did not have much influence. Scattered showers have occurred in some sections. Harvest has begun in Central Texas, and harvest will shortly begin in Oklahoma. The Oklahoma State report made the wheat conditions 84.7, against 85 last month. The reports from the American Northwest continue almost perfect. Reports from the Central West show practically no change. American exports for the week were 4,914,000 bushels, against 3,673,000 the previous week; Argentine, 2,296,000 bushels, against 3,752,000 last year; Australian, 840,000 bushels, against 1,168,000; India, 1,312,000 bushels, against 1,984,000. The indicated world's exports for the week were 10,114,000 bushels, against 13,536,000 the previous week and 16,584,000 last year. Notwithstanding these smaller world's exports the amount afloat for Europe is considerably larger than a year ago. The foreign markets were dull and English markets were weak. Beneficial rains have fallen in the United Kingdom, and the drought has been partially broken in Australia. Large arrivals of Argentine and the recent heavy shipments of Canadian wheat are pressing on the market. Conflicting reports were received late from Kansas. There were some reports of showers and other advices denying these reports. Cash wheat was nominal, with No. 2 red, $1.23; No. 1 Northern, $1.28¾; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.22½; No. 1 Manitoba, $1.15¼.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN was heavy most of the session, closing near the low point, at ¼c to ½c decline. May corn sold down 1¼c, but was bid up at the close on a few transactions. Weather conditions were favorable and the crop reports are fairly encouraging. The Iowa State report claims that corn planting was completed last Saturday night in some localities, and early planted corn had been replanted. With the favorable conditions which have prevailed all over the country since week has been very rapidly advanced. Bradstreet's exports for the week were only 42,000 bushels, against 564,000 last year. Argentine exports were 3,757,000 bushels, against none last year. Cash corn was nominal at 88¾c, free on board.

OATS were weak, declining ⅛c to 2½c, closing at the low point. May showed the greatest decline and closed weak. July was off ⅞c. The wind-up of the May deal in all grain was flat. Crop and weather reports were favorable and the development of the feedstuff crop situation is very encouraging. Cash oats were lower, with standards and No. 3 white quoted at 62c. elevator; No. 2 white, 62½c.

PROVISIONS.

Trading was quiet, the market showing very slight changes for the day. Hog receipts were comparatively light, amounting to only 68,000, tending to steady the contract market.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Liquidation of speculative accounts again resulted in a marked recession in oil values. There was little support until substantial declines had been registered when Western interests, which were prominent in the last bull movement, purchased in moderate volume, while part of the demand was also credited to refining interests believed to be short of contracts. The favorable cotton weather over the South was not without influence, although the steadiness in lard did not seem to inspire much buying, the general opinion being that the renewal of inquiry was based mainly upon the fact that the market was nearly ¾c per pound under the high prices of the season. Yesterday's reports were not indicative of a recurrence of buying by consumers as yet, although it is evident that there is less pessimism with the lowering of values, and the elimination of loosely held speculative oil. Crude in the Southeast was quoted at 5.67; in the Valley, and Texas at 6.00 nominal.

COTTON.

Crop accounts and weather conditions seemed to have been more effective during yesterday's session in shaping sentiment and directing operations, but it was quite apparent that the general desire was to curtail commitment over the week end, particularly as the Government report will be made public on Tuesday at noon, and in the interim several additional private estimates are being anticipated. The range of values yesterday was rather below the finals of Wednesday, although pressure was not pronounced, so that only moderate declines were exhibited at the close.

The Norden report was construed as slightly bearish, as it practically confirmed the figures of the National Ginners' Association, issued earlier in the week, and served to convince many who previously declared that the Ginners' was too high. The condition was given at 78.5 by Norden, against their estimate of 88.3 last year, and the acreage decrease at 7 per cent., against an increased area of 8 per cent. a year ago. The National Ginners' Association made the condition 79.4, with claims made that correspondence to that bureau indicated an acreage of 7 per cent. under that of the preceding season. The only other private crop report issued thus far was that of the Procter-Gamble, which concern made the percentage condition of the crop 80.

In Norden & Co.'s report the statement is made that the crop has recovered from a very poor outlook, and now shows normal conditions, although due to its lateness and the hurried preparations, it will be more than usually exposed to setbacks during the Summer. It is evident that it is just on this possibility that much of the recent buying has been based. It is still noticeable that on each point recession there is a very fair demand, not believed to be emanating from outside interests, this buying taking place in the face of favorable weather conditions. A firm technical position of the market is generally conceded.

The foreign market was closed yesterday, and will not reopen until Monday, but the comparative firmness at Liverpool on Thursday caused the early gains of from 3 to 5 points in our market at the outset. Satisfactory crop advices had much to do with the elimination of these advances. There were moderate showers in parts of Alabama and Georgia over Memorial Day, although this morning's map was free of precipitation, with the Eastern belt prediction for a continuance of fair weather. Some rains were also noted in South and Central Texas, which were naturally regarded as beneficial, and with official forecast for showery and cooler weather in the western belt, there was little encouragement from a bull standpoint in climatic prospects.

Week-end statistics had little bearing on price fluctuations. Spinners takings were 193,000 bales, against 250,000 last week and 177,000 a year ago, with into sight of 64,000, against 35,000 last year, indicating a decrease in the visible of 180,000, against a reduction of 142,000 last year. Into sight thus far this season is 15,131,000 bales, against 11,560,000 last year; total American visible, 3,003,000, against 1,843,000 a year ago. Exports total 10,677,000, against 7,216,000 for this period last year.

New Orleans, May 16th, 1912.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Comptroller of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon, on the 20th day of June, 1912, for the purchase of $300,000 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by and to be issued under and subject to the provisions of the Act aforementioned, and the Constitutional Amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations, and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as given and prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being Ord. Said bonds are the first issuance out of the total amount authorized by said Act and Constitutional Amendment, and are of the numbers, amounts and maturities, as follows, to wit:

They are, by the aforesaid Act and Constitutional Amendment, exempt from all State, Parish and Municipal taxes, and may be legally invested for the estates of minors and of interdicts, and are receivable by State, Parish and Municipal officers where, by law, deposits of bonds are allowed or required to be made.

In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

No sale shall be made unless the aggregate of bids received equals the full amount of the present offering of $300,000, in face value, and the adjudication shall be made to the highest bidder, provided, however, that no adjudication shall take place for less than par and accrued interest. All matured interest coupons shall be cut from said bonds and cancelled, and the successful bidder shall pay the interest which may have accrued on said bonds up to the date of delivery. West Side Apartments in Deals Aggregating Over $500,000—United States Express Company Buys Block Front in Hoboken—Loft Transactions—Good Bronx and Suburban Sales.

Apartment house deals aggregating over $500,000 on the upper West Side, in addition to several other good transactions in various parts of the city, gave an active tone to the realty market yesterday. On Riverside Drive, just below 127th Street, the six-story house known as the Grosvenor, formerly the Montebello, was old by Francis M. Jencks to Mary G. White. The house occupies a plot 108 feet on the Drive and 95 deep. It is well rented, and was held at $230,000. Mr. Jencks takes in part payment the residence owned by Mrs. White at 45 West Seventy-fifth Street, on lot 21 by 102.2 between Central Park West and Columbus Avenue. H. N. Mooney acted as the broker in the transaction.

The second deal, which was also in the nature of a trade involving properties aggregating in value about $265,000, was the sale of the six-story apartment known as the Monterey, on the southeast corner of Pinehurst Avenue and 179th Street, in the Fort Washington district. It was sold by the Monterey Property Company of New York to A. K. Shipman for investment. The structure ocupies a plot 100 by 100 feet. In part payment the buyer gives his country residence known as Sarview, near Hastings-on-the-Hudson. J. Clarence Davies was the broker.

U. S. Express Company Buys Hoboken Block Front.

An important transaction by the United States Express Company which will be followed by a big improvement for its express business in Hoboken, has just been concluded for the company represented by John N. Golding, which has purchased the entire block front on Harrison Street, between Second and Third Streets, Hoboken. The property includes eighteen lots, which were acquired from the following owners: Eight from Edward L. Coster of Irvington-on-Hudson, four from Joseph Picuri, two from John Eversberger, and four from Charles A. Bock, two of the latter being on Harrison Street and two running through to Jackson Street.

The entire transaction with the contemplated new building for the United States Express Company will represent somewhat over $500,000, and it will mean an important business change in that commercial district. The sellers were represented in the deal by F. J. Mathews & Co. of Jersey City.

The Gainsboro is a seven-stiry elevator structure, and occupies a plot fronting 100 feet on Fifth Avenue and 123 feet on 120th Street, facing Mount Morris Park, with a southerly line of 136 feet. The entire deal involved about $750,000.

Modern Possibilities of Real Estate

In 1888 Mr. W. A. C. bought 125x180 on a leading avenue in The Bronx for $68,000. He has recently leased it for 21 years, ground rental, tenant to erect his own building and pay taxes and all expenses, for $46,000 per annum net.

In 1889 Mr. F. A. W. paid $48,000 for 6 lots at the junction of two leading thoroughfares in The Bronx. These 6 lots were recently leased for $35,000 net per annum, the tenant to erect his own buildings, pay all taxes and expenses.

In 1899 Mr. A. D. paid $27,500 for 2 lots, with old frame buildings, on a leading thoroughfare in The Bronx. It now brings a rental of $18,000 per annum net, tenants paying all expenses.

In 1900 Mr. L. M. paid $70,000 for a corner on a prominent thoroughfare in The Bronx, containing about 3 lots, erected a 3-story building, and to-day the property brings in a rental of $40,000 per annum.

In 1905 a corner at a Subway station, containing about 11 lots, was sold for $60,000, a tax payer was erected on it, and it now brings a rental of $35,000 net per annum, tenant paying all expenses except taxes.

EDUCATION NOTES.

William Fairley, Principal of the Commercial High School, Albany Avenue and Dean Street, Brooklyn, is in the Midwood Sanitarium, suffering from typhoid fever. He was taken ill last Saturday. It is said that, while he is not in serious danger, it will be a month or more before he can leave the sanitarium. He will, therefore, not be at the school's commencement exercises. In his absence Robert P. St. John and Charles H. Teeter of the Commercial High School will conduct the affairs of Principal Fairley's office.

The Alumni Association of Public School 85, Evergreen Avenue and Covert Street, Brooklyn, will hold its annual meeting on the evening of June 14 at the Rusurban, Fulton Street and Classon Avenue, in that borough. Officers for the ensuing school year will be elected. A shirtwaist dance will come after the election.

It is expected that at the next meeting of the Board of Education, on June 12, Commissioner Thomas W. Churchill will offer a resolution calling upon the Board of Superintendents to make promotions of teachers in the elementary schools under the recent ruling of Corporation Counsel Watson, upholding the rights of teachers holding old licenses. This will put an end to the system which has heretofore prevailed of merging lists, whereby persons who had not attained a high rating on the lists were kept out of advancement to make way for later and more successful candidates. It is said that there are more than 4,000 holders of the licenses, in whose favor the Corporation Counsel has decided. Some plan will have to be devised for listing this large number, and, until such a plan is formulated, it is probable that only holders of Grade A licenses, who thereby have a prior claim to consideration, will be promoted.

Prof. James E. Peabody, who is head of the Department of Biology in the Morris High School, gave a lecture on "Flies and Mosquitos" on Wednesday evening in the Grace Reformed Church, Lincoln Road and Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn.

TONS OF GOOD FISH GO FOR FERTILIZER

BOATLOADS ARE DESTROYED

On Some Days Enough for 40,000 Meals Go to Barren Island from Fulton Market.

While the cost of living is mounting steadily and beef is bringing civil war prices, tons of fresh food fish are being shipped daily from Fulton Market to Barren Island to be made into fertilizer. For the last three weeks a steamer, loaded with newly caught porgies, sea bass, butterfish, weakfish, and other varieties, has made one or more trips a day from the offal dock. On some days more than 200 barrels of fish in good condition have been destroyed—enough to supply 40,000 meals. On these days more fish have gone over to Barren Island than have been sold to the retail trade in New York City.

Wholesale dealers at the Fulton Market say they have to destroy the fish because in this city the people are afraid to buy it at low prices. Exceptionally large catches are reported all the way from Cape Henry, Va., to Seabright, N. J., a 300-mile stretch of coast. One Fulton Market dealer said yesterday that the supply of fish this year is 75 per cent. larger than the average season. Although nearly all of this fish is handled in New York Harbor, the consumer in New York City is benefited but little. One dealer estimated yesterday that not more than 2 per cent. of the fish received here is eaten in New York City. Other dealers placed the percentage a good deal higher, but they agreed that, while fish is shipped from New York as far West as Chicago and St. Louis, and sold there cheaper and in greater quantities than usual, high prices prevail in this city, and the quantity sold here is about the same as in ordinary seasons.

One wholesale fish dealer yesterday gave an explanation of this.

"The chief reason that good eating fish has to be destroyed," he said, "is that dealers who place it on sale at low prices cannot sell it. The average woman doesn't know how to judge the condition of a fish, and her only test of its quality is the price. If it is lower than she is in the habit of paying she is afraid the fish is stale. She won't buy unless the dealer charges two or three times what would be a fair price. Her impression often is that, if the fish were really fit to eat, it would have been put into cold storage, instead of being sold cheap. This is a mistake, for cold storage is a costly process and we do not use it any more than is necessary. We can much better afford to sell fish outright at a lower price. At present we are paying 25 cents a barrel to have good fresh fish destroyed, but we lose less that way than we would by putting it into cold storage.

Bluefish Under Suspicion.

"Take blusfish, for example. It is considered a luxury and is much in request at present. For several years it had almost disappeared from these waters. Last year it returned, and this season it is being caught in unprecedented quantities. We sell it from 4 to 8 cents a pound. The retailer sells it all the way from 10 to 30 cents a pound. Those who sell it so low as 10 cents are the peddlers and small shopkeepers. While their fish is the same in every respect as the other, it is nevertheless under suspicion because of its cheapness. Very little of it goes at 10 cents a pound.

"Another factor is the belief of many people in this city that fresh fish can be obtained only on Friday. They think what is on the market any other day is stale or left over. As fish day only comes once a week the retailer has only one good selling day in the week, and he has to make a larger profit, and he sells at an advance of from 300 to 500 per cent.

"We would rather sell at any figure than have it wasted. It costs something like 2 cents a pound to catch the fish we send over to Barren Island and it costs 25 cents a barrel to get rid of it in this manner. It would be cheaper to give it away. We cannot put it into cold storage because that would mean a greater loss. It costs three-quarters of a cent a pound to freeze fish and a quarter of a cent a pound for every month it is in cold storage. And only a limited supply of cold storage fish can be disposed of.

Retailers' Big Profits.

"Weakfish sells at wholesale from 2 to 5 cents a pound; at retail from 8 to 20 cents. Butterfish sells at wholesale from 1¼ cents a pound to 4 cents; at retail from 8 to 20 cents. The difference runs about the same between the wholesale and retail prices of other varieties. The country peddler buys fish at 5 cents a pound and sells it at 10 cents, while in this city the retailer, who buys at the same price, less the freight, sells at 20, 25, and 30 cents a pound. They prefer, even in exceptional seasons like this, to buy in small quantities and sell at high prices, and this policy is favored by the attitude of the consumers who suspect anything on sale at a lower price than they are accustomed to pay. This season a fish peddler could go about with the very best of fish and make a good profit offering it at 25 cents a panful, but, if he did, the consumers would be so alarmed that they would demand an investigation by the health authorities.

"The public is capricious in another respect. It has a taste for Winter fish in Summer and for Summer fish in Winter. When fish is in season, at its very best in condition and flavor and at its lowest price, the demand usually shifts for some other variety that probably is costlier and poorer in quality."

LOSES LEG TO WRITE HISTORY

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., May 31.—In a room in Christ's Hospital a thin, gray-haired, gray-whiskered old man lies on a couch and dictates to a stenographer for twenty to thirty minutes four times a day, that the real history of Populism may be preserved. The man is ex-Senator William E. Peffer.

At 82 years of age he has suffered the amputation of a leg that this history may be completed. It probably never will be published, but will be kept in the archives of the Kansas State Historical Society, where it may be read by historians in years to come.

Mr. Peffer, the first and only Populist Senator from Kansas, who led the farmers of the State to the most decisive political victories the State has ever known, started the book as an autobiography.

For six years Mr. Peffer was the butt of the jibes of the cartoonists and jokesmiths, and his whiskers furnished ammunition for bombardments of ridicule not only against Mr. Peffer but against his cause. He saved thousands of these cartoons and kept them in a scrapbook, and these will become a part of the political records he will leave to posterity.

One chapter of the book is devoted to the "Whiskers of Populism," and the part they played in the farmers' movement.

Mr. Peffer's leg was amputated a few days ago as the only means of prolonging his life, blood poisoning having threatened. He consented to the operation solely because he wanted a few more weeks, if possible, to finish his history.

$1,737 ON DEAD PEDLER.

Joseph Wagman Had Four Purses Sewed Up In His Pockets.

A fish pedler of the east side dropped dead at Orchard and Eldridge Street while on his way to market early yesterday morning. In his pocket 29 cents in change was found in a cursory examination to learn his identity. Failure to find anything by which to identify the man made Capt. Burfeind of the Clinton Street Station order a more thorough search. Two trouser pockets sewed shut with rows and rows of stitches first caught the attention of the police. The stitches were ripped and in one pocket there was a purse containing $1,090 in bills, in the other was a purse containing $381 in bills. Sewed in the coat pockets also there were found two more purses, one containing $260 and the other $6.30. There were also two receipts for foreign money orders for $900.

The money order receipts showed the name of Abraham Weisman, or Wagman, but there was no clue as to the address. The police learned, however, that a fish pedler answering the description of the dead man had lived in Broome Street.

CAR HITS CURVE ON HILL AND UPSETS

11 STATEN ISLANDERS HURT

A trolley car bound from St. George to Port Richmond, S. I., jumped the tracks in Castleton Avenue, between Burgher Avenue and Broadway, West New Brighton, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The front of the car, which was an open one, and most of the uprights supporting the roof on one side were smashed. These persons were hurt:

COPPILETTI, Miss ELLEN, 30 Brooks Avenue, West New Brighton; badly cut about the head, face, and body.

SAVRIS, HENRY, 1,861 Richmond Terrace, West New Brighton; scalp wounds and cuts and bruises on face and hands.

TORNEY, JOHN, South Street, West New Brighton; head, face, and body cut and bruised.

There were about thirty persons in the car and none had time to jump. Hoffman stuck to his platform and tried to stop his car with the brake. The car had gained great momentum on the hillside, and once it left the tracks plunged rapidly across the sidewalk, toppled over a trolley pole, and ran up against a telephone pole. There it would have toppled over had not the pole held it.

Hoffman was pinned between the wreck of the dashboard and the front seat, and his legs were crushed there. The reserves from the West New Brighton Station were called out and assisted those of the passengers who were only shaken up, to extricate the others who had been caught in the wreck of the car. The ambulance surgeons established a field hospital in the street beside the wreck of the car, and there treated the passengers as fast as they could be brought to them.
